On motion, D. McMurtrie, jr. G. W. Russ, and Wm. R. Hampson, were appointed a committee to wait upon John Blanchard, Esq., and request him to address the meeting. On motion, R. A. McMurtrie, Esq. was called on and addressed the meeting, after which, John Blanchard, Esq. appeared and addressed the meeting.

W. P. Orbison, Esq. from the committee to prepare proceedings, made the following report.

The constitution guarantees to the young, as well as the aged, the privilege of assembling and expressing their opinions on the subject of our government, and the administration of its affairs.

A series of encroachments on popular rights for the last few years, and the determination evinced by the Executive of the United States, at all hazards, to confirm the power of the President, by increasing his patronage, is well calculated to excite our fears for the permanency of republican institutions. The gild of respectability, merely to gild the ignominious, has been swallowed by guile. "Chivalry of the South," and the boasted "Union and others, the late converted Calhoun of President Van Buren and his measure, into his warmest friends. A similar attempt to entrap the East and North by Mr. Buchanan, in his efforts to prove that the "reduction of price of labour to the "specie standard," would necessarily enrich the manufacturers, has signally failed. The spurious argument used to reconcile the labouring class to this ruinous measure, belongs to the old aristocratic school of politics, of which Mr. Buchanan was in his youth, and in heart still is, an adhering pupil; it runs thus, "that there will of course be a corresponding reduction in the prices of the necessities of life." This is true in part; but it only extends to the productions of the farmer and the mechanic, whose labours, under the grinding operation of the measures of government, are already rewarded at half their former prices. The price of coffee, sugar, tea, spices and all those foreign articles, which habit has rendered necessary to the comfort of the labourer, is beyond our legislative control, and will remain as heretofore. It would seem to be the intention of our rulers, that the laboring class must live on home productions, and the wealthy only enjoy foreign luxuries. This would be acting out the sub-treasury scheme, which directs duties collected for the support of government to be paid in coin, that is, "gold and silver for the office holders, and bank notes for the people!" It is now evident that the opposition of the Van Buren party to the banks was a mere pretence. It is now abandoned except in a few districts where it can be used amongst the ignorant as "political capital" to carry on their accustomed trade of deception.

A leagued band of office holders acting under the insidious mark of Democracy, have yearly plundered the treasury to such extent, that they have been compelled to establish a government bank, with the deceptive title of an "Issue of Treasury notes," millions of which will doubtless be expended to procure the re-election of Martin Van Buren, and perpetuate the succession of the presidency in some parasitical favorite. Fortunately for the liberties of the country, the present incumbent can no longer shield himself from deserved ignominy, and the indignation of an insulted people; nor can he, like his "filustrious predecessor," throw a mantle of popularity over a chosen successor.

When we inquire into the character of those who claim to be the pure democrats of the present day, we find they are generally of the "strictest sect" of the old school Federalists of '98, and some of them worse. Amongst the thousands that might be named, take a few prominent men of our own State as examples. Charles J. Ingersoll, who declares openly, "that if he had been years of discretion at the period of the revolution, he would have been a Tory," and he still is one. James Buchanan, who publicly declared, "that if he had a drop of democratic blood in his veins he would let it out." William Wilkins was secretary of the great Federal convention held in Carlisle in 1812, which co-operating with Martin Van Buren, denounced President and his measures. We have patent democrats of the same caste at our own doors, equally illustrious in a small way, as "frank and file" leaders.

We would not dictate to those of riper years; but we claim the privilege of proving by our actions, that we are the legitimate descendants of those who achieved our independence and their conditors; and that we adhere to the principles which actuated the youthful Washington in his first efforts in the cause of freedom. When we look back to his self devotion in the cause of his country, and compare him and his associates with Van Buren, the distinction is too palpable to be concealed. We are constrained to unite with respectfully to ask the "specie standard" in us in disposing him and his associates in the office—blood suckers, worse than the "blood hounds," their fit conditors, in Florida.

Some of us trace our ancestry to the illustrious actors in our struggle for independence—some to the friends of liberty in "Erin's lovely isle," who would willingly have fought and died in freedom's cause with their gallant Montgomery—some to the country of the distinguished De Kalb, who offered himself a victim on the sacred shrine of liberty—now united in sentiment as our forefathers were in devotedness to our country's best interests.

Resolved, That we are not, nor under any circumstances would have been, Tories, that we have "democratic blood in our veins," and would not "let it out," unless in defence of our country and its institutions.

Resolved, That we view with abhorrence the traitorous conduct of Martin Van Buren, evinced by his infamous resolution offered at a public meeting, "that the war was impolitic and disastrous, and that to employ the militia in an open war was unconstitutional," while General Harrison and General Jackson were successfully fighting the battles of their country.

Resolved, That we sincerely regret the magic influence of Martin Van Buren and other sycophants, exercised over the former manly, but now partially impaired intellect of General Jackson, whose warm friends some of us were, which has lessened his fame as a patriot, and sunk him to the degraded station of a partizan.

Resolved, That we consider the deceptive course of the Loco Foco faction in Congress, and in the Legislature of this State, in their feigned opposition to banks as utterly disgraceful, an undisguised "profraternization," and that the people want "vigilance and can be guided."

Resolved, That we have reason to believe that General Porter was "particeps criminis" in the now making an effort to shake off the degrading shackles of Van Burenism, in which we hope he may be successful, we refrain from an expression of our decided disapprobation.

Resolved, That in William Henry Harrison we recognize the successful general, the enlightened statesman, and the reputable patriot, and that we will use all honorable means to transfer him from his "log cabin" to the Presidential chair, believing that under his auspices, with the Divine blessing, our country will be restored to its former prosperity.

Resolved, That we will the slanders and abuse of the Van Buren press as an auspicious sign of the downfall of Loco Focoism, and earnestly ask them to degrade themselves by continuing their "granny story"—"log cabin and hard cider story,"—and all their other stories (lies) about the venerable Harrison, who was fighting the battles of his country before his youthful slanders were born, and while his aged defamers of the ultra school federalism were reposing on their beds of down.

Resolved, That we rejoice in the accession to our ranks of many of our youthful companions, who have heretofore differed with us in political opinion—and affectionately ask all who are yet out of our country's "ark of safety," to unite with us in our efforts to stay the hand of the "wily magician," who seems to have been sent by Providence (as the destroying angel was of old) to inflict on us the punishment due to our manifold national transgressions.

Resolved, That we cordially unite with the youthful sons of the "old dominion" in the support of John Tyler for the office of Vice President—his upright and honorable cause will ensure his election.

On motion of A. W. Benedict, the meeting proceeded to appoint delegates to the National Convention. The following gentlemen were appointed.

OBITUARY RECORD.

"In the midst of life we are in death."

DIED, in this borough, on Saturday morning the 11th inst. Mrs. MARTHA MILLER, consort of the late John Miller Esq., of this place.

In the death of Mrs. Miller, society has lost a valuable member, and a large family an affectionate mother. She was a woman that held a place in the affections of her acquaintances, rarely attained by any. Bland, dignified and courteous, she was the object of admiration as well as esteem; and if in her character there existed any imperfection, it was that her heart was too full of human kindness—too tender for the scenes of this busy world. Her pious and upright life give us assurance that she has found a home in a brighter sphere.—Register.

As in all probability we are on the eve of a war with England, Captains are required to be particular in correcting their roles and making true returns on oath. The penalties of the law will be enforced against all delinquent officers and soldiers colonels and commanding officers of adjutants who neglect (through carelessness) to have correct returns made on oath of the field, staff and company officers of their respective regiments or battalions, which must be collected, and captains who train their men without sufficient arms will be subject to a fine of 20 dollars. It is time that this mock training should be dispensed with, and that we should endeavor to imitate our revolutionary fathers.
