A MUTINEER.

A MUTINEER. A paragraph is circulating in the news-papers to the effect that a seama connec-to and the provided seama connec-to and the provided seama connector of having at Pensacola, was hung from the yard arm on the 10th instant, on a charge of having assaulted one of his offi-cres. A correspondent of the Army and Navy Chronicle, written from Pensacola that the the man was not hung, althou-very nearly so:--"The scaffold was rigged—the grave day, and coffin made—in fact every pre-paration perfect. At the appointed time shows the fore royal mast head of the frigate, a gun fired, the crews of all the ships mustered on deck, and a general or-der from the Commodore, relating to the melancholy spectacle, soon to take place, read to them. They were permitted to cluster upon the fore-castle and booms, to constant the toper coyal mast heaver by so the white cap, was observed, led out on the scaffold, rope adjuhtel, and the chaplain attending with his prayer book, to ease the poor fellow off handsomely in fuished, the marine officer was seen to able the better to witness the execu-tion. The man dressed in white, having fuished, the marine officer was soon known by a signal from the frigate, to be his par-fusited varant, cut which was supposed his death warrant, cut which was soon known by a signal from the frigate, to be his par-fuished, the marine officer was soon known by a signal from the frigate, to be his par-bacts crew of the other ships, but called outs, crew of the other ships, but called outs, crew of the other ships, but called outs and reason that Livingston's officer paration for the squadron, as it appeared boats' crew of the other ships, but called outs and the performance of the marine gend boats' crew of the other ships, but called in vain. "The yellow flag was then hauled down and the performance of the morning end-ed. The man was tremendously fright-ened, as you may readily imagine, and was in fact so completely paralyzed, that his pardon caused no more emotion, or perceptible change in his demeanor, than the reading of his sentence, which was none at all. It was some moments after he was led below before he could speak, or even make a noise with his tongue; and his first motion was to seize the bile, and kissing it, promised never to touch intox-icating drinks again." in vain
