in the school house where the polls were held, and the radical candidate, Franchere, was compelled to escape from a window in order to save his life. The radicals retired and the tories perceiving that they had no arms, went to a hay rack, broke it up, and provided clubs for those pof their own party who were destitute, and pursued the radicals, and upon overtaking them, commenced an indiscriminate attack; two men seated in a sleigh were felled with blows from clubs on the back part of the head. Many others were seriously injured. One in particular was knocked down by a blow across the back and he fell out of the road; his assailants passed on, and the man arose on his kness, when others came up—the Conadia begged for mercy, but his assailants immediately knocked him down again with clubs, and beat him afterwards till he was senseless! Among the assail ants were several of the military, dressed in citizens' cloths.

On Wednesday, the polls were again opened, and at noon the radical candidate was 120 ahead, notwithstanding the efforts of the tories to browbeat and force the radicals from voting. This number to se exasperated the terfes that a severe con his example.
