DMINISTRATOR'S NOTICIE.

From the Perry Freeman. "Among these new Stars, one, a little lower than that of Bethlehem, has just ep-p. ar d above the horizon. It is the Star of WOMAN'S INFLUENCE."

Wisd m comesslowly—there are t Which like a distant star, Shall meet the gaze of erring man, And lure him from afar

From the dark portals of the grave, By vice and folly led, The power of woman still can save When all but hope has fled.

Strong in her weakness, woman's pow O'er the hard heart of man, Hus not yet reached its glorious hour, Nor finished half its plan: The star-light of an orient morn, By woman's influence given, O'er the dark paths of vice and sin, Can make of earth a heaven.

And what shall man be, when her light

And what shall man be, when her light Shall beam upon his soul, And lead him from that starless night Which mocked his own control ? Shall shine upon his troubled path, And gild his dreams of pence?— Shall stay the rising floods of wrath. And bid his sorrows cease ?

Ave, what shall man be, when her love Which parts not at the grave, To his unfeeling heart shall prove It has the power to save; And on his fainting spirit fall, Like dew upon the flower^{*} And days of peace and joys recall, In that lone dismal hour?

L fon the couch of guilt and woe,

I. I on the couch of guilt and woe, A human form is there; Without a hope on earth below, Or e'en the sinner's prayer! And close beside that lonely bed, Unaw'd Byspain or strife, By pure affection's fervor led, Is seen the faithful wife!

From the first moment when she gave

From the first moment when she gave Her young and trusting heart, To him who held the power to save, And never more to part— Till, when beside that couch of pain. She held his throbbing brow And knew she minister'd in vain; Nor did she falter now.

Her heart ne'er thought, her lip ne'er spoke One word of ill or blame; Nor in his darken'd soul awoke

Repress'd resentment's flame: Repress'd resentment's flame: Tho' the world wrong'd him, tho' his na H d felt detractions power, --H r love clung closer in his shame--Grew warmer in that hour,

When friends forsook, and hate pursu'd,

When friends forsook, and hate pursu'd And love had fied afar; Her angel spirit, unsubdu'd, Shone like a lovely star, And e'er his pathway shed the beams Of hope and happier hours; And give him back the golden dreams He felt in youth's bright bowers.

In the deep midnight of the mind,

When reason leaves her throne, And man, bereft of hope must meet His naked heart alone;

- And stretch'd upon a dying bed To struggle with dispair; Tho' ev'ry earthly friend has fled, Fond woman still is there.
- O woman! woman! wealth may buy
- O woman! woman! wealth may buy Man's fealty, but not thine; Thy yows are r gister'd on high, Upon a deathless shrine, And when the final hour shall come,-And Time's last pare is seal'd--Thy spirit finds its fature home--Thy worth shall be reveal'd.
