Death of Commodore Hull.

The fears which we expressed last week, that Commodore Isaac Hull was in a dangerous situation, have been fully realized. That veteran officer died yesterday morning, at his residence, in Portland, Me., meeting death as the natural and expected close of a long and useful life.

The name of Hull is identified with the honor and glory of his nation. His skill saved the Constitution, early in the last war, when chased by a British fleet; and shortly afterwards, he commenced that series of naval victories which gave character to the nation abroad. Those who recollect the gloom that hung upon the public mind, from defeats and disasters on the frontiers, will bear in mind the reviving influence of the victory of the Constitution over the Guerriere, achieved by Commodore Hull, and comprehend how much of gratitude is due to him for his brilliant success.

Commodore Hull was the third on the list of Post Captains—Commodore Barron and Commodore Stewart were before him. His commission bears date 23d April, 1806, one day after Commodore Stewart's.

Commodore Hull was, we believe, a native of Connecticut, where he married, and where he spent much of his time when not on public duty. He must have been about sixty eight years of age, though his personal appearance would have led to the belief that he was much younger.—U. S. Gazette.

Mr. Hunt, the celebrated preacher on Temperance, has been lecturing in Mifflintown, Pa.; and the Times of that place is highly delighted with him. We also learn by a letter from Lewistown, that he is in that place, and created quite a sensation by his peculiar style of lecturing. In one of his lectures he attacked the intemperate extent to which the ladies carried their bustling habits. Turning his back, which is humped, around to the audience, he remarked that had nature granted the ladies such a bustle as he had, they would think it neither a beauty nor a convenience, and be more anxious to do without them than they now are, to put them on! Good, for "old Hunt!"—Pa. Telegraph.

SHERIFF PORTER.—The Philadelphia Inquirer of Friday says—"A rule has been granted in the Court of Nisi Prius, by Judge Kennedy, to show cause why Wm. A. PORTER, the present incumbent of the office of Sheriff, should exercise the duties of said office. This is all right.—The question will now be settled one way or the other."
