The Effects of the Tariff.

By the Report from the Secretary of the Treasury (published in another part of this paper) it will be seen that our exports during the last quarter of the year 1842, exceed the imports by upwards of Thirteen Millions of dollars. The specie imported during the same period exceeds three millions. Who can doubt that this is the effect of the Traiff law enacted by the late Congress? And yet this very Tariff, which has produced so great a balance of trade in our favor, is in danger of heing repealed if the Locofoco party gain the ascendency in the next Congress.—

Repeal was threatened when the Whig majority passed it, and many of the Lo majority passed it, and many of the Lo cofocos stand pledged to its repeal as soon as they get the power.

Every farmer, and every man of busi-ness knows that in order to prosper, his income must be greater than his expendi-tures—that he must sell more than he buys. And just so it is with the Government. The Tariff has already effected a three vogo on for a new years, and by a wholesome circulating medium, it would soon restore prosperity to the country.—
But if the "free trade" and "hard money" doctrine is to prevail, we will see, by dear bought experience, that the trade as well as the money will all be on one side and that against us.

evidence of good character, and was retained as pastor of the church in that place. Some time afterwards, information was received to the effect that he had been expelled from the church in Connecticut, and that he was not an unmarried man, as he had represented himself.—
Upon this information he was immediately silenced as a preacher; yet several families in Wysox and vicinity believed him innocent of the charges preferred against him, and permitted his visits. Among these was a respectable family of the name of Woodburn. Mr. Woodburn—his wife—and a lovely daughter—comprising the whole family—had been converted under Mr. Lefsvor's preaching. He

The sevantion of the six not th under the garb of entistianity, stowy but surely set a snare for the daughter, and she became the seducer's victim. On the 18th of February she gave birth to a daughter. Mr. Woodburn, who was ill at the time, on receiving information of the disgrace of his family, heaved one deep groan, and expired immediately. It is re-ported that the wife and the daughter are both deranged, and the child died a few days after its birth. The inhuman creature who caused all this wretchedness is lodged in prison to await his trial. As may naturally be supposed, this case has produced much excitement in the neighorhood of the parties most deeply concerned.

> THE RED RIVER FLOOD .- The Souththe RED RIVER FLOOD.—The South-ern papers give a melancholy account of the loss of life and property by the rise in the Red River. Amid the general dis-tress, Capt. Crooks, of the steamboat Hun ter, proceeded to Mill creek, and rendered the loss of life and property by the rise in the Red River. Amid the general distress, Capt. Crooks, of the steamboat Hunter, proceeded to Mill creek, and rendered the sufferers every possible succor in his power, oing from place to place picking up the arvivers from the tops of houses are trees; thus rescuing from a watery gave seventy-five or a hundred persons. Some were necessarily left to perish in the can and timber, as there was no possible by of reaching them—their cries often bog heard above the noise of the elembt. Six families of Indians, 14 miles the side of Jonesborough, are reported le, and Col. Milam. of Kentucky, with a ty, his niece, and a Mr. McKinney, Exports of foreign goods le, and Col.
