Resumption.

The Carlisle Bank, Chambersburg Bank and Wyoming Bank of Wilkesbarre have resumed Specie payments.

The Hon. JOHN M. NILES Senator elect from the State of Connecticut, is now in the Insane Hospital, at Utica, N. Y. Should Mr. N.'s mind continue in the present distressed condition, the probability is that a Senator will be chosen at the next session of the Legislature.

P. S. The Boston Post contradicts the above rumor. Mr. N. is at the hospital, but not insane.

Another Monument.

A MOVEMENT is about to be built in New York city, to the memory of Washington, which bids fair to be the greatest and most magnificent pile in the world. The whole cost will not exceed half a million of dollars. It is to be 425 feet high, being 205 feet higher than the Bunker Hill Monument.

ALARM OF FIRE.—Our citizens were startled from their slumbers about 2 o'clock on Thursday morning last, by the cry of fire; and those of them who were hard to rouse, were greeted on opening their eyes with the red glare of the destructive element, tingling all around. The light proceeded from a car on the side of the rail road, opposite Mulberry st., which some mischievous and unprincipled scamps had set on fire, for their own amusement, destroying the valuable property of some of their fellow citizens, for the sake of disturbing the rest of the others. It is much to be regretted that we have not a laylock for such chaps.—Beacon (Hol.) Light.

Flood at New-York.

An extraordinary and disastrous rain storm occurred at New-York, on Monday night, the 21st of August,—a small second edition, by all accounts, of the late one in Philadelphia. The quantity of rain which fell was over eleven inches; the streets presented the appearance of rivers; the cellars in the lowest parts of the city were all filled, and much merchandise destroyed; the New-Jersey Railroad trains were all interrupted by the immense accumulation of water on the tracks; the small bridges on Staten Island were nearly all washed away, and the roads broken up by the flood; much damage was done at Richmond, and the beautiful gardens on the hill-side washed away; and the shipping also sustained some damage.

IT IS REMOVED that Amos Kendall is to be Post Master General in place of Hon. C. A. Wickliff, who will go out as Minister to France. A fit subject for Captain Tyler's Cabinet.

CALVIN BLYTHE is spoken of by the "Kickapoo and Tyler too" papers as a candidate for Governor. The Judge is a good man, but his unfortunate connexion with the Porter and Tyler faction has sealed his fate politically.

Gov. PORTER has now over four hundred and fifty Aids-de-Camp. Almost every locofoco jack-ass in the State has been dubbed with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

JAMES G. BINNEY declines being the "nigger candidate" for President.

JAMES M. PORTER is now translated James Mutton Porter.

JOHN SMITH, has been nominated for the Legislature by the locofocos of Philadelphia county. We advise Col. Andrews the Clerk of the House to have some hundred extra seats provided at the opening of the next legislature, to accommodate the different claimants.

Gen. SAMUEL HAYS has been nominated by the Locos in the 22d Congressional District, composed of the counties of Venango, Mercer and Crawford. We rejoice that Morrow B. Lowry has not been indicted on the district.

The Germantown Telegraph states that the brothers McClenahan, have received a pardon from the Executive, and are at liberty.

Col. Thomas B. McElwee, long a representative of Bedford county in the Legislature of Pennsylvania, died at Bedford on the 22d of August.

DEATH OF HEUSTON IN A DUEL.—The duel between A. Labranche, member of Congress elect, and John Heuston, editor of the Baton Rouge Gazette, resulted in the death of the latter.

Huntingdon Female Seminary.

MA. CREMER.—By the invitation of the Instructress of this Seminary, I attended the examination of the Pupils of this humble yet excellent Institution, on Thursday last week; and it came forcibly to my mind as my duty to call the attention of the public to its merits; feeling confident, it needed but to be better known to receive a much more extensive encouragement.

I will not attempt, an essay on the subject of female education. Enough has already been written by able pens than mine, to convince every intelligent mind, that female influence, guides the destinies, not only of individuals but of nations; and that, that influence becomes more effectual, when education has awakened the latent energies, and refined the natural affection of woman. Inspiration has recorded these truths of the virtuous woman that—"her candle goeth not out by night"—"her tongue is the law of kindness"—"she eateth not the bread of idleness." It is sufficient for my purpose then, when I say, that in this Seminary the young Ladies are taught all those moral duties and precepts, as well as the various branches of Education; which are calculated to fit them for a brighter hope beyond the grave, and to fulfill their duties on earth, with the sterling virtues of life as their only purpose.

It was with more than ordinary pleasure, I found myself in that circle of gay, happy, and intelligent Misses of the Seminary, and we could not but say with Mrs. Hemans

"Unto them young life
Spreads out the treasures of its vernal years,
And if they weep—they weep far other tears
Than the cold world wrings forth. . . ."

and while I listened to their ready answers, during their examination; the thought pressed itself upon me, that unto them, with others of their years, would soon be committed the hopes and prospects of our fair and favored land. How important then that each, should use his means to secure the benefits of such instruction, to every daughter in the country.

Let me in a few words use my means to direct attention to this Seminary. MISS PHILLIPS, the Instructress, I hope will not think it flattery while I speak of her in the language of commendation and praise. There are but few, very few, of our most celebrated Female Institutions; which can boast a more accomplished, intelligent, competent, and successful teacher, than her who conducts this Seminary—few who "rule so well their own house"—few who win more of the affection and obedience of her pupils.—"Give her of the fruit of her hands, and let her own works praise her."

I listened for hours to the classes in French, History, Botany, Geography, Grammar, &c. &c., and their several compositions; and left them convinced that the teacher had cause to be proud of her pupils and the pupils, of their teacher. In all their exercises they gave evidence of the ability, untiring, and unabating attention of their teacher, to improve them in all those things which are calculated to make them useful members of Society.

A word more to parents, and I have done. Why do you not,—all who have daughters, embrace the present opportunity of having them placed under the care and instruction of an excellent teacher? To those in the country I would say, your daughters can find excellent boarding and care in the town.—It is not always that such an opportunity can be enjoyed—though the Institution may be continued, it is far from certain that the same commendation can be given to the teacher. It is not all who can win the love—secure the obedience—and impart to the pupil the knowledge she may herself possess, and are recommended by ability, accomplishment, virtue and piety. Embrace the present opportunity. Let your daughters be fitted to be more respected, and esteemed though after life,—make them intelligent, accomplished, and useful, and do not permit them to grow up, ignorant hoydens, to finish their ill-manners, and uselessness, by a few months at a fashionable Boarding School, where the squeamish follies and vanities of fashion supply the rare qualities of virtuous womanhood; and the store house of the mind is filled with the imagery of corrupt and corrupting fiction, instead of the wholesome, happy, but sober realities of life.

Great Fire.

A dreadful conflagration occurred at Sacketts Harbor, N. Y., on the morning of the 21st of August. An extra from the office of the Black River Journal, furnishes us with the particulars. The Sparks from a departing steamboat communicated fire to the storehouse of S. T. Hooker, and as the wind was very high at the time, the flames spread with fearful rapidity, enveloping soon the entire range as far east as the Steamboat Office. The fire soon crossed the street, destroying the Commercial Hotel and all the intermediate buildings between that and the Centre House, kept by A. Schuyler, which was saved. The brick building opposite the Commercial, occupied as a saddler's shop, was also destroyed, and all the buildings on both sides of Bayard street to the Presbyterian Church, which was also consumed.

A young man leaped from an upper story in the Commercial, and was considerably injured—both his legs were broken. The amount of property destroyed is estimated at about forty thousand dollars. It is believed that a very small portion of the property destroyed, was insured.

DEATH OF A STRANGER.—The Harrisburg Intelligencer says—"A stranger died at the house of Jacob Hachenberger, in Londonderry township, in Dauphin county, on the night of the 21st ult., under the following circumstances.—He was found on the farm of Mr. Hachenberger on the day above named, nearly exhausted from loss of blood, with which his clothes were completely saturated. It was supposed by those who found him that he had inflicted wounds upon himself with the intention of bleeding himself to death. A vein on his left arm was open. He gave no account of himself when found, but requested a decent burial. He was removed to the house of Mr. H., where he died that night, and was decently interred the next day.—Thirty-six dollars and fifty-seven cents in money, and a silver watch, a pair of spectacles and a pocket knife lying open by his side, were found with him. A letter was also found in his possession, directed to Richard Morgan, which is supposed to have been his name."

Balloon Ascension.

The following narrative of Mr. Wise's forty-second aerial voyage, we take from the Lancaster Union and Sentinel, of the 29th ult., to whose editor it was addressed. It will be found to possess much interest.

MR. EDITOR.—My trip on Saturday last, made from the city of Lancaster, was one that may in reality be called a pleasure excursion. The day, although somewhat rainy during the preliminary arrangements, became unusually fine by the time of starting.—2 o'clock. In about 10 minutes after I left Terra Firma, my altitude was 4,000 feet; at which height the prospect appears the most pleasing, as you can easily particularize the different objects displayed in the grand panoramic view below. Lancaster county appeared on this occasion unusually rich and animated; all nature appeared to be crying aloud for joy from beneath. Numerous and urgent were the hundreds of invitations that I received to alight; to many of which I responded by dropping overboard newspapers, regularly done up in wrappers, and mailed, per "Wise's Comet!" despite of the orders of the P. M. General to the contrary. I also kept up a conversation with the inhabitants, until I became fatigued from the loudness, necessary on my part, to be understood below. I find that sound reaches one more audibly upwards than downwards, in a clear atmosphere. When passing underneath clouds, I have always found the echo of my words, as distinctly uttered (and some times at intervals unusually long), as the original. After remaining in the air one hour and three minutes, I reached the earth with a long rope, by which the Balloon was towed to the house of Mr. Forney, on the Reading road, nine miles from Lancaster, where in the course of ten minutes, several hundred persons had congregated together.—A great portion of the assembled spectators took possession of the ropes hanging down from the car and moved me off, volens volens, to the village of Earlville, where I finally alighted, and partook of a real substantial Lancaster county supper.

During this voyage, I made particular observations in regard to the exhalation of the human system. I find that the action of the internal organs is augmented with the diminution of atmospheric pressure, and consequently followed by a rapid exhalation of the fluids of the body; this becomes very sensible to any part of the body on which the clothing is drawn tight to the skin; the sensation on any shaded part of the body is similar to that produced by blowing on it with a bellows; and in the sun it produces a painfully pricking sensation.—To this cause I must attribute the prevalence of that voraciousness of appetite and thirstiness, experienced by other aeronauts as well as myself which must naturally follow a violent healthy action of the body.

I have of late years frequently spoken of the benefits that might be derived by invalids, laboring under Chronic Diseases, in ascending with experienced and skillful aeronauts. Everything in such an excursion would conspire to healthy action; the grandeur of the scenery must invigorate the mental faculties, while a correspondent physical action will ensue from the diminished pressure of the atmosphere, and the salubrity of the climate entirely above the reach of noxious vapors. I do not pretend to say that the upper regions are better calculated to sustain a due action of the animal functions, for nature has in her general course destined us for the earth. But in all such cases of debility from Chronic Diseases, I believe that the pure upper regions of the atmosphere will do more good to the patient, than the virtue of any internal medicines. This might appear paradoxical, when I say that my frequent ascensions have somewhat debilitated my bodily strength. It has also created in me a peculiar nervous temperament,—a very acute sense of smelling, hearing and touching; these to such a degree, that they have almost become a source of annoyance. It must however be borne in mind, that in this case, as in many others, that too much of a good thing is good for nothing, and may be considered as giving the machinery of the human frame too much of the ris vitæ, under a diminished atmospheric pressure, when the health of the individual is good and strong. I have seriously thought of constructing a balloon for invalids, and should I bring it into practical operation, I feel so sanguine of its usefulness, that I would undertake to cure Dyspepsy on the conditions of no cure no pay.

Very respectfully your most obedient servant,
JNO. WISE.

Beauties of Locofocoism!

The Clinton County Whig, of the 26th ult. says: On Monday evening, (the 21st ult.) our usually quiet town was the scene of Locofoco uproar and confusion. The Locofoco Press, at that time in the hands of the anti-Porter portion of the party, was very unceremoniously taken possession of by Porter's friends, and forcibly carried off. A very large number of persons were collected together at the scene of action to witness the sport—and rare sport it proved to be. The excitement was intense—and when the contending factions came together in friend Seely's sanctum, a scene ensued that beggars all description. Confusion, disorder and violence reigned supreme for a time. Some were engaged in fighting—others in upsetting the types and scattering them over the floor in most beautiful confusion—while others vented their indignation in loud and bitter threatenings and denunciations. However, the Porter party succeeded in carrying off the Press, and great was their rejoicing thereat. The slumbers of our citizens were disturbed by the firing of Cannons and the shouts of the victors, which continued until a late hour of the night. This is modern "Democracy!" alias Porter Locofocoism! What think you of it?

New use of the Tomato.

The Cheraw (Ga.) Gazette states that, in addition to the advantages of the Tomatoes for table use, the vine is of great value as food for cattle, especially cows. It is stated that a cow fed on Tomato vines, will give more milk, and yield butter of a finer flavor, and in greater abundance, than any other food ever tried. It is thought too, that more good food for cattle and less expense, can be raised from a given quantity of ground planted in Tomatoes, than from any other vegetable known in a Southern country.

SUICIDE.

The Pennsylvania Telegraph of the 30th ult. says: "Late in the afternoon of Monday the 21st ult. Mr. Jacob Hachenberger, a farmer of Londonderry township, in this county, discovered a man on his farm, about 300 yards below the railroad bridge over the Conewago creek, very bloody, much swollen, and apparently near dead. With the assistance of some neighbors, Mr. H. had him removed to his house, about half a mile from where the man was found: a physician was sent for and restoratives applied, but he died that night about twelve o'clock.

The man was sensible when found, but refused to state who he was or where he came from. He was evidently an Irishman, and repeatedly said that he had neither wife nor children, nor any connections. He was about fifty years old, bald, and the hair that was on his head was black. He was rather short, but stout built, and was dressed in a suit of blue clothes, with a checked vest, black silk hat and calf-skin boots. He had been let out of the afternoon train of cars going east, at his request, about half a mile north of the bridge, and his trunk was taken out at the railroad hotel at Elizabethtown, about 4 miles below the bridge, which, on being opened, was found to contain a considerable quantity of various kinds of clothing, a letter addressed to RICHARD MORGAN, New York, which is supposed to have been the name of the deceased. When found there lay by him a three bladed knife open, with which it is presumed he cut the vein in his left arm, which was severed; and from his swelling it was supposed that he had also taken arsenic. On being questioned, he stated that no one had injured him, but that he wanted to kill himself, for he did not wish to live. The sum of $36 52, a silver watch and spectacles were found on his person, which, together with his clothing, was entered in a schedule in the presence of the neighbors of Mr. Hachenberger; and the body was decently interred, without the holding of an inquest, from the circumstance that Esqr. Lynch, the only Justice of the Peace in Londonderry township, and Esqr. Walborn, of Middletown, were both attending Court at Harrisburg. The other Justice at Middletown declining to act, upon application being made to him.

The Warren (N. J.) Murder.

The Pennsylvania Telegraph of the 30th ult. says:—"Our readers cannot have forgotten the extraordinary case of murder, a few months since, in Warren county, N. J., when a whole family, consisting of John B. Parke, his sister and her husband, John Castner, and their child, at the hour of midnight, were barbarously butchered by the hand of the assassin; and a lad, named Jesse Force, living with Mr. Castner, horribly wounded and doubtless left for dead. Circumstances seemed to fix suspicion upon Joseph Carter, Jun., who married a niece of Mr. Parke. He was arrested, examined and committed, and his trial commenced last week at Belvidere, in the county where the murder was perpetrated. The evidence against him is understood to be entirely circumstantial. At the opening of the trial, on Monday, the prosecutor of the county recapitulated the facts which will appear evidence. A correspondent of the Newark advertiser gives some of the points against the prisoner. "A strong fact is that Carter, before the murder, was very poor, there being several executions against him in the hands of the constables, to whom he declared that he had no money, and that he did not know where to get any, as he tried to borrow frequently; but the next day after the murder he paid one constable forty-five dollars in Easton and Belvidere money, (such as Mr. Parke was known to have in his possession,) and within a few days after he had paid some three or four other executions, amounting to near a hundred dollars; and at the funeral of the murdered family, he enquired of a person, who had his notes for fifty dollars, if he had them with him, for he could pay a part of them. Another ground taken was, that in his examination he stated that he first heard of the murder on Tuesday morning, between 8 and 9 o'clock—whereas he wrote a letter to a gentleman near Easton bridge, with whom he had an appointment, saying that he could not fulfil it on account of the murder, which letter he left at the village of Washington, to be sent very soon after sunrise on Tuesday, and before the news of the murder had reached there. There are five indictments against him. The one upon which he is now being tried is that for the murder of Castner. There are some fifty witnesses to be examined on the part of the State, and the trial will doubtless occupy a week or more."

Riot in Boston.

We learn from the Boston papers of the 28th ult., that a serious riot occurred in Ann street, Boston, about 5 o'clock on Sunday evening. It appears that a boatswain's mate of the U. S. ship Ohio, was passing into Ann street from the North Square in company with the boatswain of the U. S. Revenue Cutter Hamilton, and when they arrived opposite Henry Foreman's boarding house, the side walk was so crowded with colored men, that they were unable to pass without walking in the street. The boatswain's mate of the U. S. ship Ohio, pushing the men not to block the sidewalk, when pushing and fighting commenced, and the boatswain of the cutter was stabbed in several places. Other sailors came up, and the fight became general, and Foreman, the keeper of the house, was badly hurt. The first policemen on the ground found the whites driven from the house, a large party attacking it from the street, by throwing clubs and stones at the windows, and the fight going on about the doors, in the midst of a crowd of several hundred persons.—He caused the bell of Mr. Robbin's church to be rung as if for fire, and the firemen, who immediately collected, formed an important assistance to the police in suppressing the disturbance. Mr. Marshal Blake and numerous officers were seen on the field, and the crowd were rapidly dispersed and the streets about Foreman's house cleared. The boatswain of the cutter was the only man who was stabbed, although several persons were more or less injured.

Death of an Editor.

The New Orleans papers announce the death of J. C. de St. Romes, Esq., one of the oldest and most respected inhabitants of New Orleans. He was for thirty years proprietor of the Courier, which he only recently disposed of. He served the country in the late war, and was in command of a company in 1814-15, under Gen. Jackson, to whom he was personally and politically attached to the time of his death.

At Mill-Creek on the 23d ult. after a short but severe illness, WILLIAM R. HAMPSON, aged 31 years and 10 months.

[COMMUNICATED.] The deceased has left a large and respectable connection of relatives who sadly deplore his loss. In the death of this young man, his parents have lost a dutiful and loved son, and society a worthy and respected member.

"None knew him but to love him,
None nam'd him but to praise."

Though he has been taken from this stage of probation, in the zenith of his usefulness, to what bourn from whence no traveller returns," yet it is consolatory to his relatives and confiding friends, to know, that he died not as the wicked thief: he had that friend who sticketh closer than a brother, whom he relied solely upon to accompany him through the dark valley and the shadow of death. Up to the time of his death, although he suffered excruciatingly, he bore it all as the christian—patiently.

PHILADELPHIA.

Respectfully invites the attention of those who buy for cash (as he sells on no other terms) to his very large and splendid assortment of Hardware and Cutlery, just received from England, in addition to his usual stock of Foreign and Domestic Hardware, of the best quality.

He earnestly requests them to examine elsewhere, and after ascertaining the lowest prices at which they can purchase, then to call at my establishment, the distance and uninfluenced by the remarks of interested dealers in the same business, and enquire the prices of the same goods at his store.

It is his fixed determination, and he wishes it so distinctly understood, not only to sell as cheap as any other store, but positively cheaper.

His arrangements are so made, he believes, as to enable him to do so, and yet make a small profit. At all events, cash purchasers will find it their interest to call.
