BY AN IRISHMAN.

Lady C. was an extravagant woman, but Lady C. was an extravagant woman. She was still single, though rather passed extreme youth. Like most pretty females she had looked too high, had estimated her own loveliness too dearly, and now she refused to believe that she was not as charming as ever. So no wonder she still remained unmarried.

Lady C. was about five thousand pounds.

charming as ever. So no wonder she sill remained unmarried.

Lady C. had about five thousand pounds in the world. She owed about forty thousand pounds; so with all her wit and beauty, she got into the fleet, and was likely to remain there.

Now, in the time I speak of every lady had her head dressed by a barber; and the barber of the Fleet was the handsomest barber in the city of London. Pat Philan was a great admirer of the fair sex; and where's the wonder? Sure Pat was an Irishman. It was one very fine morning when Philan was dressing her captivating head, that her ladyship took it into her mind to talk to him, and Pat was well pleased, for Lady C.'s teeth were the whitest and her smile the brightest in the world.

"So you are not married, Pat," says she. "Not an inch! your honor's ladyship," says he. "And wouldn't you like to be married?"

"And wouldn't you like to be married?"
again askes she.
"Would a duck swim!"
"Is there any one you'd prefer?"
"May be madam," says he, "you niver heard of Kathleen O'Rielly, down beyant Doneraile? Her father's cousin to O'-Donaghew, who's own steward to Mr. Murphy, the under-agent to my Lord Kingstown, and?"

"Hush!" says she, "sure I don't want to know who she is. But would she have you if you asked her?"
"Ah thin, I'd only wish I'd be after trying that same."
"And why don't you!"
"Sure Pm too poor." And Philan heaved a prodigious sigh.
"Would you like to be rich?"
"Does a dog bark?"
"If I make you rich will you do as I tell you!"
Mille murthers! yer honor, don't be tantaktiva a noarber?"

"If I make you rich will you do as I tell you?"

Mille murthers! yer honor, don't be tantalizing a poor boy,"

"Indeed I'm not," said Lady U. So listen. How would you like to marry me!"

Ah, thin, my lady, I believe the King of Russia himself would be proud to do that same, lave alone poor Pat Philan."

"Well, Philan, If you'll marry, me to-morrow I'll give you a thousand pounds."

"Oh! whilabaloo! whilabaloo! sure I'm mad, or eachanted by the good prople," roared Pat, dancing round the room.

"But there are conditions," says Lady C. "After the first day of our nuptials you must never see me again nor claim me for your wife."

"I don' like that," says Pat, for he had been ogling her ladyship most desperately.

"But remember Kathleen O'Reilly.—With the money I'll give, you may go and marry her."

"That's thrue," says he. "But thin the bigamy!"

"I'll never appear against you," says

"Hars thrue," says he. "But thin the bigamy!"
"I'll never appear against you," says her ladyship. Only remember you must take an eath never to call me your wife after to-morrow, and never to go telling all the story."
"Bit of a word I'll ever say."
"Well, then," says she, "there is ten pounds. Go and buy a license and leave the rest to me," and then she explained to him where he was to go, and, when he was to come, and all that.

The next day Pat was true to his appointment, and found two gentlemen already with her ladyship.

ment, and found two gentlemen already with her ladyship.

"Have you got the license?" says she. Here it is, my lady," says he, and he gave it to her. She handed it to one of gentlemen, who viewed it attentively. Then, calling in her two servants she turned to the gentleman that was reading. "Perform the ceremony," says she.

she turned to the gentleman that was reading. "Perform the ceremony," says she.

And sure enough in ten minutea Pat Philan was the husband, the legal husband, of the lovely Lady C.

"That will do," says she to her new hosband, as he gave her a hearty kiss; "that'll do. Now, sir, give me my marriage certificate." The old gentleman did so, and, bowing respectfully to the five-pound note she gave him, he retired with his clerk, for sure enough I forgot to tell you that he was a parson.

"Go and bring me the warden," says my lady to one of her servants.

"Yes, my lady," says she; and presently the warden appeared.

"Will you be good enough," says Lady C., in a voice that would call a bird from off a tree; "will you be good enough to send and fetch a hackney-coach? I wish to leave this place immediately."

"Your ladyship forgets," said he, "that you must pay me forty thousand pounds before I can let you go."

"I am a married woman. You can detain my husband, but not me." And she smiled at Philan, who began rather to dislike the appearance of things.

"Parden me, my lady, it is well known you are single,"

"I tell you I am married;"

"Where's your husband?"

"There, sir." and she pointed to the astonished baiber; "there he stands.—Here is my marriage certificate which you gan peruse at your leisure. My servants yonder were witnesses of the ceremony. Now defain me, sir, one instant at your peril."

The warden was dumb-founded, and no wouder. Poor Philan would have sooken but neither would let him. The lawyer below was consulted. The result was rovident. In half an hour Lady C. was free, and Pat Philan, her legitimate husband, a prisoner for debt, to the amount of forty thousand pounds.

Well, sir, for some time Pat thought he was in a dream, and the creditors thought they were still worse. The following day they held a meeting, and, finding how they had been tricked, swore they'd detain poor Pat forever. But as they knew he had nothing, and wouldn't feel much shame in going through the Insolvent Court, they made the best of a bad bargain and let him out.

Well, you must know, aboot a week after this. Paddy Philan was sitting by his little fire and thinking over the wonderful things he had seen, when, as sure as death, the postman brought him a letter, the first he had ever received, which he it took over to a friend of his, one Ryan, a fruit seller, because you see he was no great hand at reading writing, to decipher for him. It ran thus:

"Go to Doneraile and marry Kathleen O'Reilly. The instant the knot is tied, I will fulfil my promise of making you comfortable for life. But, as you value your life and liberty, never breathe a syllable of what has passed. Remember you are in my power. The money will be paid to you directly when you enclose me your marriage certificate, I send you £50 for present expenses.

Oh, happy Paddy. Didn't he start next day for Cork, and didn't he marry Kathleen and touch a thousand pounds' By the powers he did. And, what is more, the took a cottage, which perhaps you know, not a hundred miles from Bruffin, in the county of Limerick; and, i'faix, he forgot his first wife clean and entirely, and never told any one but myself, under a promise of secrecy, the story of his "Fleet Marriage."

STATE CONVENTION.

The members of the Democratic Harrison party of Pennsylvania—those who unite with them as allies in the achievement of that glorious political victory in 1840, the result of which was the election of that pure, venerated and much lamented patriot, General William Henry Harrison, to the Presidental Chair—those who have hitherto consistently battled for "the Supremacy of the Laws," who are opposed to all mysteries, whether of the Government or otherwise, which are inaccessible to the public eye—those who are opposed to favored classes and monopolies either of office or power—those who are tired of experiments upon the Commerce, Manufactures and currency of the country, and all others who are convinced of the necessity of so reforming the abuses of the State and National Government as to secure their prompt, faithful, conomical and energetic administration, with a strict accountability to the people, on the part of those by whom they are administered, are requested by the State Central Committee of the Democatic Harrison party, to meet in their several Counties and Districts, and in conformity with former usages, to elect Delegates in proportion to the number of Senators and Representatives in the State Legislature from such Counties and Districts to a Strarz Conventron to be held at Harrisburg on MONDAY, the 4th day of MARCH next, at 12 o'clock, M., to nominate a suitable candidate or Governor, to be supported by the friends of good order at their next General Election, and to do such other acts and things as may be deemed necessary. How important it is that you commence without loss of time with BRANDRETH PILLS. They mildly but surely remove all impurities from the blood, and no case of suckness can effect the human frame, that these celebrated Pills do not relieve as much as medicine can do. Colds and Cougas are more benefitted by the Brandreth Pills than by Lozenges and Candies. Very well, perhaps, as palliatives, but worth nothing as ERADICATORS of diseases from the human system. The Brandreth Pills cure; they do not merely relieve, they cure. Diseases, whether chronic or recent, infectious or etherwise, will certainly be cured by the use of these all-sufficient Pills.

About three years this winter she was taken with a pain in her acle; which soon became very much inflamed, and swollen, so much that we became much alarmed, and sent for the doctor. During his attendance the pain and swelling increased to an alarming degree, and in three weeks from its first commencing it became a running sore. She could get no rest at night the pain was segreat. Our first doctor attended her for sizemonths, and she received no benefit whatever, the pain growing worse and the sore larger all the time. He said lift was healed up it would be her death, but he appeared to be at a loss how to proceed, and my poor wife still continued to suffer the most terrible tortures. We therefore sought other sid, in a Botannical doctor, who said when he first saw it that he could soon cure the sore larger all the time.
