The Shoemaker and the Tariff.

The New York Sun states that the old saying, " shoemaker stick to your last," is about being verified in the shoemakers protesting against any alter ation being made to the Tariff, by which their dis tinct interest may be affected. It is supposed that there are not less than 150,000 journeymen shoemakers in the United States—quite an army, and more-over, 30,000 females who are employed in binding shoes. We must confess, numerically speaking, that this is an interest requiring great consideration, and we might add protection. It appears, however, that the free trade papers are calling for a reduction of the duty on shoes, and the shoemakers are quite alarmed, declaring that they cannot compete with French shoemakers who receive but forty cents per day, as the highest wages; and, moreover, they say that a mechanic's dinner in France is a piece of -an apple-a pear-and a pennyworth of brandy.

Printers' Investigation.

The Clay Bugle says the Printers' Investigation is progressing slowly. From testimony clicited it supports to the confirmation of the confirmation est to the amount of $3000—and the Pennsylvania Telegraph to the amount of $2500. These arrangements were entered into amongst the printers themselves, but it has not appeared that any member of the Legislature bribed, or in any ay unduly influenced to cast his vote for Mr. M'-inley. There is thus far, therefore, no fraud shown, as alleged in the Governor's message. The transaction was a legitimate business operation, and unless it can be shown that undue influences operated upon the members, the contract with Mr. M'Kinley, on the part of the State, is unques bly binding and cannot be annulled.

Gen. James Irvin.

The Perry Freeman says:-We observe that the Hon. James Irvin is rapidly gaining the affections of the Whigs in this State—he has long had their full confidence, and what is the beauty of the whole matter, has richly deserved it. He is now, perhaps, the most prominent candidate for Governor, since the positive declination of Mr. M'Kennan, and every day is developing the hold his services in his country's cause have upon the minds of the masses of the Whigs. He is, it is admitted on all hands, a gentleman of great moral worth, whose integrity no one who knows him pretends to question. peceive recently that several counties that have appointed delegates to the 4th of March Convention, have instructed them to support Gen. Irvin as the candidate for Governor. That he is a strong man admits of not the shadow of a doubt. He has signahzed himself in Congress by his able, persevering advocacy of the Tariff. His talents, though not of the most brilliant character, are highly suitable for the office of the Executive, being respectable, useful, solid, comprehensive—just the kind a statesman should possess.

Gen. Irvin and the Tariff.

The Washington correspondent of the Philadel-phia Forum notices memorials sent to Congress from New York, by agents of the British importing houses; and after correcting some of their most glaring inaccuracies by statistics relating to hard-ware, concludes with the following paragraph.

I have a great quantity of most valable informa-tion on similar subjects, which I hope soon to lay before you, in proof that protection lowers prices.— I glean this from the extensive correspondence of Hon. James Invirs, of your State, whose zeal in defence of the Tariff, is second to that of no men. defence of the Tariff, is second to that of no men living. Happy will it be for Pennsylvania, if the movements of his friends should succeed in placing in the Governor's chair, a gentleman whose feelings are so eminently Pennsylvanian, and whose cuties.

to select the most suitable man.

The recent vote of the Pennsylvania Delegation in Congress, against disturbing the existing Tariff, must be viewed as a remarkable indication of the popular sense of Pennsylvania in favor of the protective policy of the country. It is, therefore, of the first importance, to select for the Executive office a man distinguished for his adherance to, and advocacy of, the tariff principle, and whose character and abilities are such as will command the confidence of men of all parties, opposed to the doctrines of free trade.

A correspondent of the Daily Forum of the 26th inst., discourses as follows:—

Mr. Entron:—It is a gratifying circumstance, and certaily complimentary to the Whig party, and the principles they avow, that they are enabled to offer for consideration the names of many gentlemen as eminently fitted to occupy the gubernatorial chair—no one has a more high opinion of the candidate named by your correspondent 'Penn, Jr.' in your paper of yesterday, than I have, yet I fear Mr. Toland's merits are not so generally known throughout our Commonwealth as they deserve to be.

Permit me to name a gentleman who, possessing all the requisite qualifications our candidate should have, has unbounded popularity in the counties bordering the Susquehannah river, as well as in western Pennsylvania, and who is sufficiently well known in the eastern part of the State, to ensure him the entire vote of the party—I allude the Hon. James Invix, of Centre county. I perceive your in the 11 is gent correspondent, 'Harvy Birch,' in a recent letter from Washington, speaks in just terms of his labors in Congress relative to the Tariff, of which 'Peidily levien' derivative our 'inends that Gen. Irvin is the most popular candidate the Whigs can nominate.

Reduction of Postage.

Reduction of Postage.

This subject is now occupying a large share of public attention in many of our large cities, and in fact, throughout the country generally. To those who have much business to transact through the Post Office, the present exorbitant rates of postage are highly oppressive indeed. They are the more insufferable because altogether unnecessary, as it is reduced to an almost moral certainty, that a reduction of one half or three fourths from present rates, would increase the revenue of the Past Office he who would increase the revenue of the Post Office by the additional matter that would be transmitted through Major Noah, in a late number of his Messenger, thus illustrates the oppressive tendency of the present rates of postage, which he follows up in his usual pithy style of reasoning.

PEDITICTION OF POSTAGE.

REDUCTION OF POSTAGE.

REDUCTION OF POSTAGE.

'What are you waiting for, my poor woman,' said a kind citizen to a sickly-looking creature who for three successive mornings stood looking wistfully towards the Post Office windows.

'Sir,' said she, 'I have a letter in the office from my husband in Wiskonsim—the postage is twenty-five cents and I have only ten cents to pay for it.'

'The difference was charitably made up and she got her letter. Is this a novel case? Not so, it daily occurs among the poorer classes. Why is not a ten cent piece sufficient postage for the tletter?

'Because,' says the Government, 'we cannot make a revenue out of it.'

'Make revenue, what right have you to lax 'the make a revenue out of it.'

'Make revenue, what right have you to lax the people for revenue, when the people have already conveyed to you more revenue than is required with proper economy, to defray the expenses of the nation! Make revenue! How much do you make by the navy! or by the army! or out of the services of the public officers!'
'Oh! nothing; we pay their expenses.'
'Then why not pay for the transportation of the smails!'

"Then why not perform mails?"

'Why, because, that is a public conveyance, and the public must pay for it."

'Do you, who are called public servants, pay for your letters?"

'Oh! no—we are privileged; our letters are franked."

franked.'

'So, so, then, it is free postage for the Government and high postage to the people.'

I tell you what my friends, it is high time that the people should assert their right as sovereigns—for their representatives seem to forget the fact. It has been asked, but never answered, why are the people to be severely taxed for the Post Office department, when the other departments are paid out of the people's money! The people by this high postage tax pay for tons of free letters and free packages. If franking was abolished, or restricted, the expenses of transporting the mail would be so reduced.
