Democratic Harrison STATE CONVENTION.

The members of the Democratic Harrison party of Pennsylvania—those who unite with them as allies in the achievement of that glorious political victory in 1840, the result of which was the election of that pure, virtuous and much lamented patriot, GENERAL WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON, to the Presidential Chair—those who have hitherto consistently battled for "the Supremacy of the Laws," who are opposed to all mysteries, whether of the Government or otherwise, which are inaccessible to the public eye—those who are opposed to favored classes and monopolies either of office or power—those who are tired of experiments upon the Commerce, Manufactures and currency of the country, and all others who are convinced of the necessity of reforming the abuses of the State and National Government as to secure their prompt, faithful, economical and energetic administration, with a strict accountability to the people, on the part of those by whom they are administered, are requested by the State Central Committee of the Democratic Harrison party, to meet in their several Counties and Districts, and in conformity with former usages, to elect Delegates in proportion to the number of Senators and Representatives in the State Legislature from such Counties and Districts to a STATE CONVENTION to be held at Harrisburg on MONDAY, the 4th day of MARCH next, at 12 o'clock, P. M., to nominate a suitable candidate or Governor, to be supported by the friends of good order at their next General Election, and to do such other acts and things as may be deemed necessary. The several County Committees will be careful to give the proper notices in their respective counties.

Shocking Murder.

A most diabolical murder was committed in Madison Parish, Mississippi, about thirty miles from Vicksburg, a short time since. The story is told in the Vicksburg papers of the 22d ult.

It seems a Mr. Wilkins had threatened to shoot a mule belonging to a man named Watley, who was the overseer of William Cochran, Esq. Some days ago Watley got his gun, ordered two negroes to accompany, and proceeded to Wilkins' house. He inquired of Mrs. Wilkins if her husband was in the house, and was informed that he was in a certain field. Watley immediately went there, called Wilkins to the fence, shot him down, commanding his negroes to carry the corpse to the house of the murdered man, and with the effrontery of a demon, coolly opened the gate himself to give them entrance into the yard. He has since decamped.

A STREET FIGHT AT WASHINGTON.—The Washington Standard of Saturday says:—A fracas occurred on yesterday near the railroad depot, in which a Mr. Fowler, reporter for the Globe, and a Mr. Hart, a correspondent of the New York Evening Post, with some two or three others, whose names we could not hear, participated. Knives were drawn and used, too, as it would seem from the appearance of the combatants after the affair; but nothing serious resulted from it. We have not learned whether the police have discharged their duty in the arrest of these disturbers of the public peace.

The Clay Trumpet says:—"There are two kinds of Johnson men sprinkling over Pennsylvania—whole hog Johnson men and Van Buren Johnson men. One portion determined that he shall run on his own hook for the Presidency, the other making him the tail to the Van Buren kite.—The Colonel is beyond question far more popular with the Locofocos than Mr. Van Buren, yet he will be compelled to be satisfied with the Vice Presidency or nothing. The great guns of the party have settled the nomination on the Kinderhook Magician, and there is no help for Col. Dick, though he did kill Tecumseh."

Mr. CLAY.—Gen. Duff Green says:—"It is assumed by the partisans of Mr. Van Buren that he will be nominated by the Baltimore Convention.—If so, no sane person can doubt the election of Mr. Clay, and he will be elected because it is impossible to rally the Democratic party in support of Mr. Van Buren, whose nomination will have been produced by a combination of political managers, organized in the large states of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Virginia, for the purpose of seizing upon, and distributing among themselves the patronage of the Government."

No NOBLES OF IT.—A smart young student of Anatomy remarked, in the hearing of his sister, that the reason there are so many old maids in the world, is all owing to their tight lacing—which so hardens their hearts as to make them impenetrable to the shafts of Cupid.

And the reason there are so many old bachelors, retorted the sister, is because of their tight cravatting—they can't get on their knees to declare their passion.

Now that the cause of one of our worst social evils is made known, we hope that prompt measures will be taken to remedy it. Let stays and straps be forthwith discarded, and we doubt not that in a short time old maids and bachelors will be "rara avis."

The Hon. Alexander Porter, one of the U. S. Senators from the State of Louisiana, died on the 26th ultimo, at his residence in that State. He was a high minded, honorable man.

Gen. James Irvin.

An article appeared recently in the Pennsylvania Telegraph, over the signature of "Old Mifflin," making a very ungenerous and uncalled for attack upon Gen. James Irvin of Centre county, who is favorably spoken of in various sections of the State as the Democratic Whig candidate for Governor.—This wanton attack has justly aroused the indignation of the friends of Gen. Irvin throughout the State, and is severely commented upon by editors and correspondents of a number of Whig papers.

The writer in the Telegraph is justly censurable for the very unfair manner in which he treats the subject. He attempts to ridicule the pretensions of Gen. I. to the appellation of "the popular Congressman," given to him by his friends, by stating that Judge Banks received 651 votes more in Irvin's district than Irvin received last fall. He neglects to state, however, as in justice he should have done, that the cause of Irvin's small vote last year was in consequence of a very small turnout of votes; and that notwithstanding the small election, Irvin was elected by a majority of 1339 last fall, whilst Banks was beaten in the same district by nearly 900 votes. The writer neglected to state also, that in the same district in 1840 Gen. Irvin received an aggregate vote of 6960, being 534 more votes than Judge Banks received in 1841.—At that time Gen. Irvin ran against A. Porter Wilson, a nephew of Gov. Porter's, who was then in the zenith of his power, and was triumphantly elected, notwithstanding he had to contend against the influence of both the State and National Governments.

From these facts it will appear evident that "Old Mifflin" has dealt very unfairly with Gen. Irvin, and that the censure which is meted out to him by the friends of that gentleman is eminently merited. In the discussion of the claims of the several candidates for the honor of the Whig nomination, we deprecate all attempts to disparage the merits of any one. Let each one urge the claims of his favorite honestly, fairly, and as energetically as he pleases, but let him not detract from the merits of others. Let "union and harmony," and a determination to abide the decision of the Convention, be the watchword.—Pa. Intelligencer.

WHIG SENATOR FROM LOUISIANA.—On Monday the 29th ult., Hon. Henry Johnson, Whig, was elected by the Legislature of Louisiana, United States Senator from that State, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Judge Porter. On the first balloting Mr. Johnson received 38 votes, Mr. WALKER, (Dem.) 27 votes, and 2 votes were in blank. On the second balloting Mr. Johnson received 39 votes, and was elected, Mr. Walker 35 votes and two votes were again in blank.

The term for which Mr. Johnson has been chosen extends to the 4th of March, 1849.

NOBLE SENTIMENT.—"A grain of carmine will tinge a gallon of water, so that in every drop the color will be perceptible, and a grain of musk, will scent a room for twenty years. Just so if a man cheats the Printer; the stain will be visible on the minutest atom of a minute soul, and will leave a scent of rascality about an individual strong enough to make an honest man curl up his nose in disgust, and kick him out of his presence, if he can't get rid of him in any other mode."

Such has been the mild character of the present winter, says the Charleston Courier of the 18th ult., that green peas, tomatoes, and other vegetables, are for sale in our market; and yesterday a gentleman living on East Bay, handed us some pears of the second growth this season, nearly ripe. The trees that bore in the month of August last, again put forth, and bore a full crop of fruit, most of which, however, were whipped off by high winds and frost last week.

John Smith has been committed to prison in Chataque county, New York, on the charge of marrying a lady there. The gist of the matter consisted in the fact, as the papers say, that John had a family at that time living on Grand Isle. It is not said that there was a wife in the number of John's Grand Isle menage.

Counterfeit $10 notes of the Mechanics' Bank of Baltimore are in circulation. The Bank has ceased to pay out $10 notes.

The Locofocos say they will inscribe on their banner "Remember 1840." Very well. Before this year is out we shall give them even stronger reasons to remember 1844.

Several new Cotton Factories are about to be erected in the vicinity of Philadelphia. This will give employment to hundreds who are now wandering idly about the streets of the commercial metropolis. O, that rascally Whig Tariff!

THE HEIGHT OF MONESTY.—Jonathan Slick says that he saw a young lady in Nova Scotia so modest, that she put the legs of her piano in trousers, to keep her from fainting.

John Brown Francis, (Whig) has been elected to represent Rhode Island in the United States Senate, in the place of Mr. Sprague, resigned.

Mr. Robert Baynard, one of the individuals injured by the recent accident at the Club House, at Richmond, Va., has been compelled to submit to amputation of one of his legs at the knee.

SWEET.—A husband in Philadelphia advertises his wife—will pay no debts of her contracting.—The amiable dame replies, that people need not be alarmed, as he pays no debts of any kind.

Suicide is so common in France, that one man has put a placard on his garden wall—"All persons are forbidden to commit suicide on these premises."

FATAL FUN.—Zeuxis, the famous Painter, made a portrait of an old lady so odd and comical, that he died laughing at the conceit.

ANOTHER STRIKE.—The weavers of Moyamensing, on Friday, the 2d inst., struck for an increase of wages.

Judge Wilkins, it is said, will be nominated as Secretary of War.

Treasury notes outstanding, February 1st, $3,657,473.

A large cotton factory, to be driven by steam power, is soon to be erected in Charleston, S. C.

An iron church is about to be erected near Brussels.

The Western Statesman.

The following eulogium was pronounced by the Rev. Mr. CAPERS, before the High Convention, of Alabama, last year, and we need scarcely add, that it filled every bosom with the fire of patriotism, and nerved every heart with the resolution to do its best.

HENRY CLAY.

"I have insinuated, sir that the temple of liberty has been shaken to its very base, by the genius of this thing called democracy. And who doubts it? Who has forgotten the scenes of 1831-2, when the sound of the drum was heard in Carolina, her plains covered with the armies of Andrew the Great, and her coasts lined with his frigates of war. What patriot heart beat not with painful anxiety, when the issue was suspended on an appeal to Congress? The appeal was made—it was rejected—the genius of democracy reigned in the temple of liberty, and instead of an armistice, the Bloody Force Bill passed. The tocsin of war sounded throughout the capitol, and the armies of Government were commanded to bow the traitors' or exterminate them from the home of their fathers. Sir, it was an eventful hour—the old lion of democracy howling for the blood of freemen's sons—and the goddess of Liberty weeping over the scene! It was indeed an eventful hour—one fell blow, and a conflict ensued which dissolves the Union, and spreads death and destruction throughout the land. In the eventful moment, the visage of the care-worn majestic being appeared on whose brow seemed to be suspended the ponderous weight of liberty and the Union, when lo! a voice as from the ghost of Washington exclaimed—"SAVE THE UNION, 'T WAS PURCHASED WITH TEARS AND BLOOD OF YOUR FATHERS!" 'Twas Clay, sir, that matchless statesman. Clay, bearing in one hand the olive branch of peace; and in the other the sword of truth and liberty, he approached the altar consecrated to liberty—there he laid his offering, and there, with that burning, impassioned eloquence, congenial with his exalted nature—in the name of liberty, and in the name of the blood-stained spirits who purchased it, he bade the daring sons of democracy sheath their swords and not break them in the blood of their brothers. His mandate was obeyed; the old Lion of Democracy crouched in his lair; peace was restored, and the Union saved. Mr. President, my heart recurs to that scene of that eventful hour with emotions unutterable, and when it ceases to beat with the warmest pulsations of moral approbation for the matchless actor in that great drama in my country's liberty, let me receive the execrations of my country and my country's God. I said it then, sir, and I say it now, fearless of contradiction, that such an instance of the power of mind over the daring passions of despotism was never before exhibited to the world. The edict was passed—the bloody warrant signed—the old lion of democracy grasped it in his paw—but one stroke of that overpowering eloquence before which kings tremble and despots bow, made the Hero of New Orleans quake on his throne, and restore to the polluted altar of liberty, the blood-stained edict which he had seized with delight. I repeat it, sir, such an instance of the power of mind over the daring passions of despotism had never before been exhibited to the world. There was a wreath of civic renown—a halo of immortal glory around the brow of Henry Clay in that hour which presents him in bold relief as the greatest orator, the purest patriot, and the most magnanimous statesman in the universe. Talk of Calhoun, sir, as the great Hercules of mind and spirit—great indeed as the powers of Hercules, but great as Hercules is, the lion of Democracy had him bound with cords of hemp; and whetting his bloody fangs, he was ready to tear the Herculean giant into a thousand atoms.

Talk of Webster as the great master spirit of the age—great indeed is Webster—but Webster was there, sir, and great as he is, he had not the heart to approach the open jaws and bloody fangs of the howling lion and bid him stay his wrath. 'Twas reserved for the noble daring of Clay to do the deed, and it was done."

Hon. Alexander Porter.

It is with unfeigned sorrow we announce to our readers the death of the Hon. ALEXANDER PORTER, one of the Senators of the United States from the State of Louisiana. He died at his plantation in the parish of St. Mary, on the 13th of January, in the 58th year of his age. He was an accomplished gentleman, jurist, and statesman, greatly beloved by those who knew him well, and honored and respected by all persons.

Mr. Porter was a native of Ireland, whose father perished on the scaffold, a martyr to the cause in which Emmet and his compatriots laid down their lives.—Immediately after this sad event, the son emigrated to this country, and settled down in Attakapas, in Louisiana. He was, if we mistake not, a member of the Convention which formed the Constitution of that State, and afterwards a member of the State Legislature. He was then appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court of Louisiana, in which he sat for many years with high reputation. He was chosen Senator of the United States in the year 1833, and sat in that body some years; and, after a brief retirement, he was last winter again elected to the Senate for a term of six years, but under that election had never taken his seat. Mr. Porter had been eminently successful in his worldly affairs, and died wealthy;—[Nat. Int.]
