

CONGRESS.

Correspondence of the Pa. Telegraph.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 29, 1846

"Dear Sir:—In the Senate on Monday morning, Mr. Mangum gave notice that at the proper time he would offer resolutions amendatory to those of Mr. Crittenden, authorizing the Oregon notice to be given at the end of the Session. The amendments provide further, that this Government shall make an offer to Great Britain to refer the whole matter to arbitration.

After the proper disposition of some unimportant matters, Mr. Allen moved to take from the table his motion for leave to introduce the joint resolutions which were to come up on Friday, declaratory of the principles which ought to govern our country, relative to the intervention of other nations in our affairs.

Upon this motion a rather warm debate arose, in which Mr. Allen and Mr. Calhoun made some very severe passes at each other. Mr. Calhoun insisting that Mr. Allen acted indiscreetly in introducing a bill of this kind, without consulting members of the committee of which he is Chairman.

Mr. Allen promptly denied the charge and endeavored to show from precedents that Mr. C. had set the example. Mr. C. denied that the precedents were applicable. Upon this Mr. A. grew very warm, insisted that they were, and became rather personal in his remarks towards Mr. C.—Mr. C. said his own self respect, and his respect to the importance of the subject, would prevent him from allowing the question to take a personal direction, and then went on to state that the late news from England increases the prospect of an amicable adjustment of our difficulties with that nation, tenfold.

After some further debate, Mr. Allen's motion prevailed, 26 to 21, and was referred to the committee of foreign relations. These resolutions are fraught with much mischief, and it is to be hoped that when they are called up, they may be summarily dealt with.

In the House, the Oregon debate was resumed by Mr. Pendleton of Va. He opened with a raking fire upon the Loco-foco party, and elaborated most unmercifully certain legislators, who are making a miserable scramble for the next Presidency. His speech was a beautiful one indeed. It abounded with eloquence, wit and sarcasm. At one moment he would convulse the House with laughter, the Loco-focos making the broadest grins, and the next moment one of his sarcastic thrusts would pierce the Loco-focos into the smallest imaginable compass. He alluded to Mr. C. J. Ingersoll's multiplication table, and doubted not, but that would be a pleasant way of settling the question; but he feared that Mr. Polk and his Secretary, Mr. Buchanan, would be bad leaders in such an operation. He was opposed to the notice.

Sawell of Me. and Grover of N. Y. followed in favor of the notice. After they had concluded the House adjourned.

On Tuesday Mr. Fairfield's bill, making an appropriation of five millions and a half of dollars for the construction of ten iron war steamers, came up in order.

Mr. Hannegan moved to amend by making the appropriation larger; and for this purpose to apply the proceeds of the public lands.

Mr. Fairfield opposed this amendment and, in a long speech, defended his own bill.

Mr. Benton opposed the bill, upon the ground, that it imposed a most burdensome tax upon the country—that the appropriation for the current year provides $7,000,000 for the naval branch, and that this additional appropriation would make something like seventeen millions for the navy alone. He regarded the movement as unnecessary, and said that he did not fear war, and thought there was no likelihood of its occurring. Some further debate ensued, when the Senate went into executive session.

Mr. Black of Georgia, reported a bill to organize and classify the Militia of the United States. The bill provides, that after the 1st of August, 1846, the Militia shall be divided into two classes—the first to consist of citizens between 18 and 30—and the second between 30 and 45; the bill was read twice, and referred to the committee of the whole.

The Oregon debate was then resumed. Messrs. Douglass, Bailey, and Campbell, of N. Y. severally gave their views. They went for the notice, but presented no new points.

On Wednesday, in the Senate, after a short debate upon some New Hampshire claims,

Mr. Johnston of La., offered a resolution relative to the modification of the Judicial system of the United States, so as to relieve the Supreme Court from the performance of certain duties, by the formation of a new judicial district out of Texas and Louisiana.

The consideration of the naval appropriation was then resumed. Mr. Bagby had the floor. He opposed the bill on two grounds; the first was, it was a peace measure the appropriation was too large, and it a loan measure too small.

Mr. Miller of N. J., was in favor of the bill. He did not view the bill as a war measure, nor did he apprehend that giving the notice, would bring about war. But the country required some vessels of this kind, though we might be at present at peace with the world.

Mr. Cass followed Mr. Miller, and insisted that the country ought to be put in a state of defence. The late news from England had not changed his views.

In the House the Oregon debate was resumed by Mr. Owen. He was followed by Mr. Thompson, of Pa., and Mr. Skur-man, of Ohio. Thompson declared that Great Britain should neither have Oregon nor a modification of the Tariff.

The city is full of rumors of changes in "the ministry." It is asserted openly that Mr. Buchanan's name has been sent into the Senate, for the vacant Judgeship on the Supreme Bench; and in the event of his confirmation, Attorney General Mason will succeed him in the Secretaryship. Some pretend to say that a difficulty has arisen between Mr. Polk and Mr. Buchanan in regard to Woodward's case, and that although Mr. B. will go out of the Cabinet, his transfer to the Bench is not so certain. There seems to be little reliance, however, placed upon this latter rumor. Another rumor is that Mr. Dallas was hot foot after the nomination.

One thing I can assert, that a good deal of ill feeling exists in the Cabinet now, and that its re-organization may be considered almost certain.

In the Senate, this morning, after the transaction of some important business, the debate upon Fairfield's bill was resumed by Mr. Speight of Miss. He was opposed to it, because it was impolitic—unnecessary—enormously expensive, and because he could conceive no possible reason for supposing a war would take place between the United States and England.

The Senate then adjourned over to Monday.

In the House, Mr. Ingersoll offered a resolution that all debate upon the Oregon question shall cease on Saturday, February 7, at 2 o'clock. A motion was made to lay it on the table, which prevailed, 83 to 57. So we will have enough of Oregon.

The original subject was then opened by Mr. Holmes, of S. C., in opposition to the notice. Mr. Ewing, Tennessee, followed on the same side. Mr. Baker, of Illinois, came next and spoke most energetically for the whole or none. When he concluded the House adjourned.

Yours truly S.

The National gives a frightful picture of Marshall Bugeaud's doings in Africa. According to the accounts published by that paper, 60 prisoners were one day shot in cold blood—13 villages burned—the Dahra massacre acted over again, for it appears that a portion of a tribe having hid themselves in a cave, the same means were resorted to exactly as were employed by Colonel Pelissier, and all smoked and baked to death. The marshall himself is the author of all these horrors—his last triumph was a monster razia—he has ordered the most strict secrecy as to his barbarous proceedings; and the writer of the accounts, of which we have just given a summary, calls him a second Attila, for he puts all to the sword and fire, sparing only women and infants.

Samuel S. Snow, a Millerite preacher of New York City, has announced himself to be the veritable prophet Elijah. He is said to have a hundred or more followers. A writer in a paper which advocates his claims says: "Reader, let me tell you that God has put a seal to his appointment of this messenger, even of brother Snow.—About the time of his appointment, while he and several others were assembled in a private room for religious worship, the doors being closed, they saw a dove, white as snow, descended and light upon him."
