

THE TEMPTER.

If angels in the heavens rejoice
O'er one returning soul
Who broke from iron bonds of vice,
Treads back to virtue's goal.

What pow'r shall greet with demon laugh
The spoiler's deed of hell,
Who bids the rescued drunkard quaff
The cup by which he fell?

The execration of the just,
The world's united scorn,
Be on that shameless child of lust,
Perdition's foulest spawn.

Who lures the wretched being back,
That once escaped his door,
Swathing in darkness doubly black
The soul he stained before.

We, wo to him, who lifeth up
To his weak brother's lip
The demon's sacramental cup,
Hell's seal of fellowship.

Its very drop shall yet return
With fire of vengeance red,
And through the eternal midnight burn
On his devoted head.

And tenfold woes his soul await,
Who tempts the rescued back
From virtue's straight and narrow gate,
To error's devious track.

The burnings of the nether pit,
Outdone by flames within,
Fires in the tortured bosom lit
By self-convicting sin.

From the New York Sun.

A Real Conversation.

"Sir," said a poor, ragged, and rough looking man, upon whose countenance traces of sorrow and extreme suffering were visible, to an individual whose sleek and seemingly ensemble betokened plenty and happiness, "sir, I am famishing. Will you assist me? Will you give me the means of procuring food and a night's lodging?"

"Go along, my man, I have nothing for you.—You can go to the alms house, I suppose. I'll give you a line to the Alderman."

"Sir," said the poor man, "I'd rather not go to the alms house. I only desire a temporary relief. I expect work in a day or two."

"Oh! well scratch along, my man; you are not so badly off as one would imagine."

"I am absolutely starving. I'm sure you won't miss a quarter of a dollar."

"Bless my soul do you think I gather my money from trees? Go along—don't be pertentious; now do take yourself off, there's a brave man."

"You owe me money, sir, I would not remind you of the fact sir, only that hunger makes me desperate."

"Owe me money?" exclaimed the sleek man, stepping back a pace or two—"You are mad."

"No, seven years ago I worked for you. You failed."

"Oh! ah! an old sore. Oh, that's quite another matter. Did it ever strike you that I have taken the benefit of the Act—gone clean through? Creditors are no one now—can't touch me!"

"Yet, sir, I earned that money by hard labor.—You reaped the benefit of that labor, are rich while I am the poor wretch you see. You owe me that money, sir, in spite of all bankruptcies."

"I never do anything illegal. What is legal is honorable. The law says I don't owe you a cent."

"Honor says you do, and of the two honor generally tells more truths than law," said the mendicant, evidently displeased.

"You are getting wearisome. Will you be kind enough to step out of the way."

"You call yourself a christian."

"I am a christian, I flatter myself a deacon."

"You are esteemed a pious, honest, trust-worthy gentleman."

"I am as good a one as can be found in the whole religious community."

"Then the dominions of the Evil One can boast of purity when compared with such communities, and the societies of thieves is cemented by more real honor. Your respectability, honor, piety and justice are comprised of your broadcloths and fine words, and go no further. Keep your money. I'd starve before I'd touch a copper of it."

Some time ago the above conversation actually took place in Broadway, near the American Museum. Some time ago, the mendicant—now a stove dealer, in tolerable business—employed his oppressor, reduced to want, as a porter, and after deducting the amount of the dishonored bill from his wages, when he had earned the amount of the bill, generously presented it to the fallen Pharisee.—This is an absolute fact. Every day life teems with such remarkable transactions and singular reverses. Retributive justice sooner or later overtakes the evil doer and the ingenuity of man knows not how to avert the merited and never failing punishment.

The Wife.

A BRING TO COME HOME TO.—And after all, what is it that man seeks in the companionship of a woman. An influence like the gentle dew, and the cheering light, more felt throughout the whole of his existence, in its softening, harmonizing power than acknowledged by any single act or recognized by any certain rule. It is in fact a being to come home to, in the happiest sense of that expression. Poetic lays of ancient times were wont to tell how the bold warrior, returned from the fight, would doff his plumed helmet, and reposing from his toils, lay bare his weary limbs that woman's hand might pour into their wounds the healing balm. But never wearied knight nor warrior, covered with the dust of the battle-field, was more in need of woman's soothing power than are those care-worn sons of the soil, who struggle for the bread of life, in our more peaceful and enlightened days. And still, though the romance of the castle, the hamlet, the waving plume, and the "Clarion wild and high," may all have vanished from the scene, the charm of woman's influence lives as brightly in the picture of domestic joy, as when she placed the wreath of victory on the hero's brow. Nay, more so, for there are deeper sensibilities at work, thoughts more profound and passions more intense, in our great theatre of intellectual and moral strife, than where the contest was for martial fame, and force of arms procured for each competitor his share of glory or of wealth.

Among all the changes which have taken place in the condition of mankind, it is then not the least of woman's privileges, that her influence remains the same except only as it is deepened and perfected as her own character approaches towards perfection. It is not the least of her privileges, that she can still be all to man which his necessities require; that he can retire from the tumult of the world, and seek her society with a zest which nothing can impair, so long as she receives him with a true and faithful heart—true to the best and kindest impulses of which her nature is capable; and sacred to the faithful trust committed to her care.

And that it is so, how many a home can witness—how many a fire-side welcome—how many a happy meeting after absence painfully prolonged! Yes, there are scenes within the sacred precincts of the household hearth, which, not the less because no stranger's eye behold them, repay, and richly too, dark days of weary conflict, and long nights of anxious care. But who shall paint them? Are they not graven on the hearts of wives! and those who hold the picture there in all its beauty, vividness and truth, would scarcely wish to draw aside the veil which screens it from the world.

[Mrs. Ellis.]

PASS THE NOTICE ROUND.—Mrs. Elizabeth Peters, of Boone county, Indiana, thus notices her absconded husband:—Left my bed and board last fall, thereby rendering my expenses lighter, my legal husband, John Peters, without cause or provocation. All the old maids and young girls, and widows of all ages and conditions are hereby forewarned against harboring or trusting him on my account, as I am determined not to be accountable for his debts or more especially for his conduct, because he is a loafer, a drunkard, a gambler, a liar, a thief, and a barn-burning locofoco.

Hathaway's Patent Cooking Stove.

RIGHT SIDE UP!!
I WOULD respectfully inform the public, that I shall continue as heretofore, to act as Agent for the sale and delivery of the justly celebrated Hathaway Cooking Stove, manufactured by A. B. Long & Co., who have at a heavy expense secured the exclusive right of Patentee of Huntingdon and other counties.

No bombastic eulogy is deemed essential to add to the already acquired celebrity of this stove. It is necessary, however, to observe that the high reputation this stove has gained by practical use, has induced the manufacturers of other and inferior articles, to borrow (not to use a harsher term) the name of HATHAWAY, and prefix it to an "Improved," in order to make their inferior trash go off as genuine, and thereby impose upon the public. I, myself, sell the only REAL HATHAWAY stove that is or can be sold in this county, and would therefore admonish the public against the imposition above alluded to. I am happy in being able to say, confidently, that during the last three or four years, in which I have been constantly dealing in and putting up these stoves, I have found them to give universal and unbounded satisfaction. Any communication in relation to stoves addressed to me at Lewistown, Mifflin county, (my place of residence) will meet with the earliest possible attention.

A few good sound horses will be taken in exchange for stoves.
JAMES A. PEIRCE,
Lewistown, Mifflin Co., Nov. 19, 1845.

It has cured thousands upon thousands—of all classes—in cases of the most dangerously consumptive character; and physicians of the greatest eminence throughout our whole country now unhesitatingly recommend it as

SELDOM KNOWN TO FAIL.

TESTIMONIALS.

Messrs. SANFORD & PARK—Dear Sirs:—With regard to Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, for which you are wholesale agents, we have sold, since last October, eighty-two bottles at retail, and have heard from a great portion of them as producing the desired effect.

Several important cases in this vicinity, which came under our personal knowledge have been cured—where other remedies have been tried for years without effect.

In fact, we think it one of the most invaluable remedies for consumption of the lungs and all other complaints for which it is recommended; and do think, that the suffering of the afflicted demand that you should give it a general circulation, and make its virtues known. Yours, truly,
WEAGLY & KNEPPER, Druggists,
Wooster, O., May 20, 1843.

[From the Cincinnati Daily Times of May 30th 1843.

"Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.—We should judge from Messrs. Weagly & Knepper's letter, published this day among our advertisements, that this popular remedy for coughs, lung complaints, and diseases of the breast generally, was really a valuable medicine, and worthy of serious attention from the public. We are informed by the wholesale agents, that they are almost daily receiving similar letters from all parts of the West.

We would advise our readers who are laboring under an affection of the lungs, to make immediate trial of this truly excellent medicine. The most intelligent and respectable families of our city have adopted it as a favorite family medicine; and persons predisposed to consumption who have used it, speak in the highest terms of its efficacy."

Read the following from Dr. Jacob Hoffman, a physician of extensive practice in Huntingdon county:

Dear Sir:—I procured one bottle of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, from Thomas Read, Esq., of this place, and tried it in a case of obstinate Asthma on a child of Paul Schwebel, in which many other remedies had been tried without any relief. The Balsam gave sudden relief, and in my opinion the child is effectually cured by its use. Yours, &c.

JACOB HOFFMAN, M. D.
Dec. 23, 1841.

It is unnecessary to remind all who would get the true article, to inquire particularly for "Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry," and take nothing else.

Price one dollar per bottle.
For sale in Cincinnati, by
SANFORD & PARK,
General Agents.

Also, by Thomas Reed & Son, Huntingdon; Mrs. Mary Orr, Hollidaysburg; Gemmill & Porter, Alexandria.
