Gen. de la Vegal.—This Mexican General paid a visit to the St. Charles Hotel in New Orleans, on the 18th inst., and was introduced to Gen. Gaines and to Gov. Johnson. The General speaks no other larguage that the Spanish, but through the sid of Mr. Denis Prieur, who acted as Interpreter, says the Picayune, a pleasing and lively conversation took place. Gen. De la Voga expresses himself as extremely well satisfied with his porition, and stated that he felt as if he was smong his own friends, rather than as a prisoner of war. We are glad to find that every means is employed to render the position of the General as comfortable as possible. This is no more than what is due to the distinguished merit of so brave and meritorious an officer.

It was held on the west bank of the Rio Grande on the 28th of March. Their next meeting was in this city yesterday, when Gen. Worth called to pay his respects to the unfortunate Mexican General.—The surprise of each must have been great at meeting under circumstances so different from what either anticipated when they conferred together on the banks of the Rio del Norte. The short interval which had elapsed was pregnant in events of the utmost interest to each of them.

They met again yesterday morning in the Probate Court, when according to Mr. Toca's account, Morantes attacked him with a dirk, and stabbed him in his shoulder; the steel entering to the depth of about three inches. When arrested, Morantes had also a six barrel revolving pistol, fully capped and loaded. The matter will come up before Recorder Genois in a day of two; meanwhile the prisoners were ordered to give security, each in the sum of $1000, to keep the peace. Mr. Toca's wound is by no means dangerous.
