

CAPTURE OF TOBACCO.
Official Despatches of Com. Perry. The Washington Union publishes an official note from Com. Connor, transmitting the following letter from Com. Perry, which it will be seen, gives a detailed account of his operations in the river of Tabasco:

A Detailed Account of the Proceedings of the Expedition under my command, along the Eastern Coast of Mexico. I left the anchorage at St. John Lizardo on the evening of the 16th of October, with the steamer Mississippi, having on board a detachment of 200 officers, seamen and marines, under command of Capt. French Forrest, and in tow, the steamer Vixen, and schooners Bonita, Reefer and Nonata, respectively commanded by Com. Sands, and Kients. Commandant Benham, Sterrett and Hazard, and the schr. Forward and steamer McLane, commanded by Capt. Non. Howard, of the Revenue Marine. The next morning at daylight I captured off the bar of Alvarado, the American bark Coosa, found in treasonable communication with the enemy; and the same day the Vixen chased and boarded the American schooner Portia. The Coosa was despatched to this place as a prize, and the Portia was permitted to proceed, her papers having been endorsed. From the day of our leaving Alvarado, (the 17th) up to the 22d, we had a succession of very bad weather, which gave me much trouble in keeping my little command together. During the interval, however, we captured and sent in the Mexican schr. Telegraph. On the 23d, all the vessels, with the exception of the Reefer (previously separated by a gale) reached the bar of the river Tabasco; and having determined on attacking the commercial town of Frontera, at the mouth of the river, and the city of Tabasco, situated 74 miles higher up, I placed myself on board the Vixen, leaving the Mississippi in command of Commander Adams, at anchor outside, and taking in tow the Bonita and Forward, with the barges containing the detachment under command of Capt. Forrest. I crossed the bar, the Nonata following under sail. The Vixen, with this heavy drag, steadily ascended the stream against a four-knot current, and, arriving near to Frontera, I discovered two steamers (of which I had received previous information,) firing up, doubtless in the hope of escape; but we were too close upon them. Casting off her tow, the Vixen proceeded ahead, followed by the other vessels and barges; and at once, the town, the steamers, and all the vessels in port, were in our possession, excepting only the schr. Amado, which vessel, attempting to escape up the river, was pursued by Lieut. Commandant Benham in the Bonita, and captured. Desirous of reaching Tabasco before they would have time for increasing their defences, the detachment under Capt. Forrest was placed on board the largest of the captured steamers, the Petrita, and she, with the Nonata, the Forward, and the barges in tow, and the Vixen, with the Bonita, left Frontera at half-past 9 the next morning. Lieut. Walsh being left in command of the place. After steaming all night, and encountering various incidents arising from the rapidity of the current, and the circuitous course of the stream, we arrived at 9 the next morning in sight of Fort Aceachappa, intended to command a most difficult pass in the river. On our approach, the men employed in preparing the guns for service fled, and we passed it unmolested, but I was careful to cause the guns to be spiked. Anticipating serious resistance at this place, arrangements had been made for landing Capt. Forrest, with his detachment, a mile below the fort, to march up and carry it by storm. At noon all the vessels anchored in line of battle in front of the city, at half-musket range, when I immediately summoned it to surrender, the boats meanwhile being employed in securing five merchant vessels found at anchor in the port. To my summons sent by a flag with Capt. Forrest, a refusal to capitulate was returned, with an invitation to me to fire as soon as I pleased. Suspecting, as I did, that this answer was given more in bravado than in earnest, and being extremely reluctant to destroy the place, I entertained the hope that a few shots fired over the buildings would have caused a surrender. Accordingly I directed the guns of the Vixen alone to be fired, and at the flag staff, sending an order to all the vessels to avoid, so far as possible, in case of a general fire, injury to the houses distinguished by consular flags. At the third discharge from the Vixen, the flag disappeared from the staff. On seeing it down, I ordered the firing to cease, and sent Capt. Forrest again ashore to learn whether it had been cut down by our shot, or purposely struck; the reply was that it had been shot away, and the city would not be surrendered. I now directed Capt. Forrest, with the force under his command, to land and take a position in the city, commanded by our guns. This movement brought on a scattering fire of musketry from various parts of the city, which was returned by the flotilla. Perceiving toward evening that the enemy did us but little injury, though openly exposed on the decks of the small vessels, and their balls passing through our slight bulwarks, and apprehending, from the proverbial heedlessness of sailors, that should they and the marines be attacked in the narrow streets after dark, they would be cut off by sharpshooters from the houses, I ordered the detachment to be re-embarked. In this position the vessels remained all night, the crews lying at their quarters ready to return the fire of the artillery of the enemy, which it was supposed they would have had the courage to have brought down under cover of the night to the openings of the streets opposite to our vessels, but they left us undisturbed. Learning that the merchants and other citizens of the city were desirous that a capitulation should be made, but were overruled by the Governor, who, regardless of consequences, and to secure himself against attack, was content that the city should be destroyed rather than surrendered, I determined, from motives of humanity, not to fire again, but to pass down to Frontera with my prizes. In the morning, however, the firing was recommenced from the shore, and was necessarily returned, but with renewed orders to regard the consular houses so far as they could be distinguished. In the midst of the fire, a flag of truce was displayed on shore; on perceiving which I caused the firing again to cease, and Capt. Forrest was sent to meet its bearer, who submitted a written communication, addressed to me, a copy of which, with a copy of my reply, marked B and C, will be found enclosed. As an assurance of my sincerity, I now hoisted a white flag, and directed the prizes to drop down the stream, intending to follow with the flotilla; but, in violation of the understanding implied in the before mentioned correspondence, the enemy, on discovering that one of the prizes had drifted ashore in front of the city, collected a large force within and behind the houses in the vicinity, and commenced a furious fire upon her. Lieut. Parker, of this ship, in command of the prize, defended her in the most gallant manner, and ultimately succeeded in getting her again afloat, having one of her men killed and two wounded. It was in carrying an order to Lieut. Parker that Lieut. Morris was wounded. He had been of infinite service to me from the time we left Lizardo, and, conducting himself during the bombardment with remarkable deliberation and coolness, he approached the prize in a line to cover his boat, and, though apparently regardless of the safety of the officer and men of the boat, who were seated, he stood erect himself, and the ball struck him in the throat. No one can more deplore the fate of this very valuable young officer than myself. His loss is irreparable to the service and to his family. It may well be supposed that on perceiving the attack upon the prize, I reopened upon the city, which again silenced their fire. I now proceeded with the flotilla and prizes down the river.—One of the prizes, a small schooner, of little value, having grounded in a dangerous pass, and knowing that it would be difficult to extricate her without causing inconvenient delay, I ordered her to be burned. We arrived safely at Frontera on the evening of the 26th, the Vixen having towed down the river five vessels and several barges. From Frontera I dispatched my prizes to this place; and after destroying all the vessels and craft found in the river of too little value to be manned, I proceeded on the 31st to rejoin you, leaving the McLane* and Forward at anchor opposite Frontera to continue the blockade of the river, and to afford protection and shelter to the neutral merchants, residents of the place, who professed themselves in apprehension of violence from the Mexican soldiery should they be left unprotected. On our way to this place the prize steamer Petrita, in company and in sight of this vessel, captured the American brig Plymouth, found engaged in landing a cargo upon the enemy's coast. M. C. PERRY.

P. S. I omitted to mention, that while lying off the bar of Tabasco, this ship boarded the Campechy schooner Fortuna and the French brig Jenne Armadee, on the papers of both of which a notification of blockade was endorsed.

* In regard to the McLane, I propose to make a special communication.

Terrific Explosion of a Powder Mill.
BALTIMORE, Nov. 23, 1846.
Beatty's Powder Mills, situate on the Susquehanna railroad, about eight miles from this city, were blown up this morning with a terrific explosion. It was thought in the city to have been an earthquake at first, so severely did it rattle and shake the houses. Indeed, some glass was broken in windows in the city, whilst in a number of instances crockery and glassware tumbled from shelves and were broken. On repairing to the scene of disaster, the three large buildings (70 yards apart) belonging to the mill, were scattered over the surrounding country to the distance of ten acres. There were five men in the buildings at the time of the explosion, and they were blown into hundreds of fragments—legs, arms, heads, masses of flesh and bones were scattered in every direction, and the entrails of a man were found hanging to the limb of a tree more than a hundred yards from the mill. The quantity of powder in the establishment at the time of the explosion exceeded two tons; the houses for a mile and a half in the country round were more or less damaged; doors were forced open, windows broken, and men prostrated by its effects. No idea can be formed as to the cause of the explosion, as all the witnesses were instantly killed. One of the workmen left the mill a few minutes before the accident, and the hands were at that time at work at their regular business. The names of the unfortunate men who perished, were James Bush, Francis Woodward, William Brandon, a German, named Knoo, and a colored man, called Nelson Wigner.

DUTY OF ASSESSORS.
THE Commissioners of Huntingdon county deem it proper to publish the following Opinion, filed by their Counsel, in regard to the duty of Assessors:

OPINION.
Two questions are presented to me with regard to the duty of Assessors, as well as the duty of each taxable inhabitant, growing out of the Act of Assembly passed in 1846, entitled "An Act to provide for the reduction of the State Debt." And first: Whether all bonds, notes, accounts, and agreements, whether due or to become due, whether bearing interest or not, are the subjects of taxation under this act? And second: Whether all accounts, settled and unsettled, are included in this act, and subject to taxation? In construing this law, regard must be had to the intention of the Legislature, and that intention can only be gathered from a careful examination of the whole act taken together. Its sweeping terms, and comprehensive character, indicate most clearly that it was intended to meet and defeat the various and multiform modes resorted to heretofore for the purpose of evading the law, and avoiding the payment of taxes. For instance, a man wishing to dispose of his property, and at the same time shield the proceeds from liability to taxation, takes a bond or note as the case may be, apparently without interest, but only apparently, for, in fact, he has made a careful calculation of interest, and included it in the principal, so that, to all intents, he has just so much money on interest, and as such, is the legitimate object of taxation. But, aside from conjecture on this point, here is the language of the Legislature, clear, plain and explicit—3d section of the Act: "All money due and owing by solvent debtors, whether payable on demand, or at any specified time, past, present, or future, or whether the time of payment be specified or not, and whether containing an agreement to pay interest or not." "There would seem to be no room for doubt or conjecture here. It is evident, quite evident at least to my mind, that all bonds, notes, accounts, agreements, whether due or to become due, whether bearing interest or not, are the objects of taxation under this law; and from this conclusion there is no escape. This brings me to the second question: Whether all accounts, settled and unsettled, are included in this act, and subject to taxation? The language of the act in regard to accounts, is in these words—"Accounts and settlements in the orphans' courts, and of common pleas, and other accounts." Construing the words "and other accounts," in accordance with what I take to have been the intention of the Legislature, they would undoubtedly include, and render liable to taxation, under this act, all accounts settled and unsettled. The Legislature intended to require of every taxable inhabitant an honest statement of all debts due him from solvent debtors; and annexed a penalty for a false or incorrect one. It is the duty, as well as the interest, therefore, of every taxable inhabitant, to make a true return of all debts and accounts due him from solvent debtors. It can make no difference whether the accounts are settled, or unsettled, in making a return; for a prudent man, and a man of ordinary business habits, can tell what is due him on his accounts; and the fact of the account being settled, can add nothing to its value or its certainty. The unsettled account equally certain and secure against a solvent debtor, and therefore equally liable to taxation under this law. To construe this law so as to include none but settled accounts, and accounts at interest, would seem to be a violation of its spirit, and an evasion of its provisions. A. K. CORNYN, Counsel for Commissioners.

ORPHANS' COURT SALE.
IN pursuance of an order of the Orphans' Court of Huntingdon county, there will be exposed to public sale, as the property of Jacob Baker, dec'd, on the premises of said dec'd, in Springfield township, Huntingdon county, on Saturday, the 19th day of December next, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, the following described real estate, viz: A certain message, plantation and tract of land, situate in said township of Springfield, and county of Huntingdon, bounded by the lands of George Taylor on the east, Mr. Cremer on the north, Elisha S. Greene on the west, and William Taylor on the south, containing 136 acres, more or less, with the appurtenances, &c. This property lies on the waters of the Big Aughwick creek, near the Furnace and Forge of Blair & Madden. The land is easily cultivated, and very productive; and though now somewhat out of order, is susceptible of a high state of improvement. The necessary buildings on the farm are convenient and substantial, but now in need of some repair. It is situated in a good and thriving neighborhood, in a township which is improving more than any other in the county at this time, and in which the taxes are comparatively light. The administrators are obliged to sell at the time appointed; from all these considerations, purchasers may look out for a bargain. Terms of Sale—One-third of the purchase money to be paid on confirmation; one-third within one year, with interest, and the residue at and immediately after the death of Margaret Baker, widow of the said intestate; the interest of the one-third of the purchase money to be annually and regularly paid to the said widow during her natural life—the whole to be secured by the bonds and mortgage of the purchaser. Attendance will be given on the day of sale, and the property shown in the meantime, by nov25-1e] JACOB BAKER, acting Admr.

The stabling is in good order and calculated to entertain twenty-five horses. A further description of the property is deemed unnecessary, as persons desirous of purchasing will no doubt view and judge for themselves. DR. DAVIS'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY AND TAR.
FOR the cure of Pulmonary Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Influenza, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Difficulty of Breathing, Pain in the Breast or Side, Spitting of Blood, Croup, Nervous Tremors, Hooping Cough, &c.
From the Christian Repository, Dec. 13, 1845. We insert in another column an advertisement of Messrs. Robison & Collins of this city, to which we take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers. We do this more especially from the card of Bro. Barnes which is appended to it. Bro. B. is a member of the M. E. Church in good standing, and those who know him personally, (as we do) have the fullest confidence in any statement he may give of the efficacy of any medicine which he may have tested. PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20, 1845.

Messrs. Robison, Collins & Co.—Being afflicted last spring with a very severe cough, with pain in my side and breast, soreness and weakness of the lungs, shortness of breath, loss of appetite, &c. I tried various remedies, but to no good effect, my cough still continuing and growing worse. Such was the distressing nature of the cough, that I could not lie in bed night nor day, but was obliged to sit up in my chair, and could sleep very little at best; consequently I was wearing out very fast, till you very kindly recommended Dr. Davis's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar, the first bottle of which gave me relief, checked my cough, loosened the phlegm, caused me to expectorate freely, restored my appetite, relieved the pain in my side, lessened the soreness of my breast, and strengthened my lungs, causing me to breathe freely. I have now taken ten bottles; it has entirely cured my cough. I have gained considerably in flesh. I think it a most valuable medicine, and one that ought to be universally known, that those afflicted with colds and coughs may have a medicine both safe and sure to cure, if taken properly. While taking the medicine, I drank freely of molasses and water, which I found excellent to keep the bowels open. If this statement can be found of any benefit to the afflicted, you are at liberty to make such use of it as you may think proper. MERRICK BARNES, No. 6 Broad street. Price, $1 per bottle. Robison, Collins, & Co., Phila'd., general agents. For sale by THOS. READ & SON, nov25-46-6m. Huntingdon.
