passed along the lines, that his feelings overcame him, and the tears rolled down his swarthy cheeks, amid the prolonged huzzas of the various regiments, and cries of "Victory or Death!" "God and Liberty!" "Long live Santa Anna!" "We will beat the Yankees this time!" &c.

Provisions were pouring into the camp in immense quantities. Language is said to fail in attempting a description of the formidable preparations making at San Luis. There, say the newspapers, will the fate of Mexico be decided, and further resistance, it is said, will be useless. Fears were entertained, however, that even there the fortunes of war would be against them, and accordingly we find preparations going on to defend the road to the capital.

Santa Anna's evacuation of Tampic is defended on the ground of his inability to resist the vessels of war; and thap ort beingone in which the yellow fever rages fiercely eight months in the year, the editors predict that it will become a grave for thousands of Americans, as it was for the invading Spaniards.

Four sailors were taken prisoners from an American vessel wrecked at Sotto Vento. Various accounts are given of the burning of the Mexican vessel of war croole, under the walls San Juan d'Ulloa. The battlement of San Miguel saw the United States boat approach the fort, but mistook it for a boat from the British steamer, and made no alarm.—Others allege that an alarm was given, but the officers of the fort would not fire for fear of killing their own people.

ELOPENENT.—The Boston Times reports the elopement of a Dr. Brooks, of N. H., with the wife of a friend named E. D. Davis, a printer. The husband caught the couple in Boston, and made Brooks give a thousand dollars, which he placed at the woman's disposal, and then compelled the Doctor to send a like sum to his own family, of a wife and eight children, and then returned home, after seeing the Lothario on his way south, and the faithless wife travelling northward.
