The Farmer's Life.

We take pleasure in presenting our readers with the following excellent remarks from the New York Farmer and Mechanic, on the "Dignity and pleasure of Agriculture":

There is a moral dignity in the pursuit of agriculture. There, it is toilsome; but what gainful pursuit is not? There are few merchants or professional men who would not at times willingly exchange their burdens, their cares or anxieties, for following the plough or other labor connected with farming. The young man who fancies there is so much of leisure, and aristocracy in trade and the professions, and so much drudgery in farming, knows less of human life than he will be likely to learn if he lives to middle age. But, while the laboring people usually attain greater longevity than men of leisure, their exercise may be considered as conducive to health, and hence to happiness. In labor itself, there is nothing degrading to the best feelings of our nature. It is only a vitiated artificial public sentiment, that can induce painful sensibility in view of the necessity for industry, which the wants of life impose.

It is not the objects thrown around the farmer, the woods and streams, and fields arrayed in green, that make all the charms of his life; for, while he laboring regen, that make all the charms of his life; for, while he laboring degrading to the lates of the lates and bruggists throughout the country, and by the Proprietors at Sing Sing, N.Y.

They seak of it in the highest terms, and commend the seak of the disease and reputation for curing disease and reliving pained in the hedical Parametric and my medicine ever discovered. Its wonderful cures have astonished the most extra-ordinary and wonderful medicine in the world. The pursuit space of the wo marks from the New York Farmer and Mechanic, on the "Dignity and pleasure of Agriculture":

There is a moral dignity in the pursuit of agriculture. True, it is toilsome; but what gainful pursuit is not? There are few merchants or professional men who would not at times willingly exchange their burdens, their cares or anxieties, for following the plough or other labor connected with farming.—The young man who fancies there is so much of leisure, and aristocracy in trade and the professions, and so much drudgery in farming, knows less of human life than he will be likely to learn if he lives to middle age. But, while the laboring people usually attain greater longevity than men of leisure, their exercise may be considered as conducive to health, and hence to happiness. In labor itself, there is nothing degrading to the best feelings of our nature. It is only a vitiated artificial public sentiment, that can induce painful sensibility in view of the necessity for industry, which the wants of life impose.

It is not the objects thrown around the farmer, the woods and streams, and fields arrayed in green, that make all the charms of his life; for, while he subdues the soil, and fits it for his purposes, and scatters the seed on the furrows, the progress of vegetation and the ample harvest are in his mind, as the reflection at night the day has been devoted to useful sess, prepares him for peaceful rest. Then there is a practical independence enjoyed in the feelings of the farmer, when he gathers the golden harves, and partakes of the fruit of his labor.

He sheers his own fleece, and he wears it."

the farmer, when he gathers the golden harver, and partakes of the fruit of his laber,
He eats his own lamb, his own chickens and ham, He sheers his own feece, and he wears it."
Agriculture has in all ages been esteemed the true associate of nobility.—Virgil wrote its praise, and the greatest statesman of the Roman Empire made the following of the plough an indication of his conscious dignity and an example of his most sterling virtue. Later, during the middle ages, the possession of land was a necessary appendage to nobility. George Washington was a farmer, and all the Ex-Presidents of the United States, with perhaps a single exception, have found the honor of their retirement in farming estates and their retirement in farming estates and their retirement in farming estates and their cultivation.

A Good One.—If you would laugh, reader, to your heart's content and perfect satisfaction, read the following extract from a letter dated Saltillo:

Near a pretty village, called Seguin, a few of us fell in with an odd fish, enjoying a Colonel's commission. He has a strange habit of using the longest words, and invariably misapplying them; for instance, (he wished to sell us some lets.) "Buy here, gentlemen, if you wish to make fortunes; here's the location for a magnanimous city; we're at the foot of navigation. Next year I'll put up a lawyer's fixins, a pothecary's doins, and a blacksmith's institution, and afterwards a regular cimetary, where all the folks from the circum-jasper counties will send in their boys and girls of both sexes to be McAdamized into a college edication. Then I'll instruct a meetin-house, and the stores and taverns will spring up, in course. I can't do this till next year, 'cos I havn't got hard cash enough yet, and I'll have nothing to do with the darned blank bills; let a man offer me one, and if I don't make a sacrament of him d—— me. Do you see that well? I'll put a pump handle into it, and fix an anecdote to fetch the water through all the meandering and turpentine walks in my sass garding, and the effects of the arrogition will be such that the very air will be polluted with the oderiferous execrations protruding from the flowers—(if I'm an accoucher in anything, it's in flowers)—I'll put up a diarrhea in the middle of 'em, for my women folks to store the milk and butter, &c., and then run a condition through my house, and provision it off, but I'll run up a real edifice next year, and clap a cronology on the top, so that the ladies and gentlemen may look at the stars and milky way through a horoscope that I'll export from Galveston. I can't do it all at once, as my women folks are growing up, and getting more and more costive and expensive on me every year. Come in, gentlemen—let us liquor."

A Temperance Story.—Two young men,

A TEMPERANCE STORY.—Two young men, "with a humming in their heads," retired late one night to their room in a crowded inn, in which as they enter is revealed two beds; but the wind extinguished the light; they both, instead of taking, as they supposed, a bed apiece, got back to back in one, which began to sink under them, and come around at intervals, in a manner very circumambilient, but quite impossible of explanation. Presently one observed to the other—
"I say, Tom, somebody's in my bed."
"Is there? so there is in mine. Let's kick him out."

kick him out."

The next remark was, "Tom I've kicked my man overboard."

"Good!" said his fellow toper, "better luck than I; my man has kicked me out—right on the floor."

Their 'relative positions' were not apparent till the next morning.

"Not for a Day but for All Time." STANTON'S EXTERNAL REMEDY.

time purges, purifies and strengthens the system. Losnos, July 7, 1846.

Dr. Le Roy's Pills are a new medicine which has just appeared, and is fisst taking the places of all others of the same class. These pills are composed of many ingredients, but the two principal ones are Sarsaparila and Wild Chery, so united that they act together; the one, through its admix ure with other substances, purifying and purging, while the other is strengthening the system. Thus those pills are at the same time tonic and opening; a desideratum long and eagerly sought for by medical men, but never before discovered. In other words they do the work of twe medicines, and do it much better than any two we know of; for they remove nothing from the system but the impurities; so that while they purge they strengthen; and hence they cause no debilitation, and are followed by no re-action. Dr. Le Roy's pills have a wonderful influence on the blood; they not only purify without weakening it. but they remove all notious particles from the chyle before it is converted into fluid, and thus make impure blood an utter impossibility. As there is no debilitation, so there is no nausea or sickness attending he operations of this most excellent of medicines, which never strains or tortures the digestive functions, but causes them to work in a perfectly natural manner; and hence persons taking them do not become pale and emaciated, but the contrary; for while it is the property of the Sarsaparilla, united as it is with other ingredients, to remove all that is foreign and impure, it is equally the property of the Wild Cherry to retain all that is natural and sound; and hence a robust state of health is the certain result of their united operations.

Messrs. Robinson, Collins & Co:—Sirs: This is to inform you that I was afflicted for 20 years with a violent pain in my breast, so much so that I could hardly lay in bed at night. Cough attended, followed by emaciation and other decided symptoms of consumption. I applied to several eminent physicians, and took a great deal of medicine without any relief whatever. I was advised to try Dr. Davis & Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar, of which I took two bottles, which entirely relieved me of my complaint; therefore I can with confidence recommend it to all who are in a like men: er afflicted, as a most valuable Medicine.

ANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound, for the cure of coughs, colds, consumption, spitting of blood, pain in the side and breast, bronchitis, croup, and all diseases arising from a disordered condition of the lungs or neglected cold. The following sonnet was addressed to the proprietor by a young lady who was cured of Consumption:

Ho! ye who pant with failing breath,
And pine away and die;

Hance shall "put away" your death,
And light anew your eye.

How sweet it melts upon the tongue,

And light anew your eye.

How sweet it melts upon the tongue,
How grateful to the breast!
A glorious theme for poet's song,
Soothing his cough to rest.

Hance! favored of the God's, art thou,
A blessing to thy race,
Let laurels flourish on thy brow,
And wealth those laurels grace.

When heroes are forgotten; kings
Defunct; or, ceased to rain;
Glory, for thee, shall flap her wings,
Thou conquerer of pain.
