

REVOLUTION IN FRANCE!

Last week, in advance of all our contemporaries, we gave an account of the revolution which has broken out in Paris. Below we give the commentary of a leading American paper, and also some extracts from English papers, upon this exciting news:

[From the Philadelphia North American.]

Louis Philippe has fallen—France is a Republic! Human folly and infatuation have again provoked the outburst of national wrath, and a throne has been crushed under the foot of a people like a piece of pottery. The third revolution of France—so far, at least, as Paris is concerned, and "Paris is France"—is a real one, radical, thorough, complete. The monarchy is at an end—the people have willed it. Louis Philippe abdicates in favor of his grandson; but the people of Paris will not have any man in authority over them, in any office, who is favorable to his grandson, or to the continuance of a monarchy, as witness the fate of Odillon Barrot, their favorite, their friend, the man who began the revolution, who struck the first blow, when, in the Chamber of Deputies, he denounced the Ministry of Guizot as being "more unconstitutional than that of Polignac," and who was, therefore, the father of the revolution, but who advocated the regency of the Duchess of Orleans, during the minority of her son, the Count of Paris, and whom, therefore, the people of Paris have rejected from their favor, as being the friend of monarchy. They drive the monarchic Deputies from the Chambers; and that Provisional Government now rules the French Republic, and rules it "in the name of the Sovereign People!"

Thus ends the reign of "the wisest monarch of the day," as Louis Philippe has been often called, all whose wisdom, acquired in the school of painful experience—republican experience, too—was not sufficient to teach him the slight tenure by which, in this era of growing freedom, every king holds his throne, and the little power there is left in royal hands to retain or restore a single fetter of state against the popular will. The fortifications of Paris were all finished, there were a hundred thousand trained soldiers around Paris. What did they all avail, when Louis Philippe and his minister, Guizot, made the attempt to put down popular assemblages and the right of free political discussions? Another revolution of three days has avenged the outrage and punished the unparalleled infatuation.

Poor Louis Philippe! He forgot he was placed upon the throne of France to be a Citizen King; not to restore tyranny, not to found dynasties, not even to establish a family interest separate from and greater than that of the people who allowed him to rule them. The vicereignty of Algeria, and even the crown of Spain, and the imperial diadem of the Brazils, might have followed, as family spoils; but he forgot that the French people were not his subjects; and hence the whole splendid fabric of his greatness, his policies, his schemes, his hopes have suddenly vanished into air, and the sceptre possessed for eighteen years, has melted away like a fairy gift. Vanity, vanity, vanity, all is vanity! But there is no vanity so great as that of a constitutional king—who, in these days, thinks he can arrest, and tries to arrest, the progress of liberal ideas. Can all the kings of Europe, banded together for the purpose, arrest them? "The Roman State" never promised a career half so irresistible as that of Liberty, as we see it now, in the informed condition of human nature, rolling mightily over the world:

"Its course will on

The way it takes, cracking ten thousand curbs of more strong links asunder, than can ever appear in their impediment."

The consequences of this third French revolution cannot but be momentous to Europe; and they will prove of extreme interest to the people of the United States. But we have no space to comment upon them now.

[From the London News, Feb. 25.]

The popular cause has triumphed once more in Paris, and against an army of 100,000 men. It has triumphed this time, fortunately, not after three days of carnage and of struggle but by the moral attitude of the population. The national guard, and the middle class of the citizens, joined with the lower orders in offering resistance, and this sufficed.

French soldiers are citizens too, and however ready to sweep away a few idle rioters, they were not prepared to treat as foes, and to decimate with grape shot, the united and thronging population of the metropolis. The example is a pregnant one, and the lesson such as every monarch and every minister must ponder over. Neither must provoke, for neither can overcome, the hostility of a million voices, not to speak of a million arms. Voices alone have, in the present case, sufficed to overthrow one of the oldest and strongest governments, headed by the shrewdest king, and having at its command a most powerful army, led by an experienced and determined general, and possessing every means of influencing and ensuring that army's fidelity, which character, talents, long success, and unbounded resources could bestow.

[From the London Telegraph, Feb. 26.]

The greatest revolution of our time, the overthrow of the whole system of government, founded on coercion, has been more completely and suddenly accomplished than we ventured yesterday to hope. The reign of Louis Philippe has come to a deserved and shameful end. Democracy, which is the true character of the French nation, the whole still being divided into small properties, prevails in the state. The attempt to establish a bureaucracy, headed by a monarch, has failed in the hands of the most renowned politicians of the age, attended by every advantage. The triumph is not over a man, but over a great principle. The flag of republicanism floats once more over France—the flag of equal rights and honorable freedom.

BRITISH MINISTRY FALLING.

The revolution is not confined to France. It is clear that Lord John Russell's Ministry is on the point of being driven from power. France changes from a monarchy to a republic; but in England there will be only a change of Ministers. Every thing, however, at such a moment, is pregnant with great consequence. Lord John Russell pronounced his budget in the House of Commons on the 18th of February, and the excitement it created may be inferred from the fact that all the approaches to the House were blocked up by crowds of well-dressed persons hours before the customary time of beginning business.

Never did budget receive a less favorable welcome. The only remitted tax is that on foreign copper ore, which only produces the trifling sum of £41,000. That portion of the financial expose which proposes to improve the national defenses has been virulently assailed, because it opens up the subject of the chances of a collision with France. Lord John Russell insisted that although there was nothing to justify a war, the nation must be prepared.

The attendance of the members was unusually large, and peers' sons, and others who have the entire on such occasions, mustered in great force. The bill to re-open diplomatic relations with Rome has sustained a check virtually amounting to a defeat. The feeling in England seems to be very strong against the measure, owing to the prejudice against the Pope and the Catholics.

The present Ministry are evidently doomed, and betray all the vacillations of lost men. Defeated in the Lords on the Diplomatic Relations, defeated in the Commons on appropriations, opposed on the budget—and obliged to make one explanation after another,—having recourse to a secret Committee for the estimates, and then giving that up as impracticable, their reign seems to be of but short duration. On Tuesday night they gave up the secrecy of the committee on the navy and army estimates they had proposed the night before. We shall now know the true reason for increasing those estimates.

In the House of Lords, on the 25th, Lord Hardwick moved for a Committee on the Navigation Laws; in a speech violently opposing any alteration of those laws, Lord Grey said the government did not oppose the motion, though they did not think it necessary. He believed that the enquiry asked for would show the strongest necessity for an alteration in those laws.

LATER FROM TAMPICO.

PETERSBURG, March 22. Express packages have come to hand to-day, containing New Orleans papers of the 15th and 16th.

Passengers arrived at New Orleans from Tampico by late arrivals give the information that a company of Illinois volunteers, under Capt. Lamb, encountered near Tancasnegui a reconnoitering party of Mexicans under Lieut. Corretel. At the first discharge by the Americans all the enemy, except the lieutenant and one corporal, beat a hasty retreat. The latter were captured, and taken to Tampico as prisoners, with a score of horses left behind by the Mexicans.

El Noticioso of the 4th inst. has a postscript announcing that Father Jarrata had been surprised with his command at Tencualpan by a detachment of the American troops, and besides the loss of some lives, the greater part of his force had been taken or dispersed.

The Markets.

PHILADELPHIA, March 23. The market is without material change in the demand for or price of the leading articles of produce, business continuing moderate, and gradually improving. The foreign advices have not affected breadstuffs materially, and we notice sales of about 5,000 bbls. Flour during the week at $6 per bbl. for good shipping brands, and $6.12 1/2 to $6.25 for selected lots and good Western. Rye Flour is scarce, with small sales at $3.75 per bbl. There is but little demand for Corn Meal, and the sales are limited, closing at $2 25 per bbl for Penn's. Sales of 2,000 bbls. Brandy wine at $2 50. The stock of Wheat is very light, and holders ask 140c. per bu. for good reds, which is above the view of buyers. Sales of 20,000 bu. Southern yellow Corn at 51c., at which it is now generally held, but buyers offer only 50c. Oats are dull at 37 3/4c. per bu. Cloverseed is dull with small sales of fair and prime at $3.75 a $4 per 64 lbs. Flaxseed is wanted at 145c. per bu. Sales of Whiskey in bbls. at 29 a 32 1/2c., and in bbls. at 23 a 23 1/2c. per gal.

A STRIKING PREDICTION.—Mr. Edwin Williams, in the Statesmen's Manual, gave a Biographical sketch of Mr. Adams, in which occurred this passage.—The event is strikingly coincidental with the prediction. "The subject of this memoir is now in his seventy-ninth year, and although his eye is dim and his natural force somewhat abated, he is still found at his post in the public services, where, like the Earl of Catham, it may be expected his mortal career may finally close."

CHANGES OF WEATHER AND CATCHING COLD.—It should be remembered that a cough is an evidence that some impurity is lodged in the lungs.

Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills are one of the very best medicines in the world for carrying off a cold; because they purge from the body those morbid humors which are the cause of coughs, consumption, difficulty of breathing, watery and inflamed eyes, sore throat, rheumatic pains in various parts of the body, and many other dangerous complaints. Three or four of Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills, taken on going to bed, will in all cases give relief; and, if the medicine be repeated a few times, the blood will be completely purified.

Beware of sugar coated counterfeits. The only original and genuine Indian Vegetable Pills have the signature of William Wright written with a pen on the top label of each box. None other is genuine and to counterfeit this is Forgery. The genuine for sale by
