Affected Deafness,

Affected Deafness. A stranger dismounted at the door of he—Hotel, and gave his horse to the of-ficious waiter. The barkeeper opened the register to take his name. "Yoo are right," said he, "a single room would be more agreeable," and he walked into the supper room to which the crowd al boarders were passing. The barkeeper ran after him screaming in his earle." On his return to the bar-room, a wai-ter took up his saddle-bags and told the deaf stranger he would show him to his barbar deaf stranger he would show him to his chamber. "My friend, who will spend the eve-ning with mo prefers plain cherry," said he. "You may send up a bottle, and a few cigars." "I did not," said the bar-keeper, "ex-actly understand your name." "I think a little ice would improve the wine," was the answer. "And now I think o' it, you may put the bottle in a wine-cooler." His friend now joined him, and they walked to his room to-gether. The deaf foger patronized the house to the extent of another bottle be-fore he slept. The waiter, who brought it up, yentured once more to inquire his name.

"Nothing more," said he, "except a slice of cold ham, a pickle, and a little bread and cheese." The next morning after breakfast when the stranger's horse was at the door, he asked for his bill.— He was told it was six dollars and three constants.

"You are very kind, I had expected to pay you; but if this is your custom, to charge nothing for the first visit, you shall not lose by it—all my friends in Spangeville will certainly give you at least one call when they come into this eity—good morning."

eity-good morning." "I would thank you to pay your bill before you go," screamed the har-keep, before you go," screamed the bar-keeper." "I am obliged to you," said the deaf gentleman. "I can put them on," and he took up his saddlebags and departed. As he mounted, the bystanders began to laugh inmoderately at the awkward em-barrasment which afflicted the bar-keep-er, who was in dispair, while he bawled after the delinquent who continued bow-ing, and repeating his assurances, that he would certainly remember the accom-modations, civility and liberality of the house, and recommend it to all his friends who might pass through the city. The gentleman who so well affected deafness won the wager he had staked on the suc-cess of his scheme, and paid his bill the next time he visited the city. The POWER OF CONSCIENCE.—A legal

THE POWER OF CONSCIENCE .- A legal friend in an adjoining county, mentions a very curious case of lunacy, the facts of which were developed in a recent in-vestigation. An Englishman, a resident a very curious case of number, the network of which were developed in a recent in-vestigation. An Englishman, a resident of this country for several years, recei-ved before leaving England quite a large sum of money as a legacy from his fath-er. Ho was worth previously a consid-erable property. By a codicil in the will be received one hundred and sixty pounds, which in the body of the instru-ment were reserved to a brother and sis-ter. This latter sum was secured by some persuasion and effort on the part of the recipient, although it has never been supposed that be resorted to any means possitively unfair or improper.— This additional sum, thus obtained, so pressed upon his thoughts and con-science as finally to drive him raving mad.

Buffalo Courter. PADDY'S BOOTS.—We heard a good story of a green sprig from the Emerald Isle, who, the other day, entered a Boot and Shoe Store to purchase himself a pair of bregans. After overhauling his stock in trade without being able to suit his customer, the shopkeeper hinted that he would make a pair to order. "And what will yer ax to make a good pair uv them ?" was the query. The price was named ; the Irishman demured, but after a "bating down" the thing was a trade. Paddy was about leaving the store, when the other called after him, asking :

after him, asking : "But what size shall I make them, sir ?

""Och !" cried Paddy promptly, niver ""Och !" cried Paddy promptly, niver mind about the size, at all—make them as large as ye convaniently can for the money."

There is a man in the south so miserly that, when he sells a negro, he shaves his head clean, that he may save the wool to stuff cushions, &c.

Destruction Brit as - A writer of much experime gives his views as to the best mode of destroying beings, which proves so great a petro on many otherwise, excellent, farms. He has tried every conceivable mode. Cutting off and hoed, the has repeated over and over again, without the least success—as the more he ent and beed, the more thrity they sprue gives being on the ground in with clover, thick y sown. The briars appeared next season as used to be briar and beed, the more thrity they sprue and the clover and the repeated over and over again, but they were sickly; sheep then were und yas the conjuder excit partian of the briars. This is an easy mode for most farmers to try, the writer is confident that clover is the great ensure of the briar and a sure extipator.
To Destroa Y Ecosen Beauss.—Sometime since indicate an inqury how to exterminate elder bushes.—I gave your own instructions.
To bearson Y Ecosen Beauss.—Sometime since of some the ground, it his is an easy mode for which work and the spring of 15.17. I had a piece of ground which two of three years' growth, and so from the ground, early in the spring. Thrify yabody sincested with elder bushes, the roots of some two or three years' growth, and so they grubbing.—I moved them off close to the ground, early in the spring. Thrify yabody spring on, and I let them off close to the ground, and I let them off close to the ground, and I let them off close the high of the moon in June.) I practised the same curses this last season is and in both cases was quite ascessful in expelling the backet without further trouble.—Cor. Other Calificates.
