

CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.]

Would he prove himself superior to the feelings of humanity in disregarding what influences all of us? Many a man, sir, has passed the meridian of his life, and been regarded by his fellow-citizens as a high-minded and honorable gentleman, and yet he has not reached its close, without giving painful and lamentable evidence of his weakness, if not of his guilt. And why? Simply because he has been placed in circumstances where he had to meet temptations which he had not been accustomed to—temptations which were too strong, too powerful to be resisted, and he fell as many a man has fallen.

These are some of the objections to the elective principle, which, together with many others, has great influence in regulating my conduct on this question. Again, sir, it is difficult to tell where this thing is going to end; what the next proposition will be, we know not; and perhaps it will be to elect the jurors. And if I had a voice, sir, that could reach the ear of every voter in this Commonwealth, I would call upon them long, and loud, and earnest, by all their regard for the wisdom of their fathers, the institution of their country, their own prosperity, public and private, to resist firmly this mad system of change which threatens the subversion of all their rights. So deep are my convictions, so fearful my apprehensions in regard to this aggressive policy that stops at nothing.

I voted against this resolution at the last session, for the reasons I have already enumerated. My course on the question, together with my vote, was well known. I met the people whom I had the honor to represent in the session of 1849, and a generous and intelligent constituency returned me here by an increased vote. During my election campaign, I mingled and mixed freely with the people, desirous of knowing what their views were with regard to this measure. I met them at various points in my county, never concealing my hostility to this amendment; but on the other hand openly and fearlessly avowing it, and from all I could learn, from all the information I could obtain, it is my firm conviction that a majority of my constituents are opposed to it—that portion of them, too, sir, whose business is not to play the sycophant or the demagogue—men who take a deep interest in the institutions of their fathers, who are unwilling that every monument of their wisdom, every evidence of their patriotism, shall be stricken down as unworthy of their regard or their imitation.

I have now done, sir, and whatever be the result, one thing is certain: in this matter I have met the approbation of my conscience. I have vindicated my self-respect and am willing to abide the judgment of a just constituency.

California.

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, in a letter under date of February 10, throws out the following important suggestion:

"There is only one fact which, when it shall come to the general knowledge of the people, may change the position of the slavery question. It is this, that the people of California, south of 36 deg. 30 min., are even more attached to the constitution which inhibited slavery than those north of that line. I am informed that, including the population of Monterey, (which is situated a little north of 36 deg. 30 min.), there were not in all that portion of California down to Mexico, more than TWENTY-ONE persons opposed to the constitution! This fact, which has not been known here, or at least not in an authentic form, has already alarmed certain southern Senators; and the question is now debated whether the South had better admit California with her present limits, or divide her in two, and in a little while have another free State knocking at the door of the Union for admission. It is not at all unlikely, then, that in a short time the North and South may change grounds on that subject—the North going for a division of a State of more than or about two hundred thousands square miles, and the South insisting that it shall come in as a State one and indivisible."

FATAL ACCIDENT.—The body of Mr. Benj. Shallenberger, Sr., who resided about a mile and a half above this place, was found on Friday morning last, on the bank of the Canal, between the warehouse of Wm. Patterson and the bridge. He was undoubtedly passing the bridge during the previous evening and in the darkness stumbled over the stone wall, which is not high enough to afford sufficient protection to passers by, and fell a distance of about twelve feet, striking his head against some stones at the bottom, and cutting a deep gash in the front part of his head, which probably killed him instantly, as he was found in that position in the morning.—An inquest was held on the body by Caleb Parker, Esq., and a verdict rendered according to the above facts. He was conveyed to the house of his son-in-law, Mr. John Wright, in this borough. He had recently sold out his personal property with the view of emigrating to the western country, where he had two sons, but an untimely death has terminated his earthly career.—Mifflintown Register, Feb. 11.

We are informed of a sale of twenty pounds of Calomel in California, for the round sum of $25,000. This is anything rather than throwing physic to dogs, unless the men who swallow these doses are to be considered of the canine species.—N. Y. Express.

THE GREAT CURE OF CHAS. G. JOHNSON, of Bristol. Who was pronounced incurably fixed in the last stage of Pulmonary Consumption, by two skillful Physicians.

Mr. Johnson was rescued from death's door by the use of Schneck's Pulmonic Syrup—having been prostrated all winter. His case was witnessed by several of the most respectable citizens of this state, whose names are appended to his certificate. Read! Read! and be convinced that Schneck's Pulmonic Syrup is the only certain cure for Consumption. Bristol, Bucks county, Pa. Sept. 21, 1849.

Dr. J. H. SCHNECK, Dear Sir,—I am induced from a sense of justice towards you, as well as duty to the public, to make known one of the most hopeless and extraordinary cures, in my own person, that you have ever had the pleasure to record. Indeed, I regret my inability to portray in truthful colors, my consuming disease, and the remarkable chance which Schneck's Pulmonic Syrup effected in so short a time.

I was taken some time previous to December 1848, with a heavy cold, producing incessant coughing, accompanied with acute pain in the right side, pains in the back, under the right shoulder, having heavy night sweats, high fevers &c., which made me so nervous and restless as to produce utter prostration. All these afflictions increased with such violence, that on the 4th of January last I sent for my family physician. He attended me faithfully, and prescribed every thing that medical skill could suggest, but without effect. I found myself gradually growing worse, and my hopes of recovery lessening as my disease increased. My cough became distressing; my pains severe; and, extremely debilitated, I lost all ambition of life, and gave up to a melancholy depression. My physician examined me, and informed me I had an abscess on the upper part of my liver and lower part of one of my lungs. Notwithstanding all this, I grew worse, but with tenacity with which we all cling to life, I concluded to leave nothing undone, and called in a consulting physician, who fully concurred with my own, and pronounced my case an extremely critical one. He thought I was in imminent danger—saying my disease "was one that is seldom if ever cured." All this time I was enduring sufferings that made life burdensome; experiencing great pain in coughing; expectorating from a pint to a quart of mucous matter every 24 hours, and gradually sinking under the weakening progress of my disease. At this stage of my illness, my friends in Bristol suggested the use of Schneck's Pulmonic Syrup, but knowing the many expedients resorted to for the purpose of draining money from the afflicted, I hesitated. My friends, however, insisting, I was prevailed upon to try its virtues. I commenced taking the Syrup about the first of March, and used several bottles before I had any confidence in it. I then began to experience a change for the better, and continued it till I had consumed ten bottles, when I was so far relieved as to be able to visit Dr. Schneck in Philadelphia. He examined me, and pronounced my right lung affected, but in a healing condition. He recommended the further use of the Syrup, which I continued till I consumed 15 bottles, and found myself once more restored to health. I will further add, that the consulting physician, seeing the action of the medicine, fully approved its use.

To give the reader some idea of the severity of my case, and the rapid cure effected by the Syrup, I will state that my usual weight in health was 177 pounds, which was finally reduced by my sufferings to but 121 pounds. Yet, on the first of this month, (September,) I weighed 174 pounds, thus gaining in a few months 53 pounds, and within three pounds of my heaviest weight. It is not in my power to convey, in the short space of this certificate, the convincing proofs of my remarkable cure, or the particulars of the agonizing afflictions through which I have passed; but to those who will take the trouble to call on me, at Bristol, opposite Pratt's Hotel, I shall take pleasure in detailing every particular. In conclusion, I deem it my duty to urge upon every person who may have the preliminary symptoms of this fatal disease, not to delay one hour, but to call upon Dr. Schneck immediately. His skill in the treatment of this complaint, and prompt detection of diseased parts of the lungs by means of his Stethoscope, added to my own miraculous cure, fully satisfied me, that had I earlier submitted myself to his care, I should have escaped much suffering; but restrained by doubts and suspicion, which make us all naturally skeptical in regard to the virtues of a medicine when first introduced, I resisted the importunities of my friends till almost too late; and yielded only as a last resort, resolved to "kill or cure." To those afflicted as I have been, again let me say, hesitate no longer, my own case is presented to you as convincing evidence, that when all else fails your last hope is in Dr. Schneck's Pulmonic Syrup. I have also for the satisfaction of those who may be strangers to me, appended to this certificate the names of gentlemen well known in the walks of public and private life, and whose standing in society admits of no cavil or doubt in regard to their testimony.

CHARLES G. JOHNSON. We the undersigned, residents of Bristol and vicinity, are well acquainted with Mr. Johnson, and know him to have been afflicted as he states above. We also know that he used Schneck's Pulmonic Syrup, and have every reason to believe, that to this medicine he owes his preservation from a premature grave. The known integrity and position in society of Mr. Johnson however is a sufficient guarantee to the public of the truth of this statement. LEWIS T. PRATT, Pratt's Hotel. LEWIS M. WHARTON, Merchant. CHESTER STURDEVANT, Coal dealer. JOHN W. BRAY, Merchant. JAMES M. HARLOW, Clergyman of the Presbyterian Church. S. B. HOLT, Hotel, Burlington. JAMES R. SCOTT, Book agent. A. L. PACKER, Coal agent. The Capital being paid up and invested, together with accumulated premium fund, affords a perfect security to the insured. The premium may be paid in yearly, half yearly, or quarterly payments. The Company add a BONUS at stated periods to the insurances for life. This plan of insurance is the most approved of, and is more generally in use, than any other in Great Britain, (where the subject is best understood by the people, and where they have had the longest experience,) as appears from the fact, that out of 117 Life Insurance Companies there, of all kinds, 87 are on this plan. The first BONUS was appropriated in December 1844, amounting to 10 per cent on the sum insured under the oldest policies; to 8 3/4 per cent, 7 1/2 per cent, &c. &c. on others, in proportion to the time of standing, making an addition of $100; $87.50; $75, &c. &c. to every 1,000, originally insured, which is an average of more than 50 per cent on the premiums paid, and without increasing the annual payment of the company. The operation of the BONUS will be seen by the following examples from the Life Insurance Register of the Company, thus:
