The Song my Mother Sings. It is the song my mother sings, And gladly do I list the strain

I never hear it but it brings The wish to hear it sung again.

She breathed it to me long ago, To lull me to my baby rest, And as she murmured soft and low, I slept in peace upon her breast.

Oh, gentle song, thou hast α throng Of angel tones within the spell,
I feel that I shall love thee long,
And fear I love thee far too well.

For though I turn to hear thee now, With doting glance of warm delight, In after years I know not how Thy plaintive notes may dim my sight.

The following from the celebrated Welsh prench-er, CHIRSTMAS EVANS, we consider on of the finest passages of pulpit eloquence we have ever read: After the prophet of ancient times had long ra-red through the mists of futurity, at the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow, a com-pany of them were gathered together on the sum-mit of Calvary. They saw a host of enemics as cending the fill, arrayed for battle, and most tre-rific in their aspect. In the middle of the line was the law of God, fiery and exceeding broad, and working wrath. On the right wing was Beelze bub with his troops of infernals; and on the field Calaphas with his Jevish priests, and Pilate with the law of God, fiery and exceeding broad, and grant, the last enemy. When the holy seers have any ling hit, they started back, and prepared for fight. As they looked round, they saw the danger that is before the ?" said one of the man agger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine anger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine anger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine anger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine anger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine anger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine anger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine anger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine anger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine anger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine anger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine anger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine agger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine agger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine agger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine agger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine agger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine agger, ?" her ro pied, "and trample them in mine agger, ?" her ro pie Bern Market Square, Huntingdon.

Many people think this celebrated man was only the orator of the mob. Such was Johnson's opin-ion, and it is one still current with many, who hate to believe that the man of tasts can be charmed by what pleases the million. But the idea is an erro-neous one. Hume declared that he would go twen-ty miles on foot to hear Whitfeld preach; and in his "chapel" might be seen the young Duke of Grafton, not yet pierced by the arrows of Junius, Charles Fox, William Pitt, and Soame Jenyus, John Newton, Cooper's friend, used to get up at four in the morning to hear the great Methodist orator at five; and even at that early hour, he mentions that the Moorfields were as full of lan-terns as the Hay-market of fambeaux on an op-era night. The following reminiscence of this fai-mous preacher is interesting; "His collections for charitable purposes exceeded any which have since been procurred by the most popular preach-ers. He once obtained, by a single sermon in be-haff of an obscure village in Germany, the extra-odimited that upon that cocasion he condescended to he intended collection in the following trems. Main is a hundred pounds. It must be shmitted that upon that cocasion he condescended to be intended collection in the following trems --We shall sing a lymn, during which those who do not choose to give their mite, on this awful occa-an may sneak off." Of course nobody moveq is when the singing was over, he directed all the ourse to be cloced, at which he took hit over a conder standing, which those to do the ores are now standing, which are ure.
