PEPSIN is the chief element, or Great Digest of Principle of the Gastric Juice—the Solvent of Food, the Partifying, Preserving, and Stimule of Agent of the Stomach and Intestines. I extracted from the Digestive Stomach of the k, thus forming an Artificial Digestive Fluid ecisely like the natural Gastric Juice in it benief abovers, and furnishing a Computer and led from the Digestive Stomach of forming an Artificial Digestive Fluid, like the natural Gastrie Juice in its all powers, and furnishing a Complete and Substitute for it. By the aid of this ion, the pains and evils of Indigestion and is are renoved, just as they would be by y Stomach. It is doing wonders for Dyscuring cases of Debility, Emachation, Nerschied, and Dyspeptic Consumption, supto be on the verge of thegrave. The Evidence upon which it is based, is it est degree Carious and Remarkable.

Integrary Curiosity.—The following, (as we learn from the Maine Democrat.) Is a copy of an excuse recently handed in to a school master for the non-attendance of one of his scholars:

"Cepatomiogoataturing,"

If our readers can make out to solve the above without having it labelled, we give up at once that they are more apt at such things than our humble selves—and for fear that there may be some who would not understand it without an explanation, we subjoin the following: Kept at hometo go a taturing!"
