BRITISH PERIODICAL LITERATURE.

Republishing of the LONDON QUARTERLY, THE EDINBURGH, THE NORTH BRITISH, AND THE WESTMINSTER VIEWS, AND BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE.

These periodicals are the critical consensers of the British scholastic and literary world. By their criticisms, they aid readers in the selection of standard valuable books; and by the epitomes which they present, often obviate the necessity of consulting works too voluminous for general examination. They fill a place which American magazines cannot supply; for they discuss topics relating more strictly to the affairs, political, religious, scientific, and literary, of the continent of Europe. They are connected by the best talent of Great Britain; and are engaged with the most important questions which interest or agitate the civilized world. Whoever subscribes to them all, may read the ablest representatives of the principal parties into which the people of Great Britain are divided.

The year is divided into two sessions of twenty two weeks each. Eleven weeks constituting a quarter.
No deduction made except in case of protracted sickness.

This School will commence at Shirleysburg on the last Wednesday in September. Instruction will be given in the usual academic studies, and in any branches of a collegiate education that may be required. The healthful and retired situation of the village, its beautiful scenery and the convenience of access by the railroad, render this place one of the most desirable points for the establishment of an Academy in the State.
The neighborhood of the flourishing Female Seminary, under the charge of the Rev. James Campbell, offers an inducement to parents who desire to send their children from home, together.
The very auspicious commencement that has been made, the industry of the students, the success, and the wealth and intelligence of the surrounding country, give assurance that the design of rendering this institution permanent will be sustained.
