

my head. So I went to bed, and he went down stairs, and after he was down stairs, the girl came into my room. I looked and I heard the door open, and I thought it was the boy come back again. She went out, and the boy come back in about five minutes, and said he had been delivering some books for Mary Ann Maguire. He asked me for the liquor, which he put up in the evening. I told him it was what he had to do, and I delivered the liquor to him. He said if he had more there any more. This was after he had delivered the books. I promised her (Mrs. Shaw) I would take it to her, said he. I promised it to her last night when I was on her lap. He reached there about eight o'clock, and she received him and took him into John W. Carroll's room. She said she had a young man and woman up stairs, and my boy stood in the front room until about five minutes past eight, when they went away. Then he and Mrs. Shaw had a drink together, so he started and said he would go and see where father was, and said, 'I will be back again, and at half past eight he returned to the room, and he said he had remained playing dominoes until a quarter to ten o'clock, and then he came back to Maguire's, and stopped in the bar-room until 12 o'clock, and then told Maguire 'father is in bed.'

So Maguire closed up 12 o'clock. He then started down stairs, and Mrs. Shaw was waiting, and told him she had blood to set the house on fire, and Mrs. Lynch came down stairs and hallooed, and pulled her off the stove, and said, you are going to set the house on fire. Mrs. Lynch put the fire out. This was the time the neighbors thought the murder was committed. So my son and Mrs. Shaw went to work and finished the bottle. He then took the money in the trunk. Mrs. Lynch heard him in the trunk, and he came down stairs. He then left and ran out and came home, and came up stairs to me, and told me what he had done, as above stated. He asked me for my pocket book. I said 'have you not one of your own?' He said 'mine is too large.' I asked him what he wanted with it, and said that he could find it in my pantaloons' pocket. There was nothing said about the money then.

The boy left the room, and I did not see him or know where he was until morning. When I got up in the morning, there were three new shirts on the table. He told me to put on a new shirt, for the shirt is broke and bloody from the fight with Carroll. I said, 'no my shirts are clean enough for me to wear.' He said, 'I took off my two shirts and folded them up, and put them under the table. In the morning I was called about 7 o'clock, to breakfast. I then asked my boy, 'where did you get those shirts?' He said he got the money that was in the trunk. I asked him how much? He said he did not know. I told him I would be suspected. 'No,' says he, 'I can prove you was in your bed.'

The boy was very uneasy, so after breakfast I went into the bar-room, and played dominoes with Tom Maguire. My son went out; I did not know where he went. It was raining hard. Some time after he came back from the rain. He said Maguire was in the bar-room, and had day to be out. He seemed to be uneasy, and he asked half an hour the officers came and asked for a man by the name of Spring. I said, 'I am the man.' They arrested me, and I asked the officers what I was taken for. They then informed me that I was for the murder of Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Lynch.

He never told me that he murdered the women, neither do I believe he had any hand in it, nor do I believe he knew anything about the murder, for if he had, he would have told me that night. These are my dying words. About Christmas time I frequently went to Mrs. Shaw, and was on very good terms with her. In regard to the murder of Mr. Bink, I have no knowledge whatever; I never saw him, nor was I ever in his store, neither do I know where his store was, except that I heard where it was through the papers.

In regard to the murder of Mr. Hope, I never knew the man or heard of him until after I was in prison. This is all I have to say.

The Execution.

In order to lay all the particulars of the execution before our readers, we proceeded to the prison early yesterday morning. It was about half past eight when we reached there, and we found few persons either within or without the prison. None of the public functionaries had yet arrived. The few minutes we had to spare were devoted to the inspection of the interior of the prison, which was clean, and with its usual cleanliness and good order. The keepers were all at their posts, and nothing except a few more than the number of visitors usually found within, indicated that anything unusual was to be enacted. We found the prison inspectors, Messrs. Crowell and Fletcher, attending to their duties, and learned that they had been there from six o'clock A. M. We learned from these gentlemen that the condemned had slept well during the night. The Rev. Mr. Street and Rev. Wm. Alexander having divided the night with him. To Mr. Crowell, who visited him at a very early hour in the morning, he said that he felt very comfortable and willing that he should go to the gallows like a man. At the same time he said, 'I am content, showing that he was fully sensible of his situation. The Rev. Messrs. Street and Kensil remained in his cell till midnight, during which time Arthur was asked how he felt. He answered 'I never felt better in my life; I never murdered no person and I expect to die a Christian. I hope to see my Father to extend His mercy to that boy and those girls, his children. And, oh, may the spirit of the Lord guide them, and may they find mercy among mankind, and may they find mercy in God! We pray that to take us all into Thy heavenly keeping; prepare us for the events of Thy providence; receive us into Thy arms, finally, in that multitude here in Heaven, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.'

Rev. Mr. Street.—He tells us that his son is entirely innocent of the murder. He made that statement last night at midnight to me in his cell, and he now declares before this multitude that the stain of blood is not upon the skirts of his coat.

Arthur Spring.—Gentlemen: I will go further and say—
Here he was drawn into conversation with those around him.
Rev. Mr. Kensil then advanced to the front of the scaffold and said:—He wishes to say, 'Gentlemen, and I will declare it for him. Arthur Spring approached his side, and in a clear tone of voice, spoke to those before the gallows as follows:—'Gentlemen, I went to bed that night about seven o'clock, and never got out of my bed until I was called to my breakfast in the morning. I never knew anything of the murder until the officers told me of it after the religious exercises on the scaffold were over, the Rev. Mr. Alexander took a black handkerchief from the prisoner's neck, and Jack Ketch being at hand, the straw hat was lifted off of Spring's head, and the white cap drawn over his face; the rope was then adjusted, and the prisoner's hand was shaken by the clergyman, the Sheriff and the Marshal. The Sheriff was the last on the scaffold. Immediately upon his descending the two props on the outer edge of the scaffold were removed, and the next moment, amid breathless silence, at precisely 17 minutes after 11 o'clock, the drop fell. The neck was broken by the fall, though the knot worked around to the back of the head.

The felon, however, seemed to die easy. In about two minutes after the fall he gave several convulsive shakes and two or three twitches of the shoulders, and all appeared to be over. At precisely 17 minutes of 12 o'clock he was pronounced dead and cut down. The body was removed to one of the rooms of the prison to await the order of his son.

The crowd outside was quite large, and great efforts were made to scale the wall. One person did get on the wall, and maintained his place to the end. The house tops and the trees in the neighborhood were all crowded.

sent him, to know if there was any hope of pardon or respite, and the answer was decidedly in the negative. The criminal maintained his composure during the reading of the letter, and at the close, protested his innocence in the strongest terms.

From ten to eleven o'clock, the number within the prison walls was increased to not less than five hundred persons—some estimated the number to be a considerable more. After half-past ten, it having been whispered that the execution would take place about eleven, the excitement within increased, but all was order and quiet, few talking above the ordinary tone. At a few minutes of eleven the Sheriff's principal deputies commenced to arrange the procession.

The Sheriff at this time was with the prisoner, together with the Clergyman in attendance, as follows:—Rev. John Street, Rev. T. Kensil, Rev. William Alexander, and Rev. Mr. Allen. Then religious exercises were gone through with, appropriate to the occasion; in which Spring joined.

At precisely 11 o'clock, all things being in readiness, the condemned was brought from his cell in company with the clergyman aforementioned, the Sheriff, Mr. Freed the Keeper of the Prison, the executioner, and the Marshal of Police.

The Condemned.
Arthur Spring, the condemned was dressed in a straw hat, (under which was the cap to shroud his face), dark bag-up coat, dark vest, and gray pants. His arms were pinioned behind him, and he walked, with a firm step, between the clergyman.

On the way to the gallows, the clergyman sung a hymn, but the prisoner made no effort to join in it.

The Execution.
The jack-ketch on this occasion was a negro, as we were informed, who wore a grotesque mask, representing a blooming youth. He was dressed in the prison garb, had his hands gloved, and wore a cap much like that of Spring.

Procession to the Gallows.
Mr. Anthony Freed took the right of the procession to the gallows. He was followed by the executioner, Next the prisoner, with the Clergyman and Sheriff. Then followed the Marshal and police board, wearing their badges. Next the Sheriff's Jury and Special Deputies. Then came the reporters of the press, and after these the citizens who were invited to witness the execution.

On the way to the gallows there was considerable confusion and disorder among those who were placed so to speak, in the close of the procession, but who wanted to break the line and be among the first on the hanging ground. The Marshal's Police finally restored order, but not without blood.

The prisoner was the first to ascend the scaffold, followed by the clergyman, the Sheriff and Marshal of Police. The hangman did not go up until after religious exercises were over.

The Sheriff's Jury, the Police Board, the Reporters and other public functionaries, were ranged in a circle round the gallows. The condemned bore himself with a good deal of coolness. The parties being all arranged on the scaffold, the proceedings were as follows:

Rev. John Street said:—Arthur Spring, you have been convicted of the murder of Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Lynch. The execution of that sentence is now to take place. I have not ceased to warn you of the necessity of repentance, and your making your peace with God. Are you guilty or not guilty of that murder?
Arthur Spring, with much feeling, replied, 'No, sir, no, sir!'

Rev. Mr. Street, (resuming)—It has also been alleged, and the Grand Jury have brought a true bill against you in regard to the murder of Mr. Bink—Are you guilty or not guilty of that murder?
Arthur Spring.—I never saw the man in my life.

Rev. Mr. Street.—I have but one more question to ask you. Before God, who sees you, and in whose presence you are standing, is your son, Arthur Spring Jr., entirely clear of the murder of those women?
Arthur Spring.—I believe he is. I believe that he had nothing more to do with it than I had.

Rev. Mr. Street.—May God have mercy on your soul. It is all I have to say.
Mr. B. F. Kensil, who took the scaffold kneeling down, prayed as follows: Almighty God, the Father of our spirits, the Redeemer of our soul, whose eyes are now upon us, who knows the secrets of all our hearts, we would approach the mercy seat on this solemn occasion through the merits and righteousness of our Lord Jesus Christ, and humbly beseech Thee to look upon this condemned man, who is to pay the penalty by the forfeiture of his life. We humbly beseech Thee, O Lord God, as Thou art acquainted with secrets of his heart and as Thou wilt knowest who was the murderer of those for whose death he is now to suffer, if he is guilty. [The condemned here shook his head violently.]

Rev. Mr. Kensil (continuing)—to move his heart. Do Thou, oh Lord, so move him that he may declare, before God, his Maker, whether he is the guilty man or not. And, oh Lord God, we humbly beseech Thee, this compassionate One, to look upon him in mercy; to forgive his sins, and receive him to Thyself. We would pray that He will graciously extend His mercy to that boy and those girls, his children. And, oh, may the spirit of the Lord guide them, and may they find mercy among mankind, and may they find mercy in God! We pray that to take us all into Thy heavenly keeping; prepare us for the events of Thy providence; receive us into Thy arms, finally, in that multitude here in Heaven, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Rev. Mr. Street.—He tells us that his son is entirely innocent of the murder. He made that statement last night at midnight to me in his cell, and he now declares before this multitude that the stain of blood is not upon the skirts of his coat.

CONFESSION AND AGREEMENT.—In a lesson in reading the sentence "Man courting in capacity of Miss," &c., the word courting came to a young Miss of fourteen to parse. She commenced hesitatingly, but got along well enough until she was to tell what it agreed with. Here she stopped short, but the teacher said: "Very well, what does courting agree with?" Ellen blushed and long her head. "Well, Ellen, don't you know that it agrees with 'it'?" "Yes—Yes, sir?" "Well—Yes, why don't you parse that word? What does that agree with?" Blushing still more and stammering, Ellen said: "It agrees with the girls, sir!"

$500 CHALLENGE!
Hobensack's Worm Syrup.
An article founded upon Scientific Principles, composed of pure vegetable substances, having been perfectly and safely used, and has been known to fail in curing the most obstinate case. Worms can never exist when this remedy is once used, from the fact that it only destroys them, but it removes all the slime and mucus which may remain.

The Tape Worm.
This worm is the most difficult one to destroy of all that inhabit the human body. It grows to an almost indefinite length, and becoming so coiled and fastened in the intestines and stomach as to produce fits, St. Vitus' Dance, &c., and is the cause of many going to the grave, not believing that these complaints have their origin from the Tape Worm; consequently they do not use the proper medicines for their disease. To those who are afflicted with this kind of complaint, I recommend the use of my Worm Syrup, and Liver Pills; the Syrup to be taken in doses of two table-spoonfuls three times a day, then take from 5 to 8 of my Liver Pills, to disengage and purify the bowels, and strictly following these directions, the most obstinate cases of Tape Worm can be speedily cured.

Round or Stomach Worms.
This worm is usually found in the small intestines, and is the worm most common to children, yet is not entirely confined to them, as adults have frequently been known to suffer with them. The symptoms most prominently will be affected with this worm, are hardness and fullness of the belly, slimy stools, looseness of the bowels, picking at the nose, a bluish streak under the eyes, &c.—If you, or any of your children have any of the above symptoms, Hobensack's Worm Syrup can safely be depended upon—by using it you have a certain, safe, and speedy cure; and if after using it according to the directions, the patient is not cured, the head and worms thoroughly eradicated from the system, you rest assured there is no remedy beyond the grave, as for fall, there is no such worm as fall with those who use my Worm Syrup.

Ascariæ, or Small Thread Worm.
These worms, to which the human system is liable, are the most troublesome of all others.—They are generally to be found in the rectum, and if allowed to remain, from the irritation they produce, lay the foundation for serious disorders, such as inflammation of the bowels, and other derangements of the stomach. The best and safest medicine that can be used is Hobensack's Worm Syrup. Such is the astonishing power of my medicines over Ascariæ, that I defy any one to produce a case where my Worm Syrup and Liver Pills are recommended to be used, they will not cure. All that is necessary to use the Syrup in accordance with directions on each bottle, and in case a gentle purgative is required in order to allay the irritation they produce, the Liver Pills by their sympathizing action and healthy operation will be found to be the most pleasant medicine that can be taken.

Hobensack's Liver Pills.
No part of the system is more liable to disease than the Liver, it being supplied with numerous blood-vessels and nerves, and if diseased, the blood of course flowing through all parts of the body, produces the most dangerous and dangerous Bilious Affections, Dyspepsia, &c. &c. Liver Complaint. Is attended with chills, succeeded by fever, severe pains in the region of the Liver, vomiting, bitter stools, yellow furred tongue, pulse full and bounding, the pain in the side is increased by pressure, the abdomen is distended, the patient is generally in the left shoulder, with a short, dry cough, the skin becoming of a sallow appearance, and the stools clay colored. This disease can be cured by the use of my Liver Pills, as they act directly upon the seat of the disease, and then operating upon the bowels they expel all the corrupt and vitiated matter from the system.

Dyspepsia.
The symptoms of Dyspepsia, and its various diseases are dizziness in the head, heartburn, oppression and eating moods, sourness arising from the stomach, &c., and sometimes general lameness of the whole body, from this it will be seen that the disease owes its origin to a disorganized state of the Liver and Stomach. Hobensack's Liver Pills, being a very medicinal effect, permanent and lasting cure, as they act by changing the certain morbid qualities of the system into a healthy action, and rendering the blood pure and healthy.
