THE ELECTION AND ITS MORAL. When any election has resulted in the suc-cess of one or another party, says the North American, it is not worth while inquiring as to the extent of the triumph or the defeat. Nor is it of any utility to ascertain every secondary influence which has contributed in producing one question in the late strong lee which, with a very large portion of the people of the com-nonwealth and the city, overrode all other ques-tions, and temporarily superseded or subordina-tions, and temporarily superseded or subordina-was the liquor question. It embraced the pro-position shelter the exceedingly prohibitory haw passed by the last state. Legislature nerva-tion to the sale of intoxicating liquor, should be repealed or maintained, and though this is see was distinctive and formally made latteneo. In the space allotted for the extensive manifecture of whickes, we noticed a comple of very elegant De repealet or maintained, and though this is sue was distinctly and formally made but upon one side—the temperance vote as such, being, in reality, of too little force to be estimated as an element in the election—it was consided, in once the singular complication of affairs while esta-ded, to sway a controlling and decline prover, the over the result which followed. Though it is not have a desire and decline the singular conthe singular complication of standy where she ted, to sway controlling and decirks power over the result which followed. Though it is not known what was the precise strength of the 'Liquey League,'' as the opponent of the 'Liquey League' as the opponent of the two great political parsies it might choose to coalesce with it in the canvas, the dominant and victorions part, ''League' saw fit to east the weight of its vore plainment of its own particeliar aims, the 'League' saw fit to east the weight of its vore 'y anneronae. No matter how salutary the purpose of a law inny be, or howsoever commendable in its moral aspect, abstractly considered, experience has abundantly, shown that, unless it can be sanotioned by the com-mon sense, and submitted to with the willing consatered, a community, it must be practicable consent of a community, it must be practically inoperative and fail of its objects. Even if it inoperative and fail of its objects. Even if it were capable of being temporarily enforced, yet under a system of government in which the popular will is sovereign, all such laws as are oppressive and, most especially, all oppressive sumptury laws, undertake to interfere with the private tastes and fixed personal habitudes of the people, are liable, at all events, to be ear that he act passed at the last session of the generally regarded by the citizens of the entire. All persons of sense and endor must see and admit now, that to have passed an act of the kind yas a grave mistake on the part of its friends. Their general was a good and proper one, but they fall into the final error of defeat ing their design by attempting to effect it in an impracticable manner. We believe that this the the sense the sense the sense the sense are called and the sense the sense the sense the sense the sense receipts will overrun the expenditores. The sense the se ing their design by attempting to effect it in the server, is unusually large, considering it was an impracticable manner. We believe that while the great body of the voting inhabitants of Pennsylvania are unwilling to have their server, is unusually large, considering it was a solution of this description. The next one, however, wo feel antifield, will exceed the past; we judges of form there is the matter excessively restricted, yet they would not oppose any well intende enactment, moderate in all its ends, no such word as fail," when the mind wills.

THE COUNTY FAIR. THE COUNTY FAIR. It is a source of pleasure to be able to an-norme to our readers that the first Apricultur-at and Mechanical Exhibition ever held in Huntingdon County's surpassed our most sam-guine expectations. The fair was held in West Huntingdon, the grounds being laid out with great care, and well adapted for the purpose. Thousands of spectators were present-indeed we have seldom seen our borough so overflow-ingly fail of visitors. Some eight or ten thou-sand persons, it is estimated, were on the sand persons, it is estimated, were on the shup precommends a seminated, were on the grounds on thursday. In the fruit line, we may safely say, this fair carried off the palm. Never have we seen better vogetables, than were ex-hibited latt week. We feel proud of our old county. We had only time to take a hasty sur-ure of the weak-off of the set of the set of the set. county. We had only time to take a hasty sur-vey of the wonderful things exhibited, but as those of our readers who missed the treat in not being present may wish to know a thing or two about them, we will notice a few, very brief
