THE NOBILITY OF LABOR .-- We have often ondered at the foolish ideas some folks have out "labor." We know certain individuals about "labor." We know certain individuals in Huntingdon, who tille their time, about the corners, loading in the stores and shopts who tilthe consider labor as degrating, or are too lazy to arouse themselves; they consider labor and reliable to the constructed the ships that plough the ocean, and the swift locomotive that bears your commerce from State to State; they have stretched the wire and the cable, and sent messages of fire around the globe. These are only a few of the physical triumphs of toil and labor. In the intellectual and moral world, labor. In the intellectual and moral world,

LIPPINCOTES Pronouncing Gazetteer of the World,

Geographical Dictionary.

Graphical Dictionary.

Comprising nearly 2200 pages, including a Greater Amount of Matter than any other single volume in the English Language; giving a description of nearly one hundred thousand Places, with the correct pronounciation of their names, being above 20,000 more Geographical Notices than are found in any other Gazetteer of the World. Edited by J. Thomas, M. D., and T. Baldwin, assisted by several other Gentlemen.

From the Hon, Edward Everett.—This work has been evidently prepared with great labor, and as far as I can judge, from the best materials and sources of information. The principles adopted in ascertaining the pronounciation of proper names, (as stated in the introduction) appear to me correct. This is a matter attended with some difficulty and uncertainty, but it is treated with great ability and in a very satisfactory wanner in your introduction. I have no doubt your Gazetteer will be found an extremely useful work, well calculated to supply a want which must have been severely felt by almostevery class of readers."

From J. E. Worcester, L. L. D., Author of Worcester's Critical Dictionary.—"Ilaving has some examination of Lippincotts' Pronounciation, I take pleasure in expressing a concurrence generally, in what is said by the Hon. Edward Everett, of the value and excellence of the work. The difficult subject of the pronounciation of geographical names, appears to me to have been with great care, good taste, the of the work. The difficult subject of the nounciation of geographical names, appears are to have been with great care, good taste, sound judgement and this Feature of the etter must add greatly to its value."

rom the Hon, Robert C. Wintrop, "I known Gazettees as consider the product of the control of the with the magnitude and costiness of the diductaking."

From Washington Irving, I fully concur with eo opinions given by Mr. Everett and Mr. Fintrop of its merits, and with their wishes for swile circulation.
