from being injured by the husk, and are very durable.

Those who have purchased and examined them consider that they supersed all other machines of the kind in utility and cheapness. We would request all the readers of the Journal will receive, and who are in any way connected with the farming business to purchase one or more of these machines.

Any one sending $2,00 to the editor of the Journal will receive, postpaid, one of these machines, or two for $3,50, one dozen for $15. There is no deception in these machines, hundreds of recommendations can be given of them, but we deem it unnecessary.

They are manufactured by the best mechanics in our cities, and will not get out of order by long usage.
