WORTH REMEMBERING.—Sarsaparilla or the extract thereof, is a favorite prescription with many of best physicians, and at this season largely used to purify the blood, and strengthen the constitution. The preparation manufactured by Mr. Hurley of this city is universally admitted superior to any that has for years been offered to the public, and the large and increasing demand fully justifies the assertion. It is used with decided advantage in Scrofula, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Cutaneous disease, and all affections arising from an impure or weakened condition of the blood. Let no one be deceived into using any other.

GENERAL WILLIAM F. PACKER.

We hear the friends and supporters of this gentleman constantly boasting of his great experience in State affairs, his large public service, and his thorough knowledge of all the public wants. They do this with an air of triumph, and contrast his career vauntingly with that of Mr. Wilmot. Now, what is this experience, and what has been his character?

He came first into public life as Superintendent of the West Branch Canal, and remained in that position from 1832 to 1835. During that time he was before a Legislative Committee, and was censured upon two points: first for changing notes of the Bank of Pennsylvania, to the amount of $15,000, in which the State was then a stockholder, for notes of the Bank of Middletown, not then at par, and paying it out to the contractors along the line, and also for using improperly the reserved fund of 15 per cent. withheld from the contractors to insure the completion of their contracts.

During the same period he was one of the "Panic Shriekers" against General Jackson, and took part in a public meeting held at Williamsport, to condemn "Old Hickory" for his veto of the bill for a recharter of the United States Bank, and for his removal of the depositors. This, however, has nothing to do with his experience as a public man, but we cite it as an evidence of his thorough paced Democracy, and as such commend it to the faithful.

From 1835 until 1839, he remained a "high private," always seeking office, but never able to obtain it. Upon the accession of Governor Porter to the Chief Magistracy, he was appointed Canal Commissioner. During his term of office he was before two Legislative committees of investigation. By one of them he was pointedly condemned for giving a contract to his brother at a price far beyond what other good bidders offered to do it for. It was proved before another that he retained Victor E. Piolet as Superintendent upon the West Branch when he knew him to have an interest in a contract.

Whilst Auditor-General, he was again a witness before two investigating committees; and although every circumstance connected with the investigation pointed to him as one who ought to have known all about it, he, when called to the stand, poor, innocent, inexperienced, stout, knew enough to know nothing!

Whilst in the Senate, he voted to revive a law to give slave masters a right to bring slaves into this State, and hold them here as such for six months in the year. He voted also against resolutions instructing our Senators to extend, if possible, more ample protection to "our agricultural, coal and iron interests," than was given by the law of 1847. He gave five dissenting votes for different prohibitory laws, and yet his friends are now urging him as the anti-temperance candidate for Governor.

Is this a record containing the evidences of fitness for office, which his friends would have us believe he possesses?

"Huntingdon" shouted the conductor, and out of the window went our knowledge box, in the face of a warning in metallic letters, that personal injury might result from it. We were at a loss what to make out of Huntingdon. It looked to us as if there was a grand struggle for the supremacy going on there between enterprise and affluent industry. The Broad Top Railroad and the gas works now building, as well as numerous other outward tokens, give evidence that there are more enterprising men about. But there were glaring evidences that many of the inhabitants having secured enough to live upon comfortably, are unwilling to do anything for posterity. With them it is "come day—go day,"—their life is listless, and as useless to the good of society as a second candle appendage would be to a comet.

So speaks the editor of the Lancaster Times, who has been paying us a visit. We would be disposed to quarrel with him, concerning the sharp cornered brick he throws at some of our citizens, did we not feel his remarks to be "too true." We have a class of men among us, who like the dog in the fable, will neither eat nor hay themselves nor permit the ox to eat it. Men who "feel their keeping," who are "rich enough" and who discountenance and discourage improvement solely from a fear of paying one cent more taxes. Until we shall become rid of these nuisances, those draw backs to our prosperity and dead-weights to progress, by some special act of God's providence and mercy, we must content ourselves with the sluggish spirit of old-fogy inactivity which has so long kept our energies in "durance vile."

Nature has done everything to make us a place. We do not fully appreciate our position. It is useless to go into details about the advantages we possess above our sister towns, they are many. All we lack is public spirit, nothing else.

Straightouters.

We say, without hesitation, that there is not a man advocating the miserable abortion nominations of the Lancaster Convention, that is not either,

First, So weak-minded that he does not know any better, or,

Second, That he is in the pay of the Locofoco party; or,

Third, That he is not personally interested in the next election, because he is "fixed off" as he thinks for a few years; or,

Fourth, Is the contemptible serf of some one who gives him bread and butter, or,

Fifth, Is preparing to follow the lead of his former master, William B. Reed.

Again, we assert, as only honesty dare assert, that the man who calls himself a Native American, and opposes David Wilmot, belongs to one of the above enumerated five classes—we make no exception.—Sun.

Some Washington letter-writer, in giving an account of a visit to Gen. Cass, reports him to have said:

"Office-seeking in men, women and children, has become our national malady. God only knows how it is to be checked, or in what direction the cure lies."

Pretty well this in the old General, to be sure. Having himself, by the diligent and pertinacious labor of a long life, climbed to the top of the ladder, or as near the top as he ever expects to get, the old gentleman rolls up his eyes in lamentations over the malady of office-seeking, and is prayerfully turning his attention toward finding the means to abate it. He has done more, we fear, by his own example to spread this alarming malady than he will ever be able to do, whether by preaching or praying, to abate it.

A MILITARY SUGGESTION.—We learn that at the recent gathering at Lexington, it was suggested by several military officers that a grand review of all the volunteer companies in the United States be held at some suitable time on the prairies of Illinois, and be reviewed by the President of the United States and Gen. Scott and Staff. A grand suggestion.—Cincinnati Gazette.

LOCOFOCO CORRUPTION.

We clip the following from the North American, and bespeak for it the attention of every honest man in the State. See the beauty of Democracy:—

"In the Court of Quarter Sessions, on Saturday, the 18th, all the Judges being present, a decision was rendered in the long contested District Attorney election case. The opinion, which was read by the President, Judge Thompson, and is very long and a thorough and able review of the evidence presented in the course of the investigation, will
