

FARMER'S COLUMN.

He that by the plough would thrive, himself must either hold or drive.

Hollow Horn.—This disease is generally considered as being produced by poor feed and a want of shelter from the cold storms—though this is not always the case—A correspondent of the "Prairie Farmer" gives the following as a cure for the disease, and says that he never knew it to fail: "I take a common pint cup or basin, fill it half or two thirds full of warm water, put as much salt into the basin as will dissolve, cool it to about blood warm, and pour it into the creature's nostrils; the head of the animal must be held with the nose up, that the brine will be sure to go into the head; then give them two or three slices of fat salt pork; cut or split the end of the tail, I then make more brine, have it as hot as I can bear my hand in, put in more salt than will dissolve; with this rub the coris of the neck and the roots of the horns. I think brine put on this way, is better than spirits of turpentine, as a preventative of hollow horn. In some very bad cases of this it may be necessary to repeat this dose two or three times, but not oftener than every other day."

Dried Apples.—Apples should be dried as soon as possible after they are cut, to have them light colored; stems and kilns should be used in preference to putting them out on scaffolds to run their chance for rain or sunshine; and as soon as dried they should be boxed up tight, to keep them from the insect which deposits their eggs among them and produce the worms which spoil so many of them. In this way they may be kept for years with perfect safety.

To Kill Cockroaches, Ants, &c.—Equal parts of dry red lead and sugar, well mixed, is given as a certain and sure exterminator of cockroaches, black and red ants, and other pests. As every household is more or less plagued with these vermin, this receipt, so easily provided, should be tried. The simple mixture should be put in places infested by them. Care should be observed in the use of it, as the lead is poisonous.

Delicious Dressing for Roast fowls.—Spread pieces of stale but tender wheaten bread liberally with butter, and season rather high with salt and pepper, working them into the butter; then dip the bread in wine, and use it in as large pieces as is convenient to stuff the bird. The delicious flavor which the wine gives is very penetrating, and it gives the fowl a rich, gamey character, which is very pleasant.

To Keep Worms from Dried Fruit.—It is said that a small quantity of sassafras bark mixed with dried fruit will keep it free from worms for years. The remedy is easily obtained in many localities, and is well worth an experiment, as it will not injure the fruit in any manner, if it does not prevent the nuisance.

Hair Brushes.—To wash hair brushes never use soap. Take a piece of soda, dissolve it in warm water, stand the brush in it, taking care that the water covers only the bristles. It will almost instantly become white and clean. Place it in the air to dry; with the bristles downward, and it will be as firm as a new brush.

How to make Soft Soap.—Two pounds of potash, six gallons of ley, two week to make soap of, dissolve the potash in the ley and add six pounds of clear grease and boil from six to eight hours. This quantity will make five gallons of soft soap.

Labor Saving Soap.—Take four pounds of hard soap; put in water enough to dissolve it; then after dissolving an ounce of borax, stir in, and put in a pan to cool. Then cut in pieces convenient for use, and rub on the stains and dirt before boiling.

To stop mouse holes.—Stop mouse holes with plugs of common hard soap, and you will do it effectually. Rats, roaches and ants will not disregard it.

To Prevent Mould in Books.—A few drops of oil of lavender will save a library from mould. Sprinkle it about.

STOP THAT SUCKER.—Good cows, many times, are in the habit of sucking themselves, and many ways are tried in vain to prevent the mischief; and young calves are always in the habit of sucking each other's ears. This may be prevented by a composition of spirits of turpentine, musk, and asafoetida. Heat them all well together, and when cool, give the cow a large spoonful on the roots of the tongue; then rub a little on the cows' legs, about the roots of the teats. If the cow still continues in the habit, cut of the fingers of an old glove, slip these over the teats, and saturate them well. They may be taken off when you want to milk. Always give your patient a good taste of the medicine before you rub it on. Calves may be treated in the same manner. If musk is not convenient, the composition may be made of spirits of turpentine and asafoetida.—A. L. SMITH.

To dye a very dark blue.—Add to a common indigo dye, one tablespoonful of madder to one ounce of indigo.

RUNTINGDON WARM SPRINGS. The Warm Springs at the base of Warrior's Ridge, five miles north of Huntingdon, overlooking Standing Stone Creek, and surrounded by romantic hills and woodlands, have been leased by the State to the proprietor, Wm. A. Batchelor. The extensive Hotel buildings, both houses, &c., erected at great expense by General A. P. Wilson, have been completed—and the groves have been beautifully laid out and adorned.—The hotel and grounds are comfortable and commodious, and the prospect, from the verandas for beauty, cannot be excelled.

For half a century, these Springs have been celebrated for their medicinal qualities, and the great nature of the water is rheumatic and chronic affections.
