OUR DEVIL'S ANNUAL LAY!

The Carrier's Address TO THE PATRONS OF THE Star & Republican Banner. JANUARY 1, 1836.

-Look HERE! I pray you Genteels all? Attend ye to the Carrier's call, Who now as he was wont to do Presents his best respects to you, And does his dogg'rel metre jingle, Hoping its melody may mingle, Harmoniously with the tingle

Of your money so shining, so clear, and so fair, The sound of whose music to him is so rure.

A long yarn now I will not spin, For fear its substance might get thin; In a few words, without delay, I say, I'll say, what I've to say: So take a journey with a Devil, You will find ev'ry bit as civil, As the fam'd "two stick" imp of evil, And you'll surely enjoy observation not small. Of men and their manners, all over earth's

We Anties, hold our heads erect, Since Ritner's Governor elect, And by all good and bad we swear, To rip away, and pull and tear, Until Grand Masters we will humble, Till all their Lodges down shall tumble, And till their Altars all shall crumble, Till their Priests and their Knights shall Republicans be,

And live as plain spoken, plain dealing as

Our Legislative men have met, And to constructing laws have set. And 'tis expected that we'll see Daylight soon shine through Masonry. A bill's been introduced by Stevens, That will take up both "odds and evens," And give the Widow's Son no leav'ns. And cause Pennsylvania Masons t' express In a hurry the Grand Hailing Sign of Distress.

The Junto have had their machine Up street, disgorging, spurting spleen, For a good while—but strange, it flies Right straight again into their eyes, Although with all their force they send it And for destruction do intend it, Public opinion back doth send it; And it has corroded them so much that I Do really think they cant help but soon die.

You all do know our party's split, We'll not be injured by the slit. Just wait a while, and please to let The Philadelphians once have met. I'spose you know with what intention, True Anties did make their declension At the late Harrisburg Convention, They would not for President nominate one Like Harrison; who's a trueJack; or there's none.

Although 'twas my opinion long, That Jackson's course was often wrong, Yet in this ugly French affair, It is my notion I declare, That he has acted with reflection; That 'twould be right' were our connextor With them dissever'd; no election Should ever we have 'twixt disgrace and a fight, But if we are slighted, for war cry out right.

The most important news, that from Across the seas to us has come, I think is an account of what I'd call, a musket barrel plot. Fieschi was a noble tory; And was the hero of a story That's given him enough of glory. Although he came very far short of hisaim, a half Log Barn, and an Orchard. Seized And sent from the world those who were not to blame.

Now my good Sirs, I'm at the end, And here you have what I have pen'd, Solely to please you—'tis the mite I give t wards your New Year delight. Porhaps again my chimes I'll ring you, Perhaps again my rhymes I'll sing you, If Time another New Year bring you. So here is my hand, and please just slip in As much as you like of the nice root of sin-
