with choice extracts from new works of substantial excellence. The Editor acknowl-edges with pride and gratitude his obligation to their friends, who have expressed a strong desire that the New-Yorker should appear in a form more susceptible of preservation than the his regular contributors-and among them are present. It is neither anticipated nor hoped some whose names have shed lustre on the cause that it will receive a patronage at all commenof American literature-for the steadfas' support hitherto afforded him, and the confidence surate with that of the folio edition. They would frankly express their conviction that, for with which he is now enabled to assure the pubthose whose interest in a journal expires with lie that it will not soon be withdrawn. He takes pleasure in recalling the fact that, since the establishment of the New-Yorker, no one the week in which it reaches them, the latter will be decidedly preferable, sside from the difference in price. Accordingly, when an order other journal has afforded specimens in equal extent and variety, of the productions of all em-inent American, writers of whatever section or for "The New-Yorker" simply, without specific cation, is sent them, the folio will invariably bclass-a characteristic which he hopes it may sent. Address still preserves while his selections from the best foreign works have been exceeded-in quantity at least - by those of but three or four among the myriad of dis-Atlantic periodicals.

II. NATIONAL POLITICS.—It has been the sim of the Editor to present a full and fair exhibit of the aspects, movements and struggles, of parties in our country, including the meeting of Conventions, nomination of candidates for State and National Offices, and all other significant mani-festations of political feeling, with the general results of elections, as fast as ascertained, and the official canvas in each instance, as soon as it shall have reached us. This course is believed to be in many respects original with this journal; and it is considered that we have just cause of felicitation in the fact that, pursued as it has been through two years of unremitted political warfare, the fairness and general accuraci of our statements and returns have very rarchy, if ever, been questioned. The Editor reserves to himse f the right of remarking, as rance. circumstances may seem to require and justice to dictate, on the less exciting publical topics of the day, is on all others, with calmness, de-ference and moderation; but he will still thrive -he trusts not less successfully than hithertoto exclude from the columns of the New Yorker every observation, reflection, or even argument, which may wantonly do violence to the sincere convictions of any well informed reaent occupied by him. The situation is pleasant and terms reasonable. der, of whatever principle or p-rty. III. GENERAL INTELLIGENCE. – In this depart-
