THE IRIS.

A Miscellany of Morals, Meterature, Solence EDITED BY

Jas. Cooper & Wm. M. Reynolds.

Tan Parss, beyond a doubt, is the grand level which now moves the intellectual world. Among Teams that will load at Wrightsville, will civilized nations, public opinion bows so submisalways get the Philadelphia price, only de-sively to no other power; even despots reverence

Of course, it may be an instrument either of good or of evil-an Ithuriel's spear of truth, or a 3m-33 sorcerer's delusive wand. The obstinate defender of exploded doctrines and the wild propagandist of the latest theory alike make this their weapon of attack and defence; and by its means may the friend of truth most successfully refute error and lisseminate the pure principles of right reason. In one of these ways, we may rest assured, it will be employed; for never can it be fettered or silenced, and thus will the world continue to read and be ruled by its reasonings. In the present state of society, books, periodicals, magazines and newspapers may be reckoned among the necessaries of life, for which the appetite and demand are becoming alike universal. Is it not, then incalculably important that a proper direction be given to this feeling, so that it may be productive of all the benefits which it promises?

We have long believed that the weekly newspaper might assume a character somewhat different from that which it has usually had-that it might be made to come more home to the bosoms and business of men-that its interest might be deepened-its moral tone elevated-its usefulness ex tended far beyond its present limits.

Desirous of contributing somewhat to the furtherance of such an object, we propose publishing a weekly journal under the above title. The Ints will endeavor to keep constantly in view and steadfastly advocate the objects to which it is professedly devoted. Regarding virtue as the surest source of individual happiness and national prosperity, we shall endeavor to illustrate its principles and enforce its precents. Laboring for "the many," we shall offer to the people the 'Key of knowledge, that they may thus keep in their own hands that power which will otherwise ere long glide from them into the hands of "a few." Looking at all useful labor as not only the true foundation of wealth, but also honorable-discoveries and improvements in the arts, agriculture and kindred subjects, will claim a due share of our attention.

Whilst we aim at combining "the useful with the agreeable," we hope to avoid the danger of dulness, on the one hand, and that of pandering to the corrupt taste, on the other.

Studiously abstaining from party politics, we shall think it our duty to discuss important points of policy. We shall also attempt to give an impartial account of domestic as well as of foreign affairs. With this brief exposition of their views and plans, the Editors throw themselves upon the indulgence of a discriminating public, pledging themselves, if they meet with encouragement, to render the work worthy of patronage.

TERMS.

I. THE IRIS will be published weekly, on a halfsheet of imperial size, on paper of good quality, and in a handsome style, for one dollar and a half per unnum-one hulf payable in advance, the remainder at the expiration of six months-If payment be not made within the year, two dollars will be charg-

Wednesday the 9th of November next. The op-erations of this Institution commence under very its most sanguine friends could have anticipated. And the Trustees feel themselves happy in having secured the services of gontlemen, as Profeswho have been appointed to their respective de-partments in the Institution. And it is the deof Christianity.

S. W. Budd, Jr., M. A. Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.
Rev. J. F. Bero, A. M. Professor of the Latin and Greek languages and Belles Letters. Intellectual and Moral Philosophy will be taught by one of the Faculty, until a Professor for this department can be obtained. One of the Faculty will also teach the French language.

Rev. WM. A. Good has been chosen by the Faculty as Rector of the Preparatory School, connected with the College, and under the immediate inspection and assistance of the Faculty and in which every branch of Science and Liter. ature is taught necessary for the admission of students into the College, or for those pursuits and occupations for which their parents or guardians may design them. The annual expense of each student, for tuition in the College, will be 930, and in the Preparatory School, 826. Boarding can be had at the house of the Rector, who is propured to accommodate about 16 boarders. Parents and Guardians may feel confident that a vigilant attention will be bestowed to the mor als, habits and manners of the Students while connected with the College.

The location of Marshall College is peculiarly favorable for such an Institution. The town Mercersburg is in general remarkably healthy. It stands in the great Cumberland Valley, and is surrounded by a fertile and well cultivated ountry, with a range of lofty mountains at some miles distance on eitheir side, mountain and vale presenting a scenery at one striking and beau-

Under the impression that the Trustees of this infant Institution can, in good faith invite public attention to it as a seat of sound and thorough Literature, Marshall College is most cerdially recommended to the American community, and especially to the German part of that community for whose benefit it is especially founded, as just! meriting in the opinion of its founders, publiconfidence, and a cordial general patronage. All Editors, favorable to the great cause Education, by giving this notice one or two in sertions in their respective papers, will be entitled to the sincere thanks of the friends and patrons of our rising Institution.

NATIONAL ENQUIRER

AND Constitutional Advocate of Universal Liberty. Edited and Published by Benjamin Lundy.

THIS work has recently been established with the view of advocating the cause of Universal Emancipation. The Editor, having devoted more than eighteen years of his life to this important subject, and having, nearly the whole of this period. superintended the editorial department of another publication of similar character and views, conceives it to be unnecessary, at present, to give an exposition of his particular sentiments in relation to it. Yet it may not be improper to state explicitly, that the principal aim and leading object of the work, will be THE IMMEDIATE AND TOTAL ABOLI-TION OF SLAVERY IN AMERICA, by the most efficient moral, judicious and Constitutional membered-when but a solitary voice (except its own occasional echo) was heard throughout the land, in favor of a restoration of the "inalienable rights," and redress for the innumerable wrongs, of the American bondman. It was a dreary night of hopeless, soul-depressing toil and care! But within the period above mentioned, a mark-T is with pleasure the undersigned announces within the period above mentioned, a mark-to the public that Marshall College, chartered ed and visible change has been effected; a wonderful impetus has been given to the prolast winter, and located at Mercersburg, Frank- gress of the holy cause; and the brightest lin county, Pa., is to open its first Session on cheering rays of hope and confidence in succheering rays of hope and confidence in success, are beaming around us. It is true that flattering prospects. The number of Students, much yet remains to be done, in order to who are waiting to enter it, is much larger than guard against and ward off the awful, impending calamity, which has long threatened the peace and safety of our country. A sors, combining a high degree both of talent and severe contest is yet to be waged with the sors, combining a high degree cool of their and attainment. Entire confirence may therefore be demon of oppression, ere the vengeful arm reposed in the competency of the Instructors, of Justice shall be stayed, and the power of moral truth established, and the renovation of our social system effected. We must, sign of the Trustoes to increase the number of of our social system effected. We must, Professors as the wants of the Institution may therefore, buckle on the armor of righteous require, and as soon as the necessary arrange. persevering energy-renew our zeal and ments can be made. The gentlemen who compose the Faculty of the College at present are,

Rev. F. A. Rauen, D. P. President and Professor of the Hebrew, Greek, and Geman landary and the enslaved—engage with more fervor guages, and Literature, and the Evidences in supplication, at the Throne of Almighty Power, for the successful termination of our arduous, yet glorious undertaking. Wit such views as are here expressed, he editor of this work has assumed the station which he now occupies. He long since entered with alacrity this great arena of moral warfare, and yields to none, in the disposition to sustain the principles which he nas for many years reduced practice. "In [Slavery's] field advancing his firm foot, He plants it on the line that Justice draws, And will prevail or perish in her cause." The co-operation of all who are friendly o the object of the work is desired, and their patronage is generally solicited. Every exertion will be made to render it instructive and entertaining, while the appropriate motto will be ever recollected-"Fiat Justitia Ruat Cælum." Terms of Publication .- The National Enquirer is published every Saturday, at

No. 223 Arch Street, Philadelphia. The price of subscription is Two Dollars per INNUM, payable half yearly, in advance. Twenty six Numbers will constitute a Volume. Any person who will procure subcriptions, and forward the money for the same, as aforesaid, will be entitled to six copies of a volume complete, for every Five Dollars advanced. The Advocates of Eman. cipation, generally, are requested to use their influence, and lend their assistance in obtaining patronage, and in circulating the Letters and communications must be forwarded to the editor, free of expense, or they will not be attended to. This regulation is absolutely necessary, to prevent imposition from the opponents of our cause.
