FROM THE LADY'S BOOK. MESSIAH'S RINGDOM. BY THE REV. J. N. BROWN.

THE GABLAND.

TIME's solemn music! Can she forget His touch is marked by swift docay; That scenes by fancy burnished yet, Will soon be vanished all away; And, ere a few more years are fled,

We shall be mingled with the dead? She cannot! and the mournful thrill Of Feeling, waked by Memory's hand,

Is trembling o'er her bosom still, Unawed by Reason's stern command. And still she looks for scenes sublime. Beyond the withering touch of Time.

Nor looks in vain! For lo! secure, MESSIAU'S KINGDOM now appears, Destined in glory to endure,

Uninjured by the lapse of years; But rising still, in richer bloom, When earth has met her final doom! KINGDOM OF PEACE! The passing year

Hath wider spread thy gentle sway: And gazing on thy bright career,

We hail the dawn of holier day-When God's high will on earth is done-All nations blest in Christ his Son! See! every hill, and vale, and plain, Echo's the Missionary's tread; See! souls redcemed from endless pain, Are up to heavenly glory led.

And from Earth's hosts one shout is sent-"REIGN ON, LORD GOD OMNIPOTENT!" The kingdoms of this world may pass,

Like billows of the restless sea; Wealth may waste, and as the grass The pride of youth and beauty be; But souls that own Messiah's sway, May smile amid a world's decay!

EMPIRE OF LOVE! The ravished eve Wanders o'er all thy scenes of bliss,

And owns that all beneath the sky Is poor and mean, compared with this! Here rests the soul with joy divine:---Oh, be my interests link'd with thine!

FOR THE GETTYSBURGH STAR AND BANNER THE EPHEMERIS. NO. V.

THERE is a trait of character, more general than nost persons suppose, which never fails to excite my deepest commisseration: It is that of the man who permits Imagination to obtain a greater control over him than REASON. Whenever this interesting faculty is employed in occupying the mind with waking dreams, and on Tuesday the 23d day of January next, in picturing scenes too improbable over to take at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, to hear then) place, to the exclusion of subjects of real import-ator, philosopher, statesman, or historian, or perhaps all of them at the same time. When tired of this, he can make himself a king or emperor. If his crown rest heavily on his head, Le is forthwith metamorphised into a shepherd, a highwayman, or a missionary. And thus in the space of a few hours, he may live the lives of a dozen men, and meet with a greater variety of fortune than ever really happened since the world began.

If the visionary be a female, (and ladies are said to have more imagination than those of the other sex,) she will doubtless give herself up to dreams of love, courtship, or matrimony. If she be plain in appearance, no matter, she will give herself a form of the most enchanting beauty .---Suitors without number will be at her feet. In imagination she will hear them whisper the soft tale of their affection. After enjoying the delightful gratification of dismissing a reasonable number of broken hearted swains, some lucky fellow will over the marriage ceremony, and perhaps fill up [Cer!" the picture with a family of sons and daughters, bout for a second husband.

I verily believe that in this account of the abuse of the imagination I have not gone farther than truth will justify. Doubtless many have been carried to oven greater extravagances than those I have mentioned. Now, besides the waste of time consequent on the misapplication of this fa- "I flattered her until she got to be too proud culty which God intended we should employ for to speak to me." better purposes, the person who dwells too much on imaginary scenes acquiries a disrelish for the situation in which he is placed, and therefore suffers great pain and distress, when he is obliged to revert to the scenes of real life.

Were I called upon to assign the cause for this evil habit, I would not hesitate in attributing it almost universally to the reading of works of fiction. The world is filled with petty romances, plays, and novels, whose tendency is to corrupt sir," was the reply. the taste, deprave the intellect, and inflame the passions. And a modern novel reader will always is to produce the very same disease of the imagination.

Those, therefore, who have the education of youth intrusted to their charge, should restrain them from indulging in much light reading, as it embarrassments that he had not been blessed is called, in order that in the next generation there
