Mints in Regard to the Corn Crov.

The following remarks from the pen of Judge Buell on the Corn culture we recommend to the bably there is not a respectable former in Licking County who would have taken it as a gift, and occupied it. It is a part of what is usually called the pine barrens, in that country. Yet by skilfully applying manures adapted to the soil, and with like skill cultivating his crons he makes it one of the most profitable and productive farms in the Union. The practical advice of such a farmer we present to our readers, and if they doubt its utility, let them try the experiment on a small scale, and test for themselves whether his mode is worth pursuing.

PRESERVATION OF SEED .-- Our practice is to turn upon the seed, the evening before planting, water nearly in a boiling state.---This thoroughly saturates the seed, induces an incipient germination, and causes the corn to sprout quick. The next morning we take half a pint of tar for half a bushel of seed, put it into an iron vessel with water and heat it till the tar is dissolved, and the liquid becomes tar water. It is then turned upon the seed, and well stirred. It adheres soil are cold and wet, and it preserves it prey upon it. After the seed is taken from tongs called the shovel "my dear." the steep, where we never leave it more than 15 hours, as much ground gypsum in mixed with it as will adhere to the kernels. The gypsum prevents the kernels from adhering to each other, and favors the after growth of the crop. Ashes or lime may be substituted for gypsum. The seed should be planted while it is moist, and immediately covered. It should not be long exposed to the sun.

DISTANCE IN PLANTING .- This must depend upon the variety cultivated, and the richness of the soil. The Dutton or dwarf like Balaam-stopped by an angel.' growth, and upon well manured ground may by two and a half. Southern corn, and some old varieties in the north grow taller and require more room. As a certain quantum of food is required to bring each stock to maturity, poorly manured ground cannot feed so many stocks as that which is highly manured.

QUANTITY OF SEED AND COVERING .- From using too little seed and recklessness in cov many corn fields are deficient one balf of which ought to grow upon them .---We drop six or eight kernels in a hill and per." take special care to have it covered only with fine mould, if dung, sods, sticks or buried too deep. the seed may rot before the state.' soil is warm enough to produce germination; if too shallow it may lack moisture. These are little matters though they have a great influence upon the profits of the crop. The extra expense that would have incurred to do these things perfect, might be four quarts of seed and one day's labor to the acre-and the advantages would often be doubling of the crop. Two inches is a sufficient covering, if the hill is trodden upon, as it should be by the planter, to compress the earth and preserve its moisture. AFTER CULTURE -In this the plough should not be used if the corn harrow and cultivator can be had, and if used should not be suffered to penetrate the soil more than two or three inches. The plough tears up the roots, turns up and wastes the manure, and increases the injuries of drought. The main object is to extirpate weeds and to keep the surface open and mellow, that the heat, air and moisture may exert the better their kind influences upon the vegetable matter in the soil, in converting it into nutriment for the crop. At the first dressing with the hoe, the plants are reduced to 4 or three in a hill. At the second dressing, a like process is observed, taking care that the earthing should not exceed one inch and a half, that the hill be broad and flat, and that the earth for this purpose be not taken from one place, | next; and those who have claims against but gathered from the surface between the said Estate, are requested to present them, rant all I put up to answer the purpose conrows where it has been loosened by the cultivator. HARVESTING .--- The crop should be cut at the ground as soon as the grain is glazed or as soon as it will do to top, and without being laid on the ground, set immediately in shocks. There are four substantial reasons for adopting this mode of harvesting. It clears the ground carly for a fall crop, and quently effected cures after all other prepait saves labor, in harvesting; and we may rations had failed. Its efficacy is attested add a fifth, it makes a better crop of grain, by many certificates, which can be examinunder any contingency than when it is top- ed on application to the subscriber. ped in the old way. We are confident of this last fact. The grain continues to profit the Drug Store of Dr. J GILBERT. by the unelaborated sap below the car in the topped corn. HUSKING & CRIBBING -Theears should be gathered from the stocks, and the latter stacked, as soon as they have become suffi- dispepsia or indigestion, nervous debility ciently dry and cured, as unnecessary ex. giddiness, headache, acidity of the stomach, posure to the weather is prejudicial both to habitual costiveness, cutaneous diseases, grain and forage. IN SORTING THE GRAIN, WE make three parcels, viz. sound corn for the crib, pig attention of our farmers. Judge Buell is a good corn, embracing the ripened but defected farmer in the Seld and with the plough, as well as lears, and the truly soft and smutty ears, in the closet and with the pen. He cultivates a which are not husked, but thrown by for imsmall farm of about 60 acres, within three miles | mediate use. The silk and husks are care from Albany, of land originally so poor that pro- fully separated from the two first parcels, as they imbibe moisture, induce mouldiness and afford building materials for mice. We also separate the grainless tips and stems, of that we place in the cribs, for the like reasons, and to preserve the grain in a sound bright condition.

THE FORAGE from the corn crop, when saved in the manner we have directed, is an excellent fodder for neat cattle, if cut for feeding out. We have used it in this way, exclusive of hay, for two years, and find it answers all the purpose of hay. Our practice is to cut a quantity, to mix with it bran or roots, cut up, when we have them, and to sprinkle the mass with brine, and to feed in mangers.

ABSENCE OF MIND .- We lately read of a man, (says the New York American,) who, from absence of mind, put his candlestick to bed, and blew himself out; but the following, from a respectable source, is more astonishing:

Mr. Editor-One of the most remarkable cases of absence of mind occurred in our to the grain and gives it a thin transparent neighborhood last night, that I ever heard coating.
