the following article on Gratuitous Advertising.

Every body knows, or ought to know, that the publishing business is one of large expense----omploying a great number of persons, and an extensive capital; that ev ery paragraph set costs a certain sum of money in the composition, or setting up of the type, and occupies a certain space which ought to yield a proportion of income to the w proprietors. Every body must know, too, that the main source of this income is the portion of the sheet devoted to advertisements, and that to ask the gratuitous inser tion of an advertisement, or of a communication, or an editorial notice to serve in the place of one, is literally asking the publisher to incur an expense of a dollar or more | York. without making him a farthing in return.

It is to all intents and purposes asking him to take a sum of money from his pocket and present it to the applicant. Yet this thing is done every day, and many times mond. every day ; and that too by men who have no earthly claim on the charity of the publisher, and who can without adverting to the fact that the object of the advertisement or communication, is to promote their interest, and not that of the publisher.

There are scores of persons who would never dream of walking into a tailor's shop and asking for the gift a waistcoat, or into a hatter's and begging to be favored free gratis with a hat, yet can see no impropriety in calling upon the publisher for the gratuitous announcement of a course of lectures, or a patient fly-trap, or any other no tion, in the bringing of which before the public they happen to have an interest.
