HERNIA, OR RUPTURE, CURED BY " HULL'S TRUSS

Thas been ascertained beyond contradiction, that persons can be cured permanently and effectually of Hernia or Rupture by the use of Hull's Truss. Numerous certificates could be produced from Gentle, men of the first respectability that have been cured by wearing them. It is not only the easiest to wear of any Truss ever invented; but it keeps the Hernia perfectly reduced, so that the person can ride or labour as well as if not thus afflicted. A trial of this instrument would once convince every person of its superiority over any other article that could be offered for the same disease.

Stanzas.

BY THOMAS E. COCHRAN.

How deeply is the feeling fix'd Within the human heart, That yarns when life's last day shall pess When social bonds shall part-When roving from our native stand, Upon the heaving sea, To wake in those whose forms we love, Thy influence, Memory !

And many a plan has been contrivid, To gain this darling aim, And keep alive in each lov'ed heart Friendship's etherial flame : A star that gems the brow of night -A flower whose bloom has fled-A letter sent from far-recall The distant and the death.

The fond desire I entertain, By this my humble gift, That I may live within your breast, When you its pages lift; And as you all its lines peruse, And give your fancy scope, Think then upon the giver then, And thus fulfil his hope.

Then though his steps may wander far Through earth's bewildering maze, And low ring sorrow spread its clouds Above his cheerless ways, Tough calumny his name assails With her defiling breath, And danger bears him onward to "The breaking brink of death ;

Though severed from the many a smile For meny weary day, I'm from thy presence long exil'd, And from thine eye's bright ray ; One joy shall still my bosom light-One thought console me yet.
One hope shall strike athwart thy gloom THAT THOU DOST NOT FORGET!

Then, lady take this little book. And of e its every page-Ritells what can embellish youth, And Beautify old age; Religion ! that competic which Cleanses from every stain, Washing the guilty soul of man In blood frem Jesus' vein.

It is the charm that drives away Each racking pain of earth, And in the sin-sunk, grovling mind To better sims gives birth : It elevates our eyes beyond The world's conffected spehre To Heaven, whose wide expanse shines forth A light forever clear.

If friends desert or foes attack, If slander should assault Our characters, or enmity Emblazor every fault. Or proud oppression press us down Beneath its heavy load, Or hatred, penury or pain

Our souls to maduess goad; Let us but "look aloft" to where Cerulean glories shine-Lay hold upon the cross where flow'd The Saviour's blood divine; We'll find support in all our need, Trusting in him who died To bring salvation to the world-Jesus, the crucified.

Lady ! may'st thou this boon enjoy, And feel its blessings shed. As each successive year rolls round More fully on thy head; May wordly cares fade and decrease, O! be it to thee given To have on earth unrufiled peace, And perfect bliss in Heaven!

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

CONTINUED PROM OUR LAST. It is a matter worthy of inquiry, whether the roofs of most of the larger bridges on double track laid on each, at small cost to 30 00 the state. It would, beyond a doubt, form a tora of the bank of the United States, of great improvement, by wholly removing all fering to the executive, on the faith that the justify. At the commencement of the session danger from collision of trains, and decreasing very greatly the risk of total loss of the bridges by fire. It is believed that the present structures, with some additional timbers and slight alterations, could be made to answer this purpose by being lowered below the level of the road way.

Under these circumstances the first duty of the public agents was to take measures that, the business of transporters and others, who relied on the state works as a medium of transportation, should suffer as little delay or loss as possible. Accordingly the toll was taken off freight on ninety miles of the canal between Huntingdon and Duncan's Island, and subsequently off passengers, to enable the companies to meet the unexpected and heavy expenses necessarily incurred in the line.
