FELLOW CIT ZENS : It appears to me an appropriate occasion in transmitting to the Legislature m first annual measure to contemplate for a few moments the peculiar change in the circumitances that attend its present meeting, from those which attended the meeting o the last legislature. The members of the present legislature come together in a spi rit of peace and amity, to perform the various important duties confided to them by the people. Jarring and discordant interests will not, I trust, distract their councils nor "contested elections," love of office, or reluctance to yield submission to the will of the ansierity, disturb their harmonious action, and shake for a time the confidence of our si-ter states and of the world, in the integrity and stability of our republican gov

The scenes witnessed at Harrisburg on the 4th day of December, 18:18, and for se veral ensuing weeks, are too memorable to be soon forgotten. During that unfortu nate period, for the fifst time, in the history of this commonwealth, was it deemed neces sary, by those entrusted with the functions of the government, to appeal to militar fores, to protect the civil authorities in the discharge of their owh duties, against the al leged interposition of a portion of the oitigens of this commonwealth, who were present a the seat of goverhment, as was their privilege, to witness the ceremonies of organizing the Logislature. Whitever disorderly occurrences took place in the house of represent tatives und in the senate, on the day al eady named, are to be deeply regretted ; but still more is it to be regratted, that these occurrences found the least cause to create, or palliation to excuse them in the conduct of men, whose stations, whose duty, and whose oath all compiled to restrain them from flugrant and wattion violations of the law and the con-mituition. It is a melancholy symptom of insubordination, and hostility to the restraints of social order, when even private citizens openly set at naught the laws of the land :-it is conclusive proof of a spirit worse, far worse in its tendency, when officers solemnly sworn to oney and execute the laws trample them contemptuously under foot. In doing to, they seen to forget that not only public officers, but even laws, and constitutions of government, exert their authority over a free people, only by virtue of public opinion. Withdraw from them this potent support, and they fall alike powerless and unbeeded.

The public officer will possess the confidence, and enjoy the respect of the people; so long as his conduct is conformable to their wishes, their wants, and the law; but he will possess the one and enjoy the other no longer. The law or the constitution will remain in force while it is believed to be capable of promoting the public happiness and public good. The moment either ceases to be productive of this result, it is subjected to the wholesome remedy of repeal or modification. The laws of nature, and the recognized principles of our own free government, point out the justice and the duty of this course. These elementary principles should be ever present to the mind of those who are in vested with authority. They would enforce the lesson inculcated by all experience, that no officer of the people can depart from his duty, and continue to command their respect and their support. They would admonish public functionaries, that those who larget them, those who determine to resist the popular will, and treat elections as if they had not taken place, must expect, on the part of the people, the keenest disapprobation, the mounts to the vast sum of $34.141,668 +0 deepest popular commotion, and it may be the most fearless and patriotic defiance of their -of which the sum of $29,914,003 32 bemenaces and their power; against which even legistative enactments are vain, and the ing due upon state loans bears an annual in bayonets of any other suldiery than those of a standing army are pointless, impotent and iterest of $1,494,700 16. unavailing In such emergencies they, would learn that they, could put no reliance on This aggregate state debt (with the exthe aid of "citizen soldiers," for they will participate in the feelings and the wrongs of ception of $160,000 00, appropriated at To which deficiency for said year their fellow citizens, and refuse obedience to those who would command them, if they the last session of the legislature to the sur-
