HOW STANDS THE QUESTION! From the best consideration of the subject which we can give, the state of the Presidential election may be set down as follows:

For Gen. Harrison-Vermont, Massachusetts, R. Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, New York, Delaware. Maryland, Ohio, Indiane, Kentucky, Illinois. Michigan,

149 Making/ For Mr. Van Buren-Maine, N. Hampshire, Arkansas, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama. S. Carolina

Six States giving Pennsylvania, Doubtful, Missouri, Tennessee, Louisiana, N. Carolina. Virginia,

It will thus be seen that the whole electoral vote is 295—and that taking all the at Alexandria, Va. on Saturday, 23d May taken in exchange. Please give me a call. States assumed as certain for General Har. 1840. rmon, he will be elected by a single vote; that should be lose New York, and carry Pennsylvania and Virginia, he will be elected by twelve votes; and should he lose Maryland and New York, he must get Tennessee or North Carolina, or some other State, in addition to Pennsylvania and Virginia, to be elected.

We ask our readers to examine this lable as sensible men. We ask them to look at the Virginia Electoral Ticket, and ponder for a moment on the names of those who compose it. We happen to know the political opinions of thirteen of the twenty-three, and of that thirteen, eleven were the original friends of General Jackson, and State Rights men. When we go into Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, North Carolina, and the South, we will find many who were originally for Jackson, and State Rights Saturday, May 30th 1840. men, who are now among the most active and zealous supporters of General Harrison; and we know that there are many others who, if they can be induced to hear argument and believe facts, will swell the number-and who are deterred by the appre hensions that General Harrison, if elected will be under the influence of men whose political opinions and principles they disapprove; whose objections are not to what they know him to be, but to what they fear he may become, under the influences that will surround him.

Wice of Virginia, thus epigrammatizes the history of Gen. Harrison:

"It proves him to be a patriot, a success ful soldier, a republican of the plain strict, stern school; a statesman of enlarged views, looking to his 'whole country,' and to all its parts, for practical wisdom; a benefactor of all its parts ever entrusted to his guardianship and care; a scholar, a writer, an honest man, and a gentleman alike beloved in his private, and gloriously renow-ned in his public life. What more can be said of any man? I believe there is not a man of our country now living who can point to a life of greater usetulness and of more distinguished public services, both civil and military, than Gen. William Henry Harrison."

Year after year I have expectorated over a gill a day; often much more, and sometimes mixed with blood. For months together, night after night, I have had to sit or be bolstered up to obtain my breath. The weakness and debility caused by such constant expectoration, frequently brought me to a state bordering on death. It has been a matter of astonishment to my family and friends that I am here to write this to you. I have had skilful physicians to attend me, and every thing done that was thought likely to give me relief, without any beneficial effect. Last winter I had another severe attack of Inflamation of the Lungs, which I fully expected would be the last. I then considered my case as past he did, and with such complete success, as the aid of medicine, when I was persuaded to call to be able to resume his business in a few on Doctor Jayne.
