· For the Journal. Mr. Editor-My attention was attracted recently by a statement contained Am't of excess of expenditures over m a Review or Synopsis (published in your paper of the 14th inst.,) of a lecture delivered not long since, by the Rev. C. M. Blake, upon the subject of Missions.-The Reviewer represents the Rev. Lectuner as saying that "Cicero and Seneca, Paid county commissioners for ser-Socrates and Plato, were guilty of the grossest immoralities, such as would for Paid to assessors, the present day." It was not the good fortune of the writer to be present on the recorder's accounts. fortune of the writer to be present on the recorder's accounts, occasion alluded to, but it is very evident Paid for incidental expenses, that your anonymous reviewer has not paid to grand jurors, done justice to Mr. Blake. It cannot be paid to traverse jurors, possible that any person so well versed in the History and Literature of the root. in the History and Literature of the past, Paid for road viewers, rould have charged Socrates with gross, could have charged Socrates with gross paid for commonwealth costs, frimes; to say nothing of the other illustrious names mentioned. What were those crimes Mr. Editor? By what History were they recorded? Upon what authority gould they have been asserted? Paid for public printing & blanks, We have all keep and stationery. Paid for public printing & blanks, We have all been taught to think differently of the character of Societies. He was charged indeed with recorrupting the Athenian youth," but the same page informs us in what that corruption consisted. So Jesus of Vacantia and the same page in Paid for boarding prisoners, and to tipstaves, Paid to tipstaves, Paid to clerk hire cd. So Jesus of Nazareth, a few years later, was charged with "corrupting the Jews." They both suffered the penalty of their deeds—death. But my object in writing at this time, is not to discuss. Paid for clerk for extra services, 18 00 Paid for justices returns, 8 90 Paid for viewing bridges in 1856, 42 12 in writing at this time, is not to discuss.
