" It ish so Good as a School for Him." -Such was the remark of a German who recently subscribed to the Journal. We thought it singular that he should become a subscriber, when, in fact, we knew he could scarcely read a word in the language in which it is printed. But he soon put us right in the matter, by informing us that he had a married daughter who had alittle boy who was just fairly initiated into the mysteries of reading, and for his sake and benefit he had subscribed—for, said he, the boy can learn many things in it that he cannot learn in school; indeed, "It ish so good as a school for him."
