THE GIFT OF LOVE.

"Give me" I said "that ring, Which on thy taper finger gleams;
Sweet thoughts to me 't will bring When summer sunset's beams Have faded o'er the western sea, And left me dreaming, love, of thee!'

"Oh! no!" the maiden cried; " This shining ring is bright, but cold: That boud is loosely tied Which must be tied with gold! The rings would soon forgotten be:

Some better gift I'll give to thee!" "Then give me that red rose," Said I, "which on thy bosom heaves,

In ectasied repose, And droops its blashing leaves: If thou wouldst have me think of thee, Fair maiden give the rose to me!" "Oh! no," she softly said. "I will not give thee any flower:

This rose will surely fade; It passes with the hour: A faded rose can never be The emblem of my love for thee!"

"Then give me but thy word-A row of love-t were better yet," I cried: " who once has heard Such vows can ne'er forget! If thou wilt give this pledge to me, Nor ring nor rose I il ask of thee! "Oh! no." she said again;

" For spoken vows are empty breath, Whose memory is vain When possion perisheth: If e'er I lose my love for thee, My vows must all forgotten be "Then what," I asked, " wilt thou,

O dearest ! to the lover give? Nor ring nor rose nor yow May I from thee receive; And yet, some symbol should there be To typify thy love for me!"

Then dropped her silvery voice Unto a whisper soft and low:
"Here, take this gift-my choice-The sweetest love can know ! She raised her head all lovingly, And smiling, gave-a kiss to me!
