THE ISLE OF THE FUTURE.

BY IDA M. HOLMES.

Just o'er the horizon rim of the soul An island of beauty is seen; While the waves of the present incessantly roll And murmur their dirges between.

No night settles down on its glorious bills, No glare in its valleys will burn: And the air every moment of blessedness fill With a music we never can learn.

Tis the Isle of the Future—it keepeth afar 30 00 In the mystical annicht that falls 16 00 Where the gate of Eternity standeth sjar, And the Angel of Mystery calls.

16 00 Thro' the storms that the years will bring to We dimly may err of its truth;
But we will not forget, mid the darkness an

LAUNCH THY BARK.

When we rest in its valleys of love, And the Coming-a glorious Present-shall In the unchanging glory above.

Now launch thy bark upon the wave, The sea is spreading wide, And boldiv gaze upon the flood Nor fear to stem the tide. Ha! shrink'st thou from the dashing spray

The sky above is clear,

And kindred spirits lead a voice

To battle with thy fear. No coast I see within the sight To make assurance firm, And shall I venture in that bark-That flaunting bark-this germ Upon you wide, uncertain wave? On! something in my heart

To feel the coward's part."

Keep high thy heart, and firm thy trust. And spure the frowning wave. Nor conquers o'er the brave.

Does not this sweeping, mighty world Speed in a space immense?

Tis will commands, and mind that guides,

The watchful bark from fancies free, Shall meet no devious way-Then steer it like a trusty shaft Along the dashing spray: Let TRUTH and Hoxuz steer the helm, And let your metto read. I never swerre from duty, when There's Justice in the deed."
