Sigvery in the Territories. From the Washington Union.

Enquirer no very pertinent to the atti-We observe an article in the Richmond tude of polities at this moment, that we a popy a lengthy extract from it into our editorial columns:

But while pounseling unity and harmony, Virginia is not unuindful of the great questions that are yet unsettled with regard to Slavery in the Territories. Virginia sees that though the constitution recognizes, and the Supreme Court sustaine, her right to carry elaves into a Terrivery, yet she also remembers what Judge Douglas so pointedly brought to light in "Illinois, that this right may be regarded pull and void by the non-action of the Territorial Legislature. While Virginia recognizes no power that can compel a Territorial Legislature to enact those laws pecessary to protect the constitutional rights of slave-holders, yet she does hold that Congress has the right, and is in duty bound to protect Slavery in the Territories until the people of a Territory, when ou the eve of forming a State Government, may decide the question finally for

., the tuture State, This question is one above the plat forms of parcies, and must be met and decided constitutionally in favor of protection, or unconstitutionally against it. It cannot and must not be compromised. If the Cincinnati platform does not provide for this question, it must be made to meet

"This question of protection to Slave ry in the Territories will have to be met, and the South will demand her constitutional rights; these rights are recognized in the Constitution, asserted in the Kansas-Nebraska bill, admitted by the Cincinnati platform, and have been sanction- All of which they will sell AS LOW AS CAN ed and adjusticated by the Supreme Court; and, with this array of authority, the South will demand the legislation necespary to render valid the rights so amply recognized by the party, the country, the Congress, the Supreme Court, and the Constitution.

... The right to reclaim fugitive slaves was given by the Constitution; the Northern States refused to legislate for the practical enforcement of this constitutional right, and Congress was compelled to prowide the legislation necessary to the usefulness of this provision. So it is with regard to Slavery in the Territories .--There is no power to coerce a territorial Legislature to do its constitutional duty, and Congress must supply the legislation withheld by the dereliet Territory.

"Invention for protection is a fundamental principle with the South, and a wiser or better remark never felt from Covernor Wise than the following extract from his Illinois letter:

Protection in the Territories and everywhere, to all rights of person and of property, in ac-sordance with the rights of the States, and of
