A NIGHT-PIECE.

BY READ THORNTON.

Sweet sleeping child! how doubly blest!
Soft pillowed on thy mother's breast,
That swells with slumber's balmy rest.

Deep within a creamy deep!
Her arms enfold thy cherub sleep,
And both, God's guardian angels keep!

So by some fair Floridian stream,
The orange-tree, as in a dream,
O'ershading moonlit banks, may seem,

Where golden fruit and budding blow,
Rest on the bough together grow,
All mirrored in the Heaven below.

Duty of Parents toward Pupils.

For the Potter Journal:

Children, when first given to us by our Creator, are like the rough, jagged rock when first taken from the bosom of the earth and placed in the hands of the sculptor, to be formed into an image of beauty by a long and laborious application of chisel and hammer. Nor is the application of chisel and hammer all that is required to bring forth the image of beauty from the shapeless mass. No, they must be accompanied by the genius and art of the sculptor or the rock might all be chisled away and the form of beauty never be made, although the rock might be composed of the finest quality of mold. The hammer and chisel of the sculptor are to the image the same as are associations to mind, if they are rightly directed so as to make right impressions on the image, then the form of beauty may reasonably be expected. So with our minds; if our associations are of the right character we can reasonably expect an improvement in our mental and moral nature. But if they are not rightly directed, we can expect nothing more than we should if we placed the hammer and chisel of the sculptor in the hands of an unskilful man who was perfectly ignorant of the sculptor's art not having the true form of beauty in his mind, nothing could be expected, but that the image would be a total failure; a mass of rock as useless as when first taken from the earth and just as void of beauty. Yes, far more worthless, because it is now beyond the power of cultivation to make it anything but a disgrace to the one who possesses it. As it is a principle in moral philosophy, that the character receives a caste from those with whom we associate, and from everything that makes an impression on the mind. How important it is that our associations are of such a character, that the impressions made by them shall be soul-elevating, and cause a full, strong and manly development of the mind—such a development that we may be worthy of esteem and respect, and the world may be better for our having lived in it—yes, for our having lived in it; for if the world has been improved by us, then we have accomplished the great object for which we were created, and can truly be said to have lived; but if the world has not been improved by us, we cannot be said to have lived, but merely to have existed. It is from the fact that we are imitative beings that our associations can have such an influence on the growth and development of the mind. Especially is this the case with children. They are very much the creatures of circumstances. They form their characters from those around them, Therefore, those whose business it is to instruct them, should cherish those virtues which they wish to foster in their pupils. If they would give them, calm, gentle and friendly feelings, they must show them by their own example how valuable those feelings are. But if they do not possess the virtues which should be cherished in the minds intrusted to their care, let them not pretend to fill the important station; for their attempts will be like the ignorant man's attempts to direct the sculptor's chisel, and quite as ruinous in the result. Although the teacher's influence is great, yet he is not the main sculptor. The parent—not the teacher—the parent is the potter having absolute power over the clay, and his molding and governing influence must be exerted or the clay will be marred. It is true, the teacher of refined manners and broad culture can do much to finish and color that which has been molded when the home influence is genial, true and good. Otherwise his task will be that of cleansing the stream while the fountain remains impure. For what is done at school by the way of discipline will be undone at home; and the teachers task rendered more laborious and of little use by their constant complaints and fault-findings—and I fear, if it were not for the reproaches of his own concience, he would be induced to adopt their plan of discipline, and let the children do as they pleased. I would that parents would feel their responsibility more than they do, and strive with more energy to be faithful to their trust. Said a woman to Phillip, "if you have no time to do justice, you have no time to be king"—If parents have no time to be faithful, they have no right to be parents, and they but publish their own condemnation when they send their offspring to school with ear-breaking habits of indolence, insolence and insubordination. Children should be accustomed to obedience—to the idea of certain and just retribution at home, and the teacher will have no trouble. Instruments of punishment will then be as seldom used in the school room as they are now in the family. Let the thing be reversed—let parents undertake the discipline of children—teachers do not covet the privilege. But, if parents have not the moral courage to, and will not, then teachers must; so far, at least, as to keep good order in schools, and the parents should not interfere or complain.

An Old Dog Learning New Tricks.

AN EDITOR ON SKATES.

Man is an imitative animal. He can't keep still. He will have wide trousers. A Kossuth hat. And a mustach—if he can. He will put on a cape coat, whether his figure bears it gracefully or not.—He must have studs instead of buttons in his shirt, and a dog-collar, at the risk of choaking, round his neck. He will wear clumsy English brogans in preference to those tidy domestic coverings which combine neatness with comfort. He never goes from home—either in hot July or breezy March—without his big shawl, with the tab still on one of its corners to show that it is Scotch. Some men try the eye glass; but most of them still stick to the glass of their fathers. Perhaps what is true of men is equally true of women.

Skating is just now the rage. It is a delightful exercise, healthful and entirely moral. Everybody skates—or tries to do so; but everybody is not successful in his attempt. The editor of the Milwaukee News, poor fellow, undertook to imitate the skaters in his region the other day,—and see what became of him.—He says—

"Right beneath one of our windows, from morn till midnight, we see youngsters and oldsters twisting their legs into all conceivable shapes. We cannot pick up a paper but an article on 'skating' meets the eye. Everybody says it's fun, and that's all 'everybody' knows about it, for we have tried it. Last night, about gaslight, after reading a glowing description of life on skates, we prepared for our first attempt, and sallied forth to join the merry crowd. We had on a pair of stoga boots, trouser-legs tucked inside, a Robert tailed coat, and a white hat. We went down on the ice, and gave a boy two shillings in good coin of the realm for the use of his impliments. We have confidence—even as great as Peter's faith. We, with the assistance of a friend fixed on the skates, and stood erect like a barber's pole.

Encouraged at the sight of some ladies on the bridge looking at the skaters, we struck out. A slant to the right with the right foot, a slant to the left with the left foot, and just then we saw something on the ice, and stooped over to pick it up. On our feet again—two slants to the right and one to the left, accompanied with a less of confidence. Another stride with right foot, and we sat down with fearful rapidity, with very little, if any, of elegance! What a set down it was—for we made a dent in the ice not unlike a Connecticut butter bowl! Just then one of the ladies cried, 'Oh, look, Mary, that feller with the white hat ain't got his skates on the right place!' Ditto, thought we. Just then a ragged little imp sang out, as he passed us, 'Hello, old timber-legs! and we arose suddenly, and put after him. Three slides to the right—two to the left, and away went our legs—one to the east and the other to the west, causing another picture of a butter tray in the cold—oh! how cold—ice! Then the lady—we know she was one by the remark she made—again spoke and said: 'Oh, look, Mary, that chap with a white hat has sat down on his handkerchief to keep from taking cold!" We rose about as graceful as a saw horse, when Mary said, 'Guess 'taint a handkerchief, Jane;' and Mary was right. It wasn't a handkerchief—not a bit of it. Just then a friend came along, and proffered us his coat-tail as a 'steadier.' We accepted the continuation of his garment, and up the river we went about ten rods, when a shy to the right by the leader caused us, the wheel-horse, to shoot off on a tangent, heels up! But the ice is very cold this season.

"We tried it again. A glide one way, a glide and a half the other, when 'whack' came our bump of philoprogenitiveness on the ice, and we saw a million of stars dancing round our eyes, like a troupe of ballet girls at the Bowery Theatre. How that shock went through our system; and up and down our spinal column! Lightning couldn't have corkscrewed it down a greased sapling with greater speed and more exhilerating effect. Boarding house butter or a warranty-deed could not have stuck longer than we did—and a dozen ladies looking at us.

"Soon we got up and made another trial, with better success. Perhaps we had skated, in our peculiar style, fifteen feet, when a blundering chap came up behind, and we sat down with our tired head pillowed in his lap, and he swore at us, when it was all his own fault! How cold the ice was there, too. Every spot where we made a debut on the ice—oh, how cold it was. We tried again, for the papers all say it's fun, and down came our Roman Grecian nose on the cold julep material, and the little crimson drops ran down our shirt-bosom, and on to the cold ice. Once more we tried skating, made for the shore, sat down, and counted damages.

"Two shillings in cash thrown away. Several lateral and one 'fronteral' bumps on the ice. One rupture in the knee, extending to the bone. Four buttons from our vest, a 'fragmented' watch crystal and the back-ache big enough to divide among the children of Israel. If you catch us on the smooth, glassy, chilly freezing, treacherous, deceitful, slippery and slip-uppery ice again, you'll know it! If any one hears of our skating again, they will please draw on us at sight for the bivalves and accompanying documents. We have got through skating. It's a humbug. It's a vexation of spirit, of business, of flesh, and tearer of trousers! It's a head bumping, back-aching, leg-wearing, dangerous institution, and we warn people against skating. We tried it, and shan't be able to walk for a month. Skating clubs are a humbug, and all the rascally youngsters wish to get the ladies at it, that they may see if they, too, don't say 'the ice is dreadful cold!' It's nothing to us, but the ladies will do well to let skates alone, unless they are younger and more elastic than we are. Oh, how cold the ice is—we can feel it yet!'"

HOSTETTER'S
STOMACH BITTERS.

IT is a fact that, at some period, every member of the human family is subject to disease or disturbance of the bodily functions; but, with the aid of a good tonic and the exercise of good common sense, they may be able so to regulate the system as to secure permanent health. In order to accomplish this desired object, the true course to pursue is certainly that which will produce a natural state of things at the least hazard of vital strength and life. For this purpose, Dr. Hostetter has introduced to this country a preparation bearing his name, which is not a new medicine, but one that has been tried for years, giving satisfaction to all who have used it. The Bitters operate powerfully upon the stomach, bowels, and liver, restoring them to a healthy and vigorous action, and thus, by the simple process of strengthening nature, enables the system to triumph over disease.

For the cure of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Nausea, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, or any Bilious Complaints, arising from a morbid inaction of the Stomach or Bowels, producing Cramps, Dysentery, Colic, Cholera Morbus, &c., these Bitters have no equal.

Diarrhœa, dysentery or flux, so generally contracted by new settlers, and caused principally by the change of water and diet will be speedily regulated by a brief use of this preparation. Dyspepsia, a disease which is probably more prevalent, in all its various forms, than any other, and the cause of which may always be attributed to derangements of the digestive organs, can be cured without fail by using HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, as per directions on the bottle. For this disease every physician will recommend Bitters of some kind; then why not use an article known to be infallible? All nations have their Bitters, as a preventive of disease and strengthener of the system in general; and among them all there is not to be found a more healthy people than the Germans, from whom this preparation emanated, based upon scientific experiments which have tended to prove the value of this great preparation in the scale of medical science.

FEVER AND AGUE.—This trying and provoking disease, which fixes its relentless grasp on the body of man, reducing him to a mere shadow in a short time, and rendering him physically and mentally useless, can be driven from the body by the use of HOSTETTER'S RENOWNED BITTERS. Further, none of the above-stated diseases can be contracted, even in exposed situations, if the Bitters are used as per directions. And as they neither create nausea nor offend the palate, and render unnecessary any change of diet or interruption of ordinary pursuits, but promote sound sleep and healthy digestion, the complaint is removed as speedily as is consistent with the production of a thorough and permanent cure.

For Persons in Advanced Years, who are suffering from an enfeebled constitution and infirm body, these Bitters are invaluable as a restorative of strength and vigor, and need only be tried to be appreciated. And to a mother while nursing these Bitters are indispensable, especially where the mother's nourishment is inadequate to the demands of the child, consequently her strength must yield, and here it is where a good tonic, such as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is needed to impart temporary strength and vigor to the system. Ladies should by all means try this remedy for all cases of debility, and, before so doing, should ask their physician, who, if he is acquainted with the virtue of the Bitters, will recommend their use in all cases of weakness.

Caution.—We caution the public against using any of the many imitations or counterfeits, but ask for HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS, and see that each bottle has the words "Dr. J. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters" blown on the side of the bottle, and stamped on the metallic cap covering the cork, and observe that our autograph signature is on the label.

☞ Prepared and sold by HOSTETTER & SMITH, Pittsburgh, Pa., and sold by all druggists, grocers, and dealers generally throughout the United States, Canada, South America, and Germany.

Scrofula, or King's Evil is a constitutional disease, a corruption of the blood, by which this fluid becomes vitiated, weak, and poor. Being in the circulation it pervades the whole body, and may burst forth in disease on any part of it. No organ is free from its attacks, nor is there one which it cannot destroy. The scrofulous taint is variously caused by mercurial disease, low living, disordered or unhealthy food, impure air, filth and filthy habits, the depressing vices, and above all, by the venereal infection. Whatever be its origin, it is hereditary in the constitution, descending "from parents to children unto the third and fourth generation;" insomuch it seems to be the rod of Him who says he will visit the iniquities of the fathers upon their children."

Its effects commence by deposition from the blood of corrupt or ulcerous matter, which in the lungs, liver, and internal organs, is tubercles; in the glands, swellings; and on the surface, eruptions or sores. This foul eruption, which genders in the blood, depresses the energies of life, so that scrofulous constitutions not only suffer from scrofulous complaints, but they have far less power to withstand the attacks of other diseases; consequently, vast numbers perish by disease which, although not scrofulous in their nature, are still rendered fatal by this taint in the system. Most of the consumption which decimates the human family has its origin directly in this scrofulous contamination; and many destructive diseases of the liver, kidneys, bowels, and, indeed, of all the organs, arise from or are aggravated by the same cause.

One quarter of all our people are scrofulous; their persons are invaded by this lurking infection, and their health is undermined by it. To cleanse it from the system we must renovate the blood by an alterative medicine, and thus invigorate it by healthy food and exercise. Such a medicine we supply in the most effectual remedy which the medical skill of our times can devise for this class of where prevailing and fatal malady. It is combined from the most active remedials that have been discovered for the expurgation of this foul disorder from the blood, and the rescue of the system from its destructive consequences. Hence it should be employed for the cure of not only scrofula, but also those other affections which arise from it, such as ERYSIPELAS and SKIN DISEASES, ST. ANTHONY'S FIRE, Rose, or ERYSIPELAS, PIMPLES, PUSTULES, BLOTCHES, BLAINS and BOILS, TUMORS, TETTER and SALT RHEUM, SCALD HEAD, RINGWORM, RHEUMATISM, SYPHILITIC and MERCURIAL DISEASES, DROPSY, DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY; and indeed, ALL COMPLAINTS ARISING FROM VITIATED OR IMPURE BLOOD. The popular belief in "Impurity of the blood" is founded in truth, for scrofula is a degeneration of the blood. This particular purpose and virtue of this Sarsaparilla is to purify and regenerate this vital fluid without which sound health is impossible, contaminated constitutions.

AYER'S
Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla

Ayer's Cathartic Pills
FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC
are so composed that disease within the range of their action can rarely withstand or evade them. Their penetrating properties search, and cleanse and invigorate every portion of the human organism, correcting its diseased action, and restoring its healthy vitalities. As a consequence of these properties, the invalid who is bowed down with pain or physical debility is astonished to find health or energy restored by a remedy at once so simple and inviting.

Not only do they cure the every-day complaints of every body, but also many formidable and dangerous diseases. The agent below named is pleased to furnish gratis my American Almanac, containing certificates of their cures and directions for their use in the following complaints: Costiveness, Heartburn, Headache arising from disordered Stomach, Nausea, Indigestion, Pain in and Morbid Inaction of the Bowels, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, Jaundice, and other kindred complaints arising from a low state of the body or obstruction of its functions.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral
FOR THE RAPID CURE OF
Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease.

So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous are the cases of its cures, that almost every section of country abounds in persons publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs by its use. When once tried, its superiority over every other medicine of its kind is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs that are incident to our climate. While many inferior remedies thrust upon the community have failed and been discarded, this has gained friends by every trial, conferred benefits on the afflicted they can never forget, and produced cures too numerous and too remarkable to be forgotten.
