What Constitutes Legal Unsoundness in Horses.

A Knee-Sprung horse can hardly be said to be unsound. He may be a very fast horse, and can endure with ease the labor of any common, ordinary horse, although there is an alteration of structure which unfit him for the race-course. This would not be likely to produce disease or lameness; he would be more likely to grow better than worse, if used for common purposes. But, if so bad as to produce stumbling and falling, he would be unsound, and a warranty should be taken against such defects.

Crippled Hoofs cannot be considered unsoundness, if produced by an uneven stable floor, or by kicking; but, if produced by a sprain, and a permanent thickening and enlargement of membranes, there would be unsoundness. A special warranty should be required in such cases.

Contraction of the Hoof is a considerable deviation from the natural form of the foot, but does not necessarily constitute unsoundness. It requires, however, a most careful examination by the purchaser, to ascertain that there is no fever or ossification of the cartilage; that the frog is not diseased; that the animal is not tender-footed or lame. Unless some of these symptoms are indicated, he must not be pronounced unsound. A special warranty should be required where the feet are contracted.

Corns manifestly constitute unsoundness. Although few men lay much stress on this malady, still much inconvenience and many times serious difficulties must be encountered by them, as they are seldom thoroughly cured. Many horses are almost constantly lame with corns, through a scrofulous habit of the system. A warranty against such animals would be safe.

Trembling Knees.—This cannot be considered unsoundness; yet it is precursory symptoms of knee sprung. Trembling of the knees after a smart exercise indicates weakness, and should be regarded as objectionable.

A Cough constitutes unsoundness, however slight or of short standing. If a horse is noticed to cough before the purchase, or immediately afterward, he is diseased; but is warranted sound, and the cough is not discovered till one or two days afterward, he is not returnable; for a few hours is sufficient to contract a cough, by taking cold while standing in damp, musty hay, or by eating different feed, rusty hay, &c.

Roaring, Wheezing or Whistling is unsoundness, being the result of alteration of structure, or disease in the air passages. Although there have been decisions to the contrary, courts and jurors are often at loss, for the want of intelligent witnesses; and if a veterinary surgeon is called to the stand, not having seen the animal, he is liable to be mistaken from misrepresentation. Broken Wind is still more decidedly unsoundness.

Crib Biting.—A difference of opinion exists as to this being unsoundness, and courts have given opposite decisions in respect to it. There are cribbers that can scarcely be said to be unsound, as they are not perceptibly injured, and it does not interfere with their condition or endurance. Others inhale and swallow a great amount of wind; they bloat and are subject to cholera, which interferes with their health and strength; this would constitute unsoundness. A warranty should always be taken against injury from cribbing, then if he breaks his teeth or injures himself, recompense may be had.

Curb constitutes unsoundness, as long as it lasts, and perhaps while the swelling remains, although no inflammation exists, for a horse that has once thrown out a curb, is liable to do so again on the slightest exertion. A horse, however, should not be returned, if he springs a curb five minutes after purchase, for it is done in a moment and does not indicate any previous unsoundness.—Mich. Farmer.

Farmer's Omnibus.

There are 5 pounds of pure sulphur in every 100 pounds of wool.
Carrots consume 100 pounds of lime to the acre; turnips but 90 pounds.
A cubic foot of common arable land will hold 40 pounds of water.
It takes 5 pounds of corn to form one of beef. Three and a half pounds of cooked meal will form one of pork.
To add 1 per cent. of lime to soil that is destitute of it, requires 10 pounds of slacked lime to 6 of caustic to the acre.
Clay will permanently improve any soil that is sandy or leachy. Lime and leached ashes will also benefit leachy land.
A ton of dry forest leaves produces only 500 pounds of mold; hence 500 pounds of mold will produce a ton of plants.
Clay applied to sandy land is far better than sand to clay land. 16 tons to the acre will give an inch in depth.
Pure Phosphorus is worth from $4000 to $5000 a ton; and as it comes from the earth it shows how scarce it is.
A rich mold, formed by rotting clover, is worth more than the same number of pounds of clover; 100 pounds of dry plants will yield 100 pounds of mold.
Swamp muck, or peat, when dry, will take up without dripping four times its own weight of water. Hence the necessity of thorough drainage.
Limestone sand retains the heat the longest, black peaty soils radiate heat rapidly, consequently cool soonest, the first to experience frost.

Prevent Forked Trees Splitting.—J. T. Moxley, Sheboygan county, Wisconsin, recommends to twist or wind together a few of the smaller limbs above the fork, which will grow in that position as the tree increases in size, and form a natural brace. He states that he has treated many trees successfully in this manner. We have prevented forked trees inclined to split, and even secured those that had already commenced to part, by boring through with an inch auger and driving in a strong wooden pin. A smaller iron bolt, with a head on one end and a nut on the other end, is even better. The new growth will soon cover the pin or bolt. American Agriculturist.

The meanest man in the country is in Noble county, Indiana. Having procured a divorce from his wife, she was left without the means of living, and consequently became a charge on the county. It being the custom in that section to let out the paupers to the person who will keep them for the smallest price, this man underbid the whole parish, and now maintains his former wife at the public expense.

A HAFSMAN who had drunk a little too freely, fell from the raft on which he was employed, and was nearly drowned, when his brother plunged in to his rescue, seized him by the hair and was struggling with him to the shore. The tide was strong, and the brother's strength being nearly exhausted, he was about relinquishing his hold when the despairing loner, raising his head above water, exclaimed: "Hang on Sam; hang on! I'll treat—I swear I will!" These words proved sufficiently stimulating, and his brother saved his life.

KEPHART, the murderer of the woman and children in Iowa, was hanged by the mob on the 5th inst. The execution was conducted with great deliberation, and was attended by three or four hundred women, who sat merrily chatting in front of the rube gallows. At 12 o'clock a messenger arrived at the spot with the news that the jail had been forced by the crowd and that the wretched man was on his way to the place where he was to die. There were some remarks made to the throng from the scaffold, and then, at 3 o'clock, the murderer was turned off, and, without trial or confession, was hanged.

COULDN'T FOOL HER.—The Lafayette Courier tells an amusing story of some young ladies and gents of that place, who were taking a social walk near the cemetery, when a ghost appeared. They all ran but one sturdy woman of the strong-minded class, who stood to her post, when she seized it, and thrust out of his frightful disguise, a mischievous fellow who had heard the project of walking near the graveyard discussed, and hid himself there to give the party a fright. She had led him back to the house, and in reply to questions that now poured in upon her, said: "Can't fool me! I have seen too many men in sheets to get frightened at them."

EFFECTS OF ONE DRINK.—We have received a lengthy communication in relation to Francis Gilke, but it is too long, and would require too much amendment for us to publish. The substance is, that two years ago a saloon keeper in Dubuque sold Gilke a dram of whiskey; that Gilke went home and murdered his wife; that he had been in jail since till lately, when he saw taken to the gallows and hung, according to the sentence of the court; and the writer asks, if the saloon keeper is not responsible for the death of the wife and the hanging of the husband. The question is a pertinent one, which we refer to liquor sellers for an answer. —Kilbourn City (Wis.) Mirror.

ATTENTIONS TO "OTHER MEN'S WIVES."—We have recently seen accounts in our "exchanges," of most unhappy difficulties that have arisen in families, on account of married women permitting men to pay them such attentions as a wife should receive from nobody but her husband. In some cases, these difficulties have developed into permanent estrangement and separation of husbands and wives, accompanied with much scandal; and innocent children have thereby been reduced to a state worse than that of orphanage. No married woman should expose herself to the danger which may result from even innocently permitting men to pay her injudicious attentions. A series of such acts and events, every separate one of which, taken by itself alone, may have been unblameworthy, can easily be woven into a chain of testimony sufficient to brand a woman with infamy and send her broken-hearted to an untimely and dishonored grave. Every married woman should understand and appreciate this terrible fact, and govern herself accordingly. —N. Y. Ledger.

Mrs. PARTINGTON ON COSMETICS.—"That's a new article for beautifying the complexion," said Mr. Bibb, holding up a small bottle to Mrs. Partington to look at. She looked up from toting out a woolen sock for Ike, and took the bottle in her hand. "Is it indeed?" said she; "well, they may get up ever so many nostrums for beautifying the complexion, but depend upon it, the less people have to do with bottles for it, the better. My neighbor, Mrs. Blotch, has been using a bottle a good many years, for her complexion, and her nose looks like a rupture of Mount Vesuvius, with the burning lather running all over the contagious territory." Mr. Bibb informed her, with a smile, that this was a cosmetic for the outside, and not to be taken internally, whereupon she subsided into the toe of Ike's stocking, but murmured something about the danger of its "leaking in" nevertheless. Ike, meanwhile, was rigging a mortgagale for Lion's tail, securing that waggish member to his collar, and making him appear as if scudding before the wind.

The Best Way to Endure Matrimony.

"Timothy Titcomb," writes as follows on what is called, with exquisite irony, the divine institution:

I suppose there is a modicum of romance in most natures, and that if it gathers about any event it is that of matrimony. Most people marry their ideals. There is more or less fictitious and fallacious glory resting upon the head of every bride, which the inchoate husband believes in. Most men and women manufacture perfection in their mates by a happy process of their imaginations, and then marry them. This, of course, wears away. By the time the husband has seen his wife eat heartily of pork and beans, and with her hair frizzled, and her oldest dress on, full of the enterprise of overhauling things, he sees that she belongs to the same race as himself. And she, when her husband gets up cross in the morning, and undertakes to shave himself with cold water and a dull razor, while his suspenders dangle at his heels, begins to see that man is a very prosaic animal. In other words, there is such a thing, as a honeymoon, of longer or shorter duration; and while the moonshine lasts, the radiance of the seventh heaven cannot compare with it. It is a very delicious little delirium—a febrile mental disease, which, like measles, never returns.

When the honeymoon passes away, setting behind dull mountains, or dipping silently into the stormy sea of life, the trying hour of marriage life has come. Between the parties there are more illusions. The feverish desire of possession has gone—vanished into gratifications—and all excitement has receded. Then begins, or should begin, the business of adaptation. If they find that they do not love one another as they thought they did, they should double their assiduous attentions to one another, and be jealous of everything which tends in the slightest degree to separate them. Life is too precious to be thrown away in secret regrets or open differences. And let me say to every one to whom the romance of life has fled, and who are discontented in the slightest degree with their condition and relations, begin this work of reconciliation before you are a day older.

Renew the attentions of earlier days. Draw your hearts together. Talk the thing all over. Acknowledge your faults to one another, and determine that henceforth you will be all in all to each other; and my word for it, you shall find in your relation the sweetest joy earth has for you. There is no other way for you to do. If you are happy at home you must be happy abroad; the man or woman who has settled down upon the conviction that he or she is attached for life to an uncongenial yoke-fellow, and that there is no way of escape, has lost life; there is no effort too costly to make which can restore to its setting upon the bosoms, the missing pearl.

SOMETHING NEW—B. T. BABBITT'S
BEST
MEDICINAL SALERATUS.
Is manufactured from common salt, and is prepared entirely different from other Saleratus. All the deleterious matter extracted in such a manner as to produce Bread, Biscuit, and all kinds of Cake, without containing a particle of Saleratus when the Bread or Cake is baked; thereby producing wholesome results.
Every particle of Saleratus is turned to gas and passes through the Bread or Biscuit while Baking; consequently nothing remains but common Salt, Water and Flour. You will readily perceive by the taste of this Saleratus that it is entirely different from other Saleratus.
It is packed in one pound papers, each wrapper branded, "B. T. Babbitt's Best Medicinal Saleratus;" also, picture, twisted loaf of bread, with a glass of effervescent water on the top. When you purchase one paper you should preserve the wrapper, and be particular to get the next exactly like the first—brand as above.
Full directions for making Bread with this Saleratus and Sour Milk or Cream Tartar, will accompany each package; also, directions for making all kinds of Pastry; also, for making Soda Water and Seidlitz Powders.
MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP, WITH
B. T. BABBITT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH,
Warranted double the strength of ordinary Potash; put up in cans—1 lb., 2 lbs., 3 lbs., 6 lbs. and 12 lbs.—with full directions for making Hard and Soft Soap. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in market.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

It is a fact that, at some period, every member of the human family is subject to disease or disturbance of the bodily functions; but, with the aid of a good tonic and the exercise of good common sense, they may be able to so regulate the system as to secure permanent health. In order to accomplish this desired object, the true course to pursue is certainly that which will produce a natural state of things at the least hazard of vital strength and life. For this purpose, Dr. Hostetter has introduced to this country a preparation bearing his name, which is not a new medicine, but one that has been tried for years, giving satisfaction to all who have used it. The Bitters operate powerfully upon the stomach, bowels, and liver, restoring them to a healthy and vigorous action, and thus, by the simple process of strengthening nature, enables the system to triumph over disease.
For the cure of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Nausea, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, or any Bilious Complaints, arising from a morbid inaction of the Stomach or bowels, producing Cramps, Dysentery, Colic, Cholera Morbus, &c., these Bitters have no equal.
Diarrhea, dysentery or flux, so generally contracted by new settlers, and caused principally by the change of water and diet, will be speedily regulated by the liberal use of this preparation. Dyspepsia, a disease which is probably more prevalent, in all its various forms, than any other, and the cause of which may always be attributed to derangements of the digestive organs, can be cured without fail by using HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, as per directions on the bottle. For this disease every physician will recommend Bitters of some kind; then why not use an article known to be infallible? All nations have their Bitters, as a preventive of disease and strengthener of the system in general; and among them all there is not to be found a more healthy people than the Germans, from whom this preparation emanated, based upon scientific experiments which have tended to prove the value of this great preparation in the scale of medical science.
FEVER AND AGUE.—This trying and provoking disease, which fixes its relentless grasp on the body of man, reducing him to a mere shadow in a short time, and rendering him physically and mentally useless, can be driven from the body by the use of HOSTETTER'S RENOWNED BITTERS. Further, none of the above-stated diseases can be contracted, even in exposed situations, if the Bitters are used as per directions. And as they neither create nausea nor offend the palate, and render unnecessary any change of diet or interruption of ordinary pursuits, but promote sound sleep and healthy digestion, the complaint is removed as speedily as is consistent with the production of a thorough and permanent cure.
For Persons in Advanced Years, who are suffering from an enfeebled constitution and a feeble body, these Bitters are invaluable as a restorative of strength and vigor, and need only be tried to be appreciated. And to a mother while nursing, these Bitters are indispensable, especially where the mother's nourishment is inadequate to the demands of the child, consequently her strength must yield, and here it is where a good tonic, such as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is needed to impart temporary strength and vigor to the system. Ladies should by all means try this remedy for all cases of debility, and, before so doing, should ask their physician, who, if he is acquainted with the virtues of the Bitters, will recommend their use in all cases of weakness.

Caution.—We caution the public against using any of the many imitations or counterfeits, but ask for Hostetter's Celebrated STOMACH BITTERS, and see that each bottle has the words "Dr. J. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters" blown on the side of the bottle, and stamped on the metallic cap covering the cork, and observe that our autograph signature is on the label.
Prepared and sold by HOSTETTER & SMITH, Pittsburg, Pa., and sold by all druggists, grocers, and dealers generally throughout the United States, Canada, South America, and Germany.
