We have received several numbers of the Daily State Sentinel, the Douglas organ at Harrisburg. It is edited with ability and energy, and is much more bitter towards the administration than any Republican press has ever attempted to be.

Another Southern Outrage. Three Belfast Mechanics Driven out of Texas. If more evidence were wanting to prove the essential barbarism of slavery, three of our Belfast mechanics who have just arrived at the North from Texas, having barely escaped with their lives, can give the testimony.

The Republicans of New York have nominated Gov. Morgan for re-election, and also Lieut. Governor Campbell. The unanimity of the vote—both nominations being made by the same vote—and the enthusiastic reception of the motion by the delegates, indicates that union among the Republicans of New York which its position as the battle-ground of 1860 renders preeminently necessary.

son, for State Prison Inspector,—both on the first ballot. For Electors at Large, the Convention nominated Wm. Cullen Bryant, editor of the N. Y. Evening Post, and Hon. James O. Putnam, of Chautauqua. The District Electoral ticket is composed of staunch Republicans.

The County Canvass.

This has thus far been the dullest campaign we have witnessed since we have resided in this county—and this apathy is the more acutely felt in view of the fact that it is a Presidential campaign. It is not yet time for the full development of the campaign, it is true; but there should be at least enough enthusiasm afloat now to enable one to feel that there is a political contest existing.

You perhaps ask, What can I do? How shall I begin the work? We will tell you. You know how to go about getting the nomination; that is, you rove around the county and procure the influence and active support of leading men in each township. The same kind of effort on your part is now as necessary as then, with only this difference: you then represented your own interest only, now you are the representative of the party, having by its nomination been entrusted with the duty of carrying its standard through the contest.

And now a few words as to the intentions of our opponents. We are informed on tolerable good authority that only two of the County officers will be severely contested, viz: Treasurer and Commissioner—though we are informed a candidate for Register and Recorder is already in the field. No out-and-out Democrat will be put forward for those offices, but the strongest men in the county who can be induced to run will be put forward—the object being to divide and distract the Republican strength until a sufficient number of successes will warrant the banker leaders in making regular nominations with a chance of success.

What the Republicans will Do when they Get the Power to Do It. Senator Chase, of Ohio, is conceded to be one of the most uncompromising of Republicans. What he expects the Republican party to do when the federal government is transferred to its care may be considered as the highest expression of its revolutionary purposes.

government is transferred to its care may be considered as the highest expression of its revolutionary purposes. What that highest expression is may be gathered from the following passage taken from a speech recently delivered by him to the Republicans of Ohio.

And when we succeed, what then? Shall we return evil for the injustice and calamity to which Republicans have been so continually subjected? No, gentlemen, no! We will try to prove that the success of a party may be the success of the whole people; that the triumph of our cause is compatible with the best interests of the whole country; our triumph will prove as just to every portion of it, and generous to every person who bears the name of an American citizen.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Letter from Northern Wisconsin. New Richmond, St. Croix Co., Wis., July 20th, 1860.

Dear Sir:—Having been for many years intimately acquainted with a majority of your county readers of the JOURNAL and a resident of your county from the time when all that could be observed by the passing Pioneer to designate Couderport from the surrounding forests, was the axeman's mark upon the trees showing that that black swamp had been surveyed into village lots, and some two or three years before even a log cabin had been erected; those facts gave me confidence to believe that a plain statement of facts respecting the present Geographical, Agricultural and Political features of the North-west would be read with some degree of interest.

I must bring this scribbling to a close I have spun it out beyond my intention, and perhaps too long to find room in the JOURNAL in this political hurry. I trust that all grammatical and other errors will be pardoned, considering that the writer moved into Potter in 1812, then a mere child and was reared in those desert wilds without even the privilege of a common country school.

The Female Medical College, Philadelphia. The study of medicine seems at last to be fairly opened to women—that is, to those who have peculiar zeal, peculiar talent and untiring industry. Many difficulties still stand in the way of women, but this is probably not an evil. We are not anxious for the time when the profession of medicine will be a resource for those who do not know what else to do with themselves; or a stepping-stone to a good position in society, and therefore value the difficulties, pecuniary, natural, and social, which make a strong vocation and powerful natural endowments of talent and energy essential to success.

lover has not been fairly tested, for the reason that sufficient quantities of hay for the supply of our present population, is found on the prairies. From what few experiments that have been tried I should infer that in that respect our soil is behind that of Potter County and its vicinity.

On wheat crop is not at this date fit for harvest; ten days will find us immersed in wheat. All that can be seen of a man of common stature in the dense wheat fields of this season, is the upper portion of the cranium. The average crops of this abundant harvest is estimated at twenty five bushels to the acre.—Corn, barley, oats, and finally, all kinds of crops look fine. Oats and barley are mostly cut and more than a common crop.

This is quite a new County; ninety-five hundredths at least is yet in the natural state; and yet with only five hundredths of the county cultivated, there will be a surplus of wheat shipped for eastern markets of not less than 200,000 bushels.

Without doubt some of my old friends would ask this question if they had opportunity, whether, in my opinion they could better themselves by coming west. My answer to the question would be "Yes" to all who have no farms. A man can accumulate as much property in five years with the same industry and economy here as they can in ten there. There are, however, some privations, which would be very objectionable to some, one is, the want of fruit. The probability is that apples, peaches, pears and tame plums cannot be successfully cultivated on these northern prairies.

The condition of our country at this time offers to those coming from the east, the most favorable opportunities to purchase improved farms. The great change of times has left thousands of farms encumbered with mortgages, and if not otherwise released, must soon be sold under the hammer; and they can be bought at prices that would astonish eastern men. There never has been at any previous time so favorable an opportunity to locate at the west as at present.

I have spun it out beyond my intention, and perhaps too long to find room in the JOURNAL in this political hurry. I trust that all grammatical and other errors will be pardoned, considering that the writer moved into Potter in 1812, then a mere child and was reared in those desert wilds without even the privilege of a common country school.

THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE.—No more for the poor sufferers in our country languish their constitution racked and torn by such dangerous mineral medicines; they come to the fountain of health, found in the simple herbs and roots from nature's storehouse. THE MOUNTAIN HERB PILLS, of immortant mountain plants composed, will stop their distress, and cause the blood to flow and cleanse it, to carry through the body the elements of health, building up a broken constitution, and carrying life to health, where but for them would have been the wreck of hope—the feeble mound of suffering, at last ended by the cold hand of death. Do not let prejudice overcome your better reason; do not look upon these Pills as a lifeless thing; do not let your despair, after trying everything else, prevent you from trying these. The blood must be pure, and the sickness is impossible. What a great secret simple truth is this! It appeals to the common sense of all, it is the great key-stone of the healing art. JUDSON'S MOUNTAIN HERB PILLS will purify and cleanse it, and sure as the sun will rise to-morrow, Judson's Mountain Herb Pills are sold by all Medicine Dealers.

men and the encouragement of the few among men, have opened the way for the establishment of several institutions which afford to women the opportunity to acquire the knowledge and skill which have hitherto been attained by them only by experience. The friends of the Medical College at Philadelphia have been laboring to establish a hospital in connection with it and have at last secured the means of accomplishing it.

Here are some extracts from the introductory Lecture, delivered at the annual session of the College, Oct. 1859, by Miss Ann Preston: "The medical profession in this country abounds in high-minded and discerning men who appreciate the propriety and need of movement, and foresee its inevitable extension men who have given it their aid, or are ready to do so; but this magnanimity of clear sightedness, could hardly be expected from all."

Iron City College, Pittsburgh, Pa.—The superior excellence of the system of instruction adopted in this school, and the uniform success of its graduates as Book-keepers and business men, has made its reputation co-extensive with the Union. There are at present in attendance students from eight different States. This is the result of careful attention on the part of the Principals, who are experienced teachers giving their constant attention to their students. No school can long survive in which the instruction imparted by subordinates.
