POETRY. gaged in commerce. THE following poem, from the Atlantic

Wonthly, sounds like Whittier: THE SUMMONS. My ear is full of summer sounds, With summer sights my languid eye; Beyond the dusty village bounds, I loiter in my daily rounds, And in the noon-time shadows lie.

The wild bee winds his drowsy horn, The bird swings on the ripened wheat, The long, green lances of the corn Are tilting in the winds of morn, · The locust shrills his song of heat.

Another sound my spirit hears. A dreper sound that drowns them all, A voice of plending choked with tears, The call of human hopes and fears, The Macedonian cry to Paul;

The storm-bell rings, the trumpet blows I know the word and countersign; Wherever Freedom's vanguard goes, Where stand or fall her friends or foes I know the place that should be mine.

Shamed be the hands that idly fold, And lips that woo the reed's accord When laggard Time the hour has toiled For true with false and new with old To fight the battles of the Lord!

O brothers I blest by partial Fate With power to match the will and deed, To him your summons comes to late, Who sinks beneath his armor's weight And has to answer but Good-speed
