

The Potter Journal.

COUDERSPORT, PA. Thursday Morning, Nov. 22, 1860. T. S. CHASE, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Lincoln's majority over all others in this State, with Forest county to hear from, is 62,518.

REPUBLICANS IN THE SOUTH.—The Republicans had a plurality of over 800 in St. Louis, and 200 in Wilmington, Delaware. They polled over a thousand votes in Baltimore, and 800 in Wheeling and Ohio county, Virginia.

When HORACE GREELEY is installed Post Master General, so that the people of the South can receive through the mails such newspapers as they desire; light will break on that benighted region so fully and so happily, that in four years the Republican party will be fully organized in every southern State, and will carry Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky and Missouri.

CALIFORNIA FOR LINCOLN! The Golden State for Freedom.

The following dispatch appears in the New York papers of Monday evening.—It comes by pony express by way of Fort Kearney. Hail California!

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8—10 p. m.—The entire number of votes returned from the State thus far are 76,720, of which Lincoln has 27,058; Douglas, 24,422; Breckinridge, 20,638; Bell, 4,602. Lincoln ahead of Douglas, 2,636. Lincoln's vote has surprised politicians; still the chance of Douglas having the Legislature is considered the best. Probably Douglas has a majority over both Lincoln and Breckinridge, securing sufficient strength to elect a Douglas man in place of Senator Gwin.

The Effects of Whiskey Drinking.

It is passing strange, that intelligent people should persist in practices that are certain to bring misery and ruin into a community. One would think there was evidence enough before our eyes to convince the most stoical, that the use of intoxicating drinks, always endangers the property and lives of those in the community where it is tolerated. But even here in Potter county there are people who occupy high positions in society who not only drink, but they put the poison to the lips of others. So we must needs continue to hold up the evidence, that whiskey drinking and crime go hand in hand.

The following item from the N. Y. Eve. Post, is the last on which our eye rested: "Last evening at an early hour the driver of stage No. 111 of the Fourth avenue line was driving down Broadway at a furious rate, being grossly intoxicated, and on arriving in front of the American Museum ran into a company of persons, consisting of Mr. Meekle, of Albany, and two ladies, his wife and her sister, Miss Nettie Kleproth, knocking down the two ladies and breaking the arm of Mrs. Meekle, and badly bruising one of Miss Kleproth's hands, and otherwise injuring them. The driver did not stop, but kept on at his furious rate till he arrived at the corner of Courtland street, when he was arrested by a Second ward policeman and taken to the station-house. This morning he was committed by Justice Welsh for drunkenness and violation of a corporation ordinance. Mr. Meekle and the ladies had just come from the Museum, and were on their return to the Astor House, where they were stopping, when they were run over by the omnibus."

It is notorious, and known to every body, that any outrage or crime, is a small matter to an intoxicated person, and yet men, professing to be friends of good order and good society, are indifferent to the sale and use of intoxicating drinks.

When some man's house is burned down, or some neighbor shot, or run over then these people are shocked and alarmed; but still remain indifferent to the cause of the burnings and murders, and so matters go on till the victims of this rum business losing all hope of legal redress take the law into their own hands, and themselves become law-breakers out of despair for any other remedy, as witness the following from the Rockford (Ill.) Register:

"We learn that some twenty or more of the women of Byron Ogle County, becoming highly incensed at Mr. Ames, the keeper of the tavern at that place, for practices in regard to alleged sale of liquor to their negro lords and boys, proceeded last week in a body to his house and destroyed all the liquors they found on his premises. They then proceeded to a saloon near by kept by another dealer, with a similar design on his liquors but he had barricaded the door against them and they did not effect entrance. Subsequently Ames came to this city and procured a fresh supply. While on his return, and when near home, he suddenly found the road obstructed by a barricade thrown across and his further progress stopped. Before he had time to determine what it meant, the same determined band of women surrounded his wagon and kindly invited him to dismount, while they coolly and deliberately proceeded to unload his wagon and knock in the heads of the kegs and barrels and empty the contents on the ground. Our informant further states that the matter was to be compromised by payment to Mr. Ames for the liquor destroyed."

Proceedings of the Potter County Teachers' Institute.

Reported for the Potter Journal. TUESDAY, NOV. 13, 1860. The Institute assembled at 9 A. M. Forenoon session. Devotional exercises, Reading of Scriptures and prayer by Prof. Sanders. Music by the choir. Calling of the roll by the Secretary.

1st exercise, Elocution, conducted by Prof. Sanders. This exercise consisted principally of a drill in the consonant combinations; previous to which, however, Prof. Sanders made some very appropriate remarks upon the popular error which attaches such an undue importance to Arithmetic, Grammar &c., to the neglect of Reading; also upon a few of the most prominent errors prevalent in teaching this science; the most important of which was, allowing pupils to dabble in subjects beyond their comprehension, such as the essays of Macaulay, Irving, &c., which must necessarily be but a jumble of meaningless words to the infant mind. He exhorted the teachers to see to it, that they eradicate this error, at least from their own teaching. 2d exercise, Practical Arithmetic, conducted by Prof. Cooper. The question propounded the day previous, to wit: "Why are the significant figures called digits?" was called up but not having received sufficient attention was laid over. A thorough drill was then given in Nomenclature, Notation and Addition. Prof. Cooper recommended a great amount of practice in these elementary parts of the science, particularly Addition, as it was well calculated to secure rapidity and accuracy in computation. Intermission followed by singing.

3d exercise. A review of the previous lessons in Orthography, and a short drill for the Elocutionary class, by Prof. Sanders. Adjourned until 2 o'clock P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION. Nov 13. 1st exercise, Grammar, conducted by Prof. Lewis. Mr. Lewis said, that most persons were better qualified in almost any other branch than in Grammar, it being usually considered a third or fourth rate study. He then proceeded to explain the two opposite methods of teaching this science, viz: the Analytic and Synthetic. Of these, the former he recommended for advanced, and the latter for primary classes. He also spoke at some length upon the subject of LANGUAGE; tracing it through the various stages of representing things by models, pictures, symbols and arbitrary characters, which last may be subdivided into the verbal, the syllabic and the alphabetic systems. Intermission and singing.

2d exercise, Geography, conducted by Prof. Cooper. The division of Geography into Mathematical, Physical, Phenomenal and Political, was recommended to the teachers as a very convenient and practical one. Mathematical Geography was then taken up and the position of the earth in relation to the sun, moon and stars; its motions—three in number, daily, annual and secular—and the resultant effects. The several proofs of the Earth's rotundity, viz: circumnavigation, appearance of ships at sea, its shadow, &c., were also fully illustrated. A general survey of the map of the Earth was then taken, the points of similarity between its different portions and the effects upon the manners, habits, and destinies of nations, resulting from their particular forms noticed. 3d exercise, Spelling, conducted by Prof. Sanders. Adjourned until 6 o'clock P. M.

EVENING SESSION. Nov 13. Opened by the discussion of the following question: "What are the means and the necessity of self-improvement within reach of the teacher?" The discussion was participated in by the majority of the members in a manner that exhibited a due appreciation of its importance and no lack of interest in whatever pertains to the educational well-being of the country. After the discussion, the audience were favored by a lecture from Prof. E. R. Campbell, School Commissioner of Allegheny County, N. Y., upon "Teachers' Influence." The lecturer proceeded in his agreeable and impressive style to awaken in the mind of the teachers a due appreciation of the dignity, importance and usefulness of their vocation arising from the potency of their influence which from the impressions it made upon the plastic mind of youth, the direction it gave to their thoughts and habits would to an almost inconceivable extent determine their future lives and characters. This he illustrated by familiar and apposite examples. He also urged upon the teachers the importance of beginning aright of "steering the ship in the right direction" for if on weighing in an anchor they allowed it to float down stream a few days, "allowed matters to run," very likely matters would continue to run, until his exit from the school house door or window would terminate the drama. The lecturer was listened to with marked attention. After the lecture, the audience listened for a short time to the elocutionary powers of Prof. Sanders. Adjourned.
