GONE. A silent, odor-laden air, From heavy branches dropping balm

A crowd of daisies, milky fuir, That sunward turn their faces calm, So rapt, a bird alone may dare To stir their rapture with its psalm. So falls the perfect day of June,

To moonlit eve from dewy dawn, With light winds rustling through the noon And conscious roses half-withdrawn In blushing buds that wake too soon, And flaunt their hearts on every lawn. The wide content of summer's bloom,

The peaceful glory of its prime,— Yet over all a brooding gloom, A desolation born of time, As distant storm-caps tower and loom And shroud the sun with heights sublim

For they are vanished from the trees, And vanished from the thronging flowers Whose tender tones thrilled every breeze, And sped with mirth the slying hours; No form or shape my sad eye sees,

No faithful spirit haunts these bowers.

Alone, alone, in sun or dew ! One fled to heaven, of earth afraid; And one to earth, with eyes untrue And lips of faltering passion, strayed; Nor shall the strenuous years renew On any bough these leaves that fade. Long summer days shall come and go,-

No summer brings the dead again; listen for that voice's flow. And ache at heart with deepening pain; nd one fair face no more I know, Still living sweet, but sweet in vain.
