

Sanders. Theme, "Importance of Mental Culture." Exercise 3rd, specimens of Elocutionary skill by Prof. Sanders. 4th, complimentary resolution to Prof. Sanders. 5th, Prof. Cooper again called to the mind of the audience the project of securing weekly Lectures during the winter, and solicited aid for that purpose. Adjourned to Friday, 9 o'clock A. M.

FRIDAY MORNING, NOV. 23.

The Institute assembled at 9 o'clock. Reading the Scriptures and prayer, by Prof. Sanders, singing by the choir. Lecture by Prof. Lewis, in which was explained the composition of the air, water, etc. Recess. Exercise in Arithmetic, conducted by Prof. Cooper. Several long columns of figures were given to see how quickly they could be added. They recommended that teachers drill their pupils in this exercise, and that they also practice it themselves. Recess. Drill on the sounds of letters, the analysis of words, etc., conducted by Prof. Sanders. Adjourned until half past one o'clock P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION, NOV. 23. Grammar, conducted by Prof. Lewis. He spoke of the different styles of poetry, and explained the construction of each. He also gave examples of L.ambic, Trochee, Anapest and Dactyl. The analysis of Grammar was taken into consideration. Several sentences were written on the blackboard and analyzed by the teachers. Recess.

Geography, conducted by Prof. Cooper. This exercise was highly instructive and entertaining. He said, the Western Hemisphere is elongated, and the Eastern of an oval shape. America is the land of plains. He spoke of the animals of the two continents; those of the Eastern being of a far more ferocious character than those of the Western. The New World was more simple in its structures. The animals of South America, Africa and Australia were very different; while the animals, trees, plants, etc., of North America, Europe and Asia, were nearly the same. He also spoke of the men of different countries. If we were to visit the Arctic regions we would find animals and plants of an inferior order. The people inhabiting the regions of the Caucasus Mountains are the most beautiful on earth, &c. Recess.

Lecture by Dr. Graves, on Hygiene and Longevity. Teachers should, of all people, possess good health; and in order to possess this inestimable quality, they should understand the laws of nature. Sickness is not the natural state of man. It is brought on by disobedience of the laws of nature. Teachers were in a manner responsible for the health of their pupils. Tobacco is very injurious to health, and any who were addicted to its use were setting a bad example before their scholars. Pupils would imitate their teacher. He then spoke of the school houses. They are not sufficiently ventilated. There should be a free circulation of air. The seats were constructed in a manner to promote the ill health of the pupils, &c. Recess.

The report of the Committee on Resolutions was then listened to, after which the Institute adjourned.

Speeches of Lincoln and Trumbull.

On the occasion of a serenade on the 21st inst., at Springfield, Ill., Mr. Lincoln appeared and spoke as follows:

WOMEN AND FELLOW CITIZENS:—Please excuse me on this occasion, from making a speech. I thank you, in common with all those who have thought fit, by their votes, to endorse the Republican cause. [Applause.] I rejoice with you in the success which has so far attended that cause. [Applause.] Yet in all our rejoicing let us neither express nor cherish any hard feelings toward any citizen who by his vote has differed from us. [Loud cheering.] Let us at all times remember that all American citizens are brothers of a common country, and should dwell together in the bonds of fraternal feeling. [Immense applause.] Let us again beg you to accept my thanks and to excuse me from further speaking at this time.

Senator Trumbull followed with a long speech, the following synopsis of which is given by telegraph:

He said Mr. Lincoln although the candidate of the Republican party, as Chief Magistrate will neither belong to that or any other party. When inaugurated he will be the President of the country, and of the whole country, and I doubt not will be as ready to protect and defend the State in which he has not received a solitary vote against any encroachments upon its constitutional rights, as he would the one in which he has received the largest majority. I regard it as extremely fortunate for the peace of the whole country, that this point upon which the Republicans have been so long and so persistently misrepresented, is now to be brought to a practical test, and placed beyond the possibility of a doubt. It should be a matter of rejoicing to all true Republicans that they will now have an opportunity of demonstrating to their political adversaries and to the world that they are not for interfering with the domestic institutions of any of the States, nor the advocates of negro equality or of amalgamation, with which political demagogues so often have charged them.— Secession is an impracticability; or rather an impossibility; the Constitution provides no way by which a State may withdraw from the Union, and no way for the dissolution of the government it creates. The general government interferes but little with the individual rights of the citizens, except for protection. It is chiefly felt in its benefits and its blessings, not its exactions. If every federal officer in South Carolina was to resign, their offices would remain vacant, and its legislature declare the State out of the Union, and it would all amount to little, except to inconvenience the citizens of the State. So long as the State did not interfere with the collection of the revenue on the seaboard, the people in the other portions of the Union would not be in the least incommoded.

T. S. CHASE, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Premiums for New Subscribers.—To each and every one who will next court week, or at the February Court, bring us the money for ten new subscribers ($12, 50); we will send a copy of either the Atlantic Monthly, Harper's Magazine, Godey's Magazine, the Knickerbocker Magazine, or Blackwood's Magazine for one year free. The papers will be sent to any post-office the clubber may desire. Try it.

The Secession movement at the South has made no particular progress since our last, except in South Carolina, where a word in defence of the Union is the signal for the banishment of its author, with even more precision than that of an Abolitionist. The Convention to take measures for secession meets on the 17th inst., (a week from next Monday), and it is now generally conceded that South Carolina will pass a secession ordinance, unanimously, by the 18th at farthest. Her Members of Congress will be over, as her Senators unconditionally resigned a month ago unceremoniously, and are not expected to take their seats at all. Let them go, peacefully, we say, though with the understanding that the Government property in the State shall not be molested, at the peril of a bombardment of her entire coast, and a war with the Government which shall crush her at once.

The Georgia Convention will meet on the 18th, but it is thought that the presence of Mr. Stephens, and other circumstances will prevent extreme measures in that State. The fact that her Senators and Members of Congress would resign their seats last Monday, is good reason to believe that wise and conservative counsels will prevail in Georgia.

As South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida are the only States that have assumed a really threatening aspect, it is reasonable to suppose that the rupture will be confined to these three States at the utmost, and possibly to South Carolina alone; and hence, will be of short duration, and final disposition. If it fails of success now, it can and will never be attempted again. Therefore we say let it work itself out—no great loss will be the result in any event.

Come and Hear Him.

People of Condersport and vicinity, will you come and hear the Rev. J. H. Parsons plead for Virtue, Innocence, Peace and Prosperity, next Saturday evening? Will you give a few moments to the cause of Temperance? Will you turn out in such numbers as shall show those who are violating the law for the sake of making a few dollars in selling whisky, that the business of drunkard-making is odious to this community? Each one of us has a personal interest in this matter, for if the sale of intoxicating drinks shall again become general in this county, then all of us are certain to be severely injured by it. Most of us will have a near friend go down to a drunkard's grave. If you so desire, you may easily banish the dangerous poison from this community. Public sentiment is now on the right side—strike before it shall be too late.

Retaliation.

This is great word just now in the Southern vocabulary—in fact there are now but two words in that vocabulary—Secession and Retaliation, and these have but one root, which is Treason. We recently discussed one branch of this common sort, Secession, and we now propose to examine the only remaining branch of the Southern vocabulary.

Retaliation is literally returning like for like, but as applied by the seceders, is used in the place of resentment. In this sense a wrong is implied or presupposed, and now let us inquire what cause there is for retaliation or resentment on the part of the South toward the North; or, to be more explicit, what has the North done to require retaliatory measures from the South. The seceders charge that some of the Northern States have passed laws inflicting upon the National fugitive slave law. That is, they have passed laws to relieve their citizens from the necessity of acting as blood-hounds to reclaim a species of property, held by the South, which is not recognized by the Constitution, and is the creature of Southern local law. Disregarding the primary cause, they now attempt to frighten the North into retroactive measures by threatening to resent the fact; and in doing so, they are also inconsistent, because they resent the doctrine of State-rights for which they have so long and loudly contended. If the South has State-rights so also has the North; and if the protection of unconstitutional property is a reserved right, how infinitely much more so is the protection of the natural liberties and rights of citizens! But we can see no cause for retaliation on the part of the South, even if we throw aside entirely the doctrine of State rights. There has been no aggression by the Northern States—they have only taken measures to relieve themselves of the oppressive requirements of an unconstitutional, inhuman and superfluous law enacted by the South with aggressive spirit and intent.

Another charge is that the North have elected Mr. Lincoln President—in spite of their secession and disunion threats. This they regard as an infraction of their rights which calls for retaliatory action on their part. But how can they retaliate upon this constitutional act of the North—they have neither votes, nor law, nor constitution, to base retaliation upon. But this charge is too silly for discussion, or even passing thought, and we leave it here in order to enumerate some of the aggressive acts of the South which have never been retaliated by the North, except in a peaceful and constitutional manner. Among these are, the suppression of the circulation of northern newspapers, the scourging and driving northern business men from their States, the murder of numerous citizens of the North while peacefully sojourning or traveling in Southern States, the obstruction of northern commerce by local embargo laws and the annulment of national laws for the protection of commerce, the nullification act of South Carolina, the fugitive slave law, the repeal of the Missouri Compromise law, the attempt to force Slavery into Kansas, the destruction of printing presses, and the murder of citizens of the North for uttering the sentiments of liberty on the common territory of the nation, the brutal assault upon Charles Sumner, and the repeated exhibition of fire arms in the halls of Congress with a view to intimidate Northern members while addressing the House or Senate.

These and hundreds more violations of northern rights have never been retaliated by the North, though forbearance had almost ceased to be a virtue. But now that these acts are constitutionally rebuked at one fell swoop by the majesty of northern franchise, the South claims cause for retaliation and reprisal.

For our part, we say let the North stand by its protective acts; make not one jot or tittle of concession within the Constitution and the laws, come what will.

Mr. T. S. Chase—Dear Sir: Let me, if you please, state a few facts with which I am intimately acquainted.—an old man in this town, of sixty-five summers, furnishing bread (not to speak of threshers, millers and other toilers), to four generations,—first, to great-grand-mother of days and years anterior to the American Revolution,—second, himself,—third,—a widowed daughter of forty summers,—lastly,—grand children down to the age of six summers. That same old man has raised, the past summer, from a new land fallow, one hundred and twenty-five bushels of Wheat,—the chopping, clearing, fencing, sowing and harvesting, being mostly the product of his own labor.

SWEDEN, Thanksgiving day, 1860.

Pale Agricultural Lectures.—The public will be gratified to learn that the novel experiment of the Yale Agricultural Lectures of last Winter was so successful as to induce its repetition this Winter on a more complete scale. The course will commence Feb. 5, and continue through the month. These lectures which are of great value to the whole country, and worthy the attention of every cultivator, are given under the auspices of the Yale Scientific School or Scientific Department of Yale College, as a supplement to its newly-instituted course of practical collegiate education, and for the benefit of the public at large.

A new and important feature of this course will be its complete illustration by specimens, drawings, models and actuals. Life-sized paintings of groups from celebrated herds will be included in these illustrations. The lectures on training and breaking horses are to be accompanied by practical illustrations. The lecturers of last year will take part in the course, and other eminent names, with a variety of new subjects, will be added to the list. The expenses of the course are provided for in any part by subscription. The lectures are under the direction of Prof. John A. Porter, who may be addressed for further information, at New Haven, Conn.—American Agriculturist.
