compresses into a wonderful short space mis- kind alike, through our druggists, at such low for innumerable discourses.

Mr. Davis coolly claims thirteen States as tion, and where his military foothold is now manufactured and for sale, at wholesale, by reduced to the single of Columbus already the proprietors, at Fairport, Montoe, Co., N. reduced to the single of Columbus, already Y., and for sale by most wholesale and retail outflanked, beleaguered and soon to be evacuated, if not taken by assault. Missouri and Kentucky are represented by full delegations in the Congress of the old Union, and will Corrected every Wednesday by P. A. STEB learn with some surprise that they are two of the thirteen States of the Southern Confederacy. In close connection with this assumption of jurisdiction over territory into which he dares not set his foot, Mr. Davis glorifies the guarantee of the pacific character of the South, to be found in the fact that its political system admits of only the voluntary association of communities. Yet at this moment its armies of invasion are ravaging portions of New Mexico, and it is only a few weeks ago that the possession of Kentucky was avowed to be such a military and territorial necessity the opposition of its inhabitants must. necessary be overcome by the strong hand.

Mr. Davis asserts that the South has been able to carry on this war without impairing the freedom of speech and of the press, and without invading personal rights. This is only true in the sense that the war has not diminished such freedom of speech and of the press as existed at the South before the war began, that is to say, none at ali. The people there have lost no liberties, having none to lose. They may, in the end, gain some, by s being relieved from the ruffian and bowie knife tyranny of the slaveholding oligarchy.

Mr. Davis looks to the breaking down of the Government under "a load of debt." If that "load" would not press equally upon the Southern Confederacy, if its independence was a possible achievement, it is because it would be thrown off by the grateful and accustomed remedy of repudiation Debt never troubled Mississippi, or Florida, or Arkansas; and Mr. Davis evidently fears no trouble from it to the Confederacy of which they are the ornaments.

Mr. Davis finds the most decisive stimulant to continued struggles in the fact that "nothing can be so bad as failure." In this, Mr. Davis speaks only for himself and his associates in the leadership of the rebellion. For the masses ple remedy after having suffered several years there is one thing which would be worse than disease, Consumption-is anxious to make "failure," and that is, success.

GEN. HALLECK'S LAST ORDER Forbids the eception of fugitive slaves within our lines and camps. This is an old order, put upon a new reason. When he first issued it in Missouri, Gen. He now bases it upon the position that military officers have nothing to do with the relation of master and slave. How that position justifies his order, is not apparent. # PILLS.

Are you sick, feele, and complaining! Any you rat of order, with your system deranged, and your bediegs uncomfortable? These grape teams are often the prelude to serious illueis. Some ill of sickness is creeping upon you, and should be are reted by a timely use of the right remody. Take Ayer's Pills, and cleanse out the disordered himors—purify the blood, and let, the fulsh more, purify the blood, and let, the fulsh more, on unobstructs its natural functions. They stimulate the functions of the body into vigorpers activity, purify the system from the obstructions which inake disease. A cold settles comewhere in the body, and obstructs its natural functions. These, if not relieved, react upon themselves and the surrounding organs, producing general aggraviation, sanfening, and disease. While in this condition; oppressed by the derangement, take Ayer's Fills, and see how directly they restore the natural action of the system, and with it the budyant feeling of health again. What is true and so apparent in this trivial and somming complaint, is also true in many of the deep-scated and dangerous distempers. The same purgative effect expels them. Causal by similar obstructions and derangements of the natural functions of the body, they are rapidly, and many of them sirely, cured, by the same means. None who know they strikes of those Pills, will neglect to employ them when suffering from the disorders they cure.
